Prospects of Speedy Round-Up of Gangs Who Got $5,800 in Two Morning Thefts.

ARREST AFTER MIDNIGHT

ARCHITECTS LOSE $500

Three daring automobile hold-ups, carried out within a few hours of each other yesterday—one in Brooklyn and two in Manhattan—gave the police one of the busiest days they had had since the new administration took hold at Police Headquarters.

The robberies, staged with equal care and daring, netted the thieves $3,100 in Brooklyn and $3,200 in Manhattan. In all the cases the bandits made a successful getaway by motor.

Five hours after the first Manhattan hold-up the police arrested Frederick Kelly of 672 East 137th Street, a chauffeur, who, they charged, drove the automobile that figured in the hold-up. Throughout a four-hour grilling at Police Headquarters Kelly denied that he had participated in the robbery and tried to furnish a convincing alibi.

At 10:45 o'clock last night, however, Second Deputy Police Commissioner Rubin and Inspector Faurot took Kelly into Mr. Rubin's office and talked with him for half an hour. When they emerged they rushed Kelly and four detectives into a police automobile and speeded away. As they were leaving Deputy Commissioner Rubin replied in answer to questions by reporters:

"We have broken him down. He has confessed that three weeks ago he met three men whom he has met once or twice since then, and with whom today's job was framed up. He has given us descriptions of the men, and we are going to hunt for them."

It did not become known until late last night that the police were working on a third robbery. This occurred yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Five men and an automobile figured in this hold-up. The thieves stole $500 from Malcolm Mobrey, cashier, of the firm of McKenzie Voorhees & Gemlin, architects in the Townsend Building at 1,123 Broadway. The robbers missed another $1,000 that Mr. Mobrey had in his pockets.

After luncheon yesterday the cashier went to the Second National Bank, at Twenty-eighth Street and Fifth Avenue, and drew out $1,500, which was put in three packages. He put one of the packets in an inside coat pocket and the other two in the hip pockets of his trousers.

When he got to the Townsend Building he took an elevator operated by Frank Montano of 213 East 111th Street. Five young men crowded into the car behind him, and as it ascended they indulged in horse play and Mr. Mobrey's hat was knocked off. He stooped to pick it up.

At the fifth floor the five young men got off. Mr. Mowbry ascended to his offices on the tenth floor, and it was not until he arrived there that he discovered that one of the packages in his hip pocket was gone.

He ran back to the elevator and descended to the street. He learned that a black automobile had been standing outside the building and that in this the men who had been in the elevator with him had departed.

He notified the police of the West Twenty-eighth Street Station, and they were said last night to be working on a clue, but they would give no information about the case.

Expect to Get Bandits.

Detectives were searching for the men described by Kelly in every precinct of the city last night, and arrests were expected at any moment.

At 1:30 this morning Detective Willense of the Central Office took into custody at Third Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street a man who he said was Joseph Reardon of Fort Schuyler Road and Hamilton Avenue, Westchester. He was detained in the East Thirty-fifth Street station as a material witness.

The police are of the opinion that because of the short lapse of time between the first two holdups that they were engineered by different bandit parties, but think there is a probability that both may have been planned by the same gang.

The arrest of Kelly also brought out the statement that the police had, for the last three weeks, been watching Kelly and a gang with whom he was associated, in connection with another automobile hold-up which the police learned they were planning, but which was prevented.

It was 10:12 A. M. that Police Headquarters was notified by telephone that at a few minutes before 10 o'clock two clerks, who were carrying into the office of John M. Masury & Son, 50 Jay Street, Brooklyn, a satchel containing the weekly pay roll of $3,100, which they had brought from the Kings County Trust Company, had been held up in the hallway and robbed of the money. The robbers, two in number, then made their escape in a brown automobile which had been waiting for them in the street near the building.

The excitement caused at headquarters by this report was still at its height when there came the report of the second robbery, which took place at 11:10 o'clock in front of the American Can Company, 447 West Fourteenth Street, where the pavements

LIPTON IS CONFIDENT.

"Will Bring the Cup Back to Old Ireland," He Wires The Times.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 6.—Sir Thomas Lipton, replying to THE NEW YORK TIMES's inquiry, telegraphed from Southampton as follows:

"My new challenger on the first trial fully justified my optimism and will bring the cup back in her locker to Old Ireland."

A Portsmouth dispatch to The London Times says:

"Ainfield Thompson holds a high opinion of Shamrock IV. He feels confident that she will prove faster than any of the three American craft, and that the issue of the races next September will depend largely upon the time allowance, which will be a much more important factor than in the previous contests.

"Mr. Thompson arrived recently from America and is in the unique position of having seen all of the American defense yachts as well as the challenger.

"Should the Resolute be chosen as the defender, she would claim probably about nine minutes' allowance from Shamrock IV. over a 30-mile course on account of her small canvas spread."

LONDON, June 5.—The yachting reporter of The Evening Standard today estimates that Shamrock IV., Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's Cup, will have to allow about four minutes to the biggest of the American defenders. He credits an unnamed American yachtsman, who witnessed yesterday's sail-stretching spins and who has seen all three defenders, as saying Shamrock IV. will prove to be faster than any of them. In this case much will depend on the question of time allowance.

In response to an invitation for his opinion of the Shamrock IV. on her showing in Thursday's sail-stretching trip, Sir Thomas Lipton said tonight:

"The Shamrock IV. came up to my fullest expectations during her trial yesterday. She will do still better, and I have every confidence in her ultimate success. The four leaves will do the trick."

SINGLE TERM FOR WILSON?

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—Edwin F. Sweet, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said today that President Wilson did not desire a second term, and that if he became a candidate again it would be from a knowledge that he must complete the work he had set out to accomplish.

"If President Wilson does run again," said Mr. Sweet, "he will not do so from a love of power, as Roosevelt might, but from a sincere conviction that the country would profit by his continuance in office and that a second term would be necessary to the successful working out of his policies."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—If Edwin F. Sweet was correctly quoted in saying that President Wilson did not desire a second term, he said more than the President ever said publicly. Secretary Bryan, however, has indicated strongly that he considered the Democratic platform as binding the President against a second term.

GUGGENHEIM SUCCESS KEY.

Never Take In Outside Interests, Says Daniel Guggenheim.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 5.—The success of the Guggenheims is due to the fact that they never take in any outside interests, said Daniel Guggenheim of New York today while testifying in a mining engineer's suit over some mining property. The case was that of Louis Ross against Albert C. Burrage for alleged breach of contract in connection with the Chile Copper Company.

Mr. Guggenheim said he had spent large sums of money in exploiting mines before taking title to them. He said it frequently happened that some of them were abandoned. As an instance of this he said that after spending $1,500,000 on the Nipissing Mine his corporation gave it up.

Mr. Guggenheim testified that he never bought mining property solely on a laboratory test, but always had such a test followed by a commercial test. He said a laboratory test was only an indication of what might be expected.

To develop the process of treating the ore since buying the Chuquicamata and other mines from Burrage, Mr. Guggenheim said he had spent $45,000 monthly, and intended to keep it up. It is on the purchase price of these mines that Ross is suing for a share, having originally discovered them.

COLLISION SAVES A WOMAN.

Fireman Drives Engine Into Tr.e and Crew Are Thrown Off.

The sight of a woman with a baby carriage standing helpless with confusion before the advance of Fire Engine 88 caused the driver, John A. Bryan, to swerve his three galloping horses as they were going through 183d Street in the Bronx last night until they mounted the curb and crashed into a large tree at the edge of the sidewalk. The engine did not overturn, but all the men were thrown off and Capt. Edward Fagan was picked up unconscious. He was removed to Fordham Hospital, by Dr. Siskin, suffering from cuts and bruises about the head and knees, but not in a serious condition.

The accident occurred near Washington Avenue, and the firemen went on foot to 184th Street and Washington Avenue, where they found Patrolman Gilbert in charge of Leo Lawler, who was all there was to the fire. He had engaged in an altercation with his wife, whose screams alarmed a woman of the neighborhood into thinking there was a fire and who had pulled the handle of an alarm box. Lawler was locked up in the Tremont Station, charged with intoxication.

The accident occurred just before 6 o'clock and in the crowd which gathered both the woman who had sent in the alarm and the other whose confusion had caused the mishap to the fire engine were lost sight of.

TRUST BILLS PASS HOUSE BY BIG VOTES

DEMOCRATS ARE JUBILANT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—In record-breaking time the House passed to-day and sent to the Senate the three measures that comprise the Administration's anti-trust programme. They are the Railroad Capitalization bill, providing for the close regulation and control by the Interstate Commerce Commission of issues of railroad stocks and bonds; the Covington bill creating an Interstate Trade Commission, with broad inquisitorial powers over corporations engaged in interstate commerce, and the Clayton bill, whose provisions are designed to strengthen and support the Sherman law and other acts against monopolies and restraints of trade.

Barely a dozen days had been occupied in consideration of the legislation on the floor, with the House sitting as a Committee of the Whole, while the actual passing of the bills required less than an hour.

Separate votes were taken on each bill, and, as anticipated, the majorities were overwhelming. The Covington Interstate Trade Commission went through, with no demand for a record vote, and there were only a few faint nays. The Clayton Omnibus bill passed by a vote of 275 to 54, and the Railroad Capitalization bill, a substitute offered by the Interstate Commerce Committee for the Reyburn bill, was passed by a vote of 325 to 12. In the Senate, when the bills are taken up there, it is likely that the three will be combined into one measure, this course having already been determined tentatively by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

The last of the three bills to receive the House's attention was the railroad capitalization measure, which was completed in Committee of the Whole yesterday just before the House convened as a body for the final votes. The Interstate Commerce Committee divided the Rayburn bill into two sections, in order that one might stand if the constitutionality of the other failed in the courts. Should the bill be finally enacted it would make it unlawful for common carriers to issue stocks, bonds, notes, or other evidences of indebtedness without the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Republican and Progressive Aid.

Forty Republicans and fifteen Progressives joined with the Democrats in passing the Clayton bill. It is this measure that defines labor unions and agricultural, fraternal, and consumers' organizations as not to be construed to be illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

Republicans—Anderson, Minnesota; Barton, Nebraska; Burke, South Dakota; Campbell, Kansas; Cramton, Michigan; Curry, California; Davis, Minnesota; Dillon, South Dakota; Farr, Pennsylvania; Frear, Wisconsin; French, Idaho; Gardner, Massachusetts; Good, Iowa; Green, Iowa; Greene, Vermont; Haugen, Iowa; Hawley, Oregon; Helgesen, North Dakota; Johnson, Washington; Kelley, Michigan; Kennedy, Iowa; Kinkaid, Nebraska; La Follette, Washington; Lenroot, Wisconsin; Mackenzie, Illinois; McLaughlin, Michigan; Mapes, Michigan; Mondell, Wyoming; Morgan, Oklahoma; Moss, West Virginia; Porter, Pennsylvania; Roberts, Nevada; Scott, Iowa; Sinnott, Oregon; Sloan, Nebraska; Smith, Idaho; J. M. C. Smith, Michigan; Sutherland, West Virginia; Towner, Iowa; Vare, Pennsylvania; Woods, Iowa.

Progressives—Bell, California; Bryan, Washington; Copley, Illinois; Falconer, Washington; Hinebaugh, Illinois; Hulings, Pennsylvania; Kelly, Pennsylvania; Lindbergh, Minnesota; MacDonald, Michigan; Murdock, Kansas; Nolan, California; Rupley, Pennsylvania; Temple, Pennsylvania; Tomson, Illinois; Woodruff, Michigan.

Only one Democrat, George White of Ohio, voted against the bill. One Progressive also voted in the negative, Walter M. Chandler of New York.

Of the twelve who voted against the railroad capitalization measure eight were Republicans and four were Democrats, as follows:

Republicans—Cramton, Michigan; Dunn, New York; Fairchild, New York; Gillett, Massachusetts; Moore, Pennsylvania; Parker, New York; Payne, New York; Wallin, New York.

Representative Murdock of Kansas, the Progressive leader, made the only motion to recommit, and that was on the Covington bill for an interstate trade commission. He was supported by nineteen members, practically all of them Bull Moosers, while 151 opposed the motion, which was an effort to substitute a bill prepared by the Progressives. According to Mr. Murdock, it had more teeth in it than were contained in the Covington measure.

The Democratic majority of the House was jubilant tonight over the successful passage of the legislation, and also because of the apparent step in the direction of adjournment. It is believed that the House can adjourn within a month if the Senate does not stand in the way.

Party Leaders' Views.

Representative Charles C. Carlin of Virginia, a ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, who had much to do with the framing of the anti-trust bills, said tonight:

"The bills are simple and in no sense ambiguous, and will leave practically no work for the courts, and the fact that they were passed through the House by a practically unanimous vote shows that they contained the matters upon which the people demand legislation. The labor amendment, about which a great deal has been said, received the solid vote of all three political parties, Democratic, Progressive, and Republican. The bills, if enacted into law, will bring relief to the business of the country and will hasten and accentuate prosperity.

"The Democratic Party has fulfilled its promise to the people as expressed in the Baltimore platform to the letter. Some have complained that the bills are a menace to business. The reverse is true. The bills are in response to the demands of business men all over the country. Especially will they be helpful to small business men who had their operations and growth prohibited by monopoly. These bills, in a word, mean business freedom.

Representative Mann, the Republican leader, made a statement as follows:

"There is nothing in any of the Democratic anti-trust bills that will build a fire that is now out, start a factory, or in any way encourage business. The measures are repressive. There was a demand for legislation supplementary to the anti-trust law that would permit business to be conducted without uncertainty as to its rights. The Clayton bill adds to and does not remove any of

QUEEN UNRUFFLED BY SUFFRAGE PLEA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 6.—The scene in the Throne Room at Buckingham Palace on Thursday night was caused by Miss Mary Blomfield, the elder daughter of Lady Blomfield and the late Sir Arthur Blomfield, Associate of the Royal Academy. In response to an inquiry from The Daily Mail, Lady Blomfield sent the following telegram:

"Lady Blomfield desires to state that her daughters did not accompany her to the Court on June 4, but arrived later, without her knowledge. The appeal was entirely Miss Blomfield's own idea. Lady Blomfield saw nothing of the incident, which she and her whole family deeply deplore. Lady Blomfield wishes further to state that she is in no way connected with the militant suffragists."

One who was present at Thursday night's Court says:

"Lady Townsend had just presented her sister, Mrs. Walrond, and passed on, when Lady Blomfield, followed by her two daughters, moved forward. Lady Blomfield had curtsied to the King and was making her bow to the Queen when her daughter, who was then before his Majesty, suddenly went down on one knee and, flinging out her hands, sought to address him.

"Apparently startled by her daughter's voice, Lady Blomfield turned around, and at the same moment the other Miss Blomfield stepped forward to her sister and caught her by the arm. Sir Douglas Dawson, who with the Lord Chamberlain was standing at the right of the King, went to Miss Blomfield, and with the assistance of other officials half led, half carried her out of the chamber, her mother and sister following the little procession.

"Only those near the throne knew what really occurred. Most people thought that a débutante had fainted. The King and Queen were most unconcerned and gave no indication of having witnessed the incident."

Both Sisters Suffragettes.

Both the Misses Blomfield are known to be supporters of the suffragette cause. Curiously enough, someone who heard the daughters declare themselves militant suffragettes, had his suspicions aroused when he heard that they were going to the Court. At first he thought of communicating his suspicions to the Lord Chamberlain's office, but, fearing the warning would be regarded as a canard, he refrained.

There is reason to believe that in the course of the day the two young women feared that their intentions had become known. So they announced that, owing to indisposition, they would be unable to attend the Court, and remained in their private sitting room when Lady Blomfield left her hotel in an electric brougham with the young married woman whom she was to present. Soon afterward the Misses Blomfield left the hotel, closely wrapped up, but it is now evident that they had on their Court dresses and that the electric brougham which took their mother to the palace afterward picked them up for the same destination.

They had no difficulty in gaining admission to the palace, as they had already been presented at Court, and so would have received tickets for Thursday night's function on signifying by leaving cards that they were in London.

Invitations to Court Canceled.

The incident resulted in further precautions being adopted for last night's Court. All the officials in the palace yesterday morning were in consultation, and the list of guests for last night's Court was being vigorously examined. As a result invitations extended to three women were withdrawn by special messenger.

The Queen's view of the incident is characteristic and significant. She remarked:

"If this had been the worst thing the women had done, they might perhaps be forgiven."

A member of the Blomfield family, when interviewed, said:

"I should like it as widely known as possible that we dissociate ourselves entirely from this girl's misguided act. We are sick and disgusted to a degree. I know the head of the family shares my views, and I can safely speak for all the rest of us, with the exception of this small contingent."

There is naturally much indignation in court circles, and it is possible that the incident will make some difference with regard to future functions. At any rate, no royal garden party will be held this year, for it is felt that it would give an undesirable

ROOSEVELT IS WELL AFTER OCEAN TRIP

Received with Official Honors at Cherbourg—Now in Paris.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Saturday, June 6.—Col. Roosevelt arrived here at 4:30 o'clock this morning. He was met by First Secretary Bliss and private secretary Norton of the embassy, and about fifty friends, members of the American colony and press representatives.

He declined to talk on American or Mexican politics.

He will leave Paris Sunday at noon on the Sud Express.

He will have luncheon with ex-Premier Hanotaux and will dine with Ambassador Herrick. He is staying at the Hôtel Crillon.

When asked if he would give an interview to the correspondents he said: "Not if I see them first; I am not talking on this trip."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CHERBOURG, June 5.—When THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent met Col. Roosevelt on his arrival here this evening the Colonel told him he had no plans at present for any further adventures.

"I'm a staid father of a family, with domestic habits," he said. When he reached London he expected to visit several well-known zoologists, geographers, and big-game hunters with regard to the results of his South American journey.

"Savage Landor? You cannot imagine anything that leaves me more indifferent than the attack of Savage Landor."

The ex-President had nothing to say when it was suggested that in London he might find himself the object of attack by the militants.

CHERBOURG, June 5.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt arrived tonight on board the steamer Olympic, on his way to Spain to attend the wedding of his son Kermit Roosevelt, to Miss Belle Wyatt Willard. Col. Roosevelt was officially welcomed on behalf of the French Government.

The private car of President Poincaré was sent to Cherbourg for the use of the former American Executive, and M. Nicteux, Assistant Prefect of Cherbourg, was delegated to welcome him. Col. Roosevelt was greatly pleased at his reception. He was the object of the interest of the passengers as he stepped briskly down the gangplank from the steamer.

The cane he carried on board the Olympic at New York had been discarded when he came ashore. He said he had gained in weight since he left the United States and hoped that after his European trip he would be entirely recovered from the illness contracted in the jungles of South America.

"I have not had any chills," said Col. Roosevelt, "and as to my health, I think you can judge for yourself. I would be ready for another trip, so far as my health is concerned, but I haven't any explorations or any more adventures in mind for the present."

WELCOMED AT PLYMOUTH.

Mayor and Citizens Wait on the Colonel When Olympic Stops.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—The Olympic, with Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Philip Roosevelt, and Mrs. Longworth on board, called at Plymouth today. The Mayor, the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and Arthur Lee, M. P., who is a great friend of the ex-President, boarded the vessel and welcomed the visitors.

The Mayor expressed his regret that Col. Roosevelt's arrangements did not permit him to leave the ship at Plymouth. Col. Roosevelt said that he was going to Paris and thence to Madrid to attend the marriage of his son Kermit, and that afterward he would come to London to deliver a lecture before the Royal Geographical Society concerning his recent exploration tour in Brazil.

Although he had traveled the world over, he said, he had never seen anything so lovely as the view of Plymouth. No American could possibly come to Plymouth, he continued, without absolutely visualizing Admiral Drake. He expressed his deep appreciation of the compliment paid him by the visit of the Mayor.

Col. Roosevelt is due in London on June 13 and will be the guest of Mr. Lee. The ex-President declined to discuss political or other topics with reporters, saying that the question of his recent travels in South America could be left to the experts of the Royal Geographical Society.

KERMIT'S ROUND OF GAYETY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 5.—Kermit Roosevelt, who is staying at the American Embassy, is delighted with Madrid. Yesterday he assisted at a luncheon given by Ambassador Willard at the embassy to the King and Queen, and afterward accompanied the Ambassador and Miss Willard to the Court cotillion at the palace.

Mr. Roosevelt has been introduced to Madrid society, has attended the theatres, and seen a bullfight. He says he found his journey through the Brazilian jungle less of an ordeal than facing the reporters and photographers who constantly besiege him.

DIDN'T FEAR MORGAN LEDYARD AVERS

IGNORANT OF BILLARD DEAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The examination of Lewis Cass Ledyard before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the New Haven investigation was continued today. Mr. Ledyard concluded his direct statement yesterday and appeared today for cross-examination by Gov. Folk, chief counsel of the commission. Mr. Ledyard did not regard himself as an ordinary witness and at times there were sharp clashes between himself and his interrogator, and several times he declined positively to answer questions and expressed sharply his resentment at the relentless questioning that pursued him.

Mr. Ledyard told of his personal friendship with Mr. Morgan and of his admiration of the financier's ability. However, he said, he often opposed Mr. Morgan in board meetings and didn't fear him.

Mr. Crim, attorney for former President Mellen, began the serious business of the day by cross-examining Mr. Ledyard upon statements he made yesterday as to the connection of the late J. P. Morgan with alleged attempts to wrest from the Grand Trunk the New London & Northern road and the indictment of Mr. Mellen as a "vicarious sacrifice" to shield Mr. Morgan.

Mr. Crim had telegraphed to New York for a copy of the letter that Mr. Mellen wrote to District Attorney Wise and placed the copy in the record. This letter has been published in THE NEW YORK TIMES. In the letter Mr. Mellen said he was the only one who had conducted negotiations with the Grand Trunk and asked to appear before the Grand Jury.

As the work of the day proceeded Mr. Ledyard avoided answers to certain questions. When the minutes of the New Haven Road or the New England Navigation Company indicating that he had been appointed a member of a committee to report on some project or some transaction which has been called in doubt were shown to him, Mr. Ledyard could remember that the committee never acted, and that was about all.

This occurred in connection with the efforts to acquire the Grand Trunk's control of the New London & Northern. The minutes showed he was on the committee to consider the matter, but he was very sure the committee did nothing. So, too, when the Navigation Company loaned $2,000,000 to Billard, Mr. Ledyard appeared on the record to have been on the committee in charge of the matter, but he declared he never knew that any such loan had been made.

Check to Billard Produced.

One of his experts went over to the Interstate Commerce Commission Building and got the check showing the loan to Billard and the record of the twenty notes given by Billard. This was the money with which Billard put through the purchase of the 109,748 shares of Boston & Maine stock from the New Haven without investing a cent of his own money, as claimed by Gov. Folk. Mr. Ledyard took the checks, said he recognized Mr. Kochersperger's signature and that of Mr. May on them, but that he knew nothing whatever of the transaction.

He was asked if a transaction as large as that would have been made without authority from the board of which he was a member, and he said it could not. With a remarkable recollection of the minutes of the New England Navigation Company's Board of Directors, he insisted that there was no mention of the loan in the minutes, and Mr. Folk had to admit that that was the fact.

Mr. Folk showed that Mr. Ledyard was on a committee to consider Grand Trunk relations, but he could not remember the fact, although the minutes were very clear on the point. So, too, he had no recollection of the New England Navigation Company borrowing $2,000,000 of the New Haven to pay a dividend to the New Haven, yet the minutes of the Navigation Company showed that Mr. Ledyard was present at the time the loan was authorized.

Mr. Crim began his cross-examination by showing the witness the Mellen letter to District Attorney Wise.

"I have not seen that letter for two years since it was written," Mr. Ledyard told him, "but that is about my recollection of what its terms were."

Mr. Crim said he wanted to state on the record at this point that he did not pretend to controvert any statement Mr. Ledyard had made. He believed he had told the absolute truth as he saw the facts before him. It was probable, however, that he did not see all the facts, and that," added Mr. Crim, "may modify our record." Continuing his questioning of Mr. Ledyard he asked:

Q.—The Grand Trunk matter, subsequent to your return from Europe, was brought to your attention by Mr. Morgan, as I understand you? A.—Of course I know nothing about the Grand Trunk matter or any negotiations, because they did not begin until after Mr. Chamberlain was elected President of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Mellen so states, and I believe every one so states. That was not done until after I had sailed for Europe in May, after Mr. Hayes, the former President of the Grand Trunk, had been lost in the Titanic disaster.

Q.—That is, the particular investigations? A.—Any negotiations that were on foot in that year, 1912, were initiated after I went to Europe. When I came back, in September, then it was that I saw Mr. Morgan, as I stated to you; and I first learned of those negotiations with Chamberlain and Smithers when I saw Mr. Mellen on my return in early December, or it may have been just the last of November.

Q.—But Mr. Morgan had mentioned the subject to you and asked you to try and stay for the next meeting? A.—For the next meeting of the New Haven board, and he told me Mr. Mellen was going to bring before the board then some proposition resulting out of some negotiations he had been having with the Grand Trunk people.

Q.—Did Mr. Morgan then, or has any one since, informed you that before September Mr. Morgan had been seen by one or more prominent stockholders or bondholders of the Central Vermont in regard to the Grand Trunk? A.—Mr. Morgan did not tell me.

Q.—Have you heard that at any time? A.—When I came back, as I testified yesterday, either the very last days of November or early days of December, and saw Mr. Mellen, Mr. Mellen said to me that he thought Mr. Morgan had had some conferences with people who were in Grand Trunk interests, or who represented the Grand Trunk interests. It was then that he asked me to ask Mr. Morgan about it and to find out whether it was so. He did not pretend himself to know the facts or to have been present at any such conference.

Q.—Do you recall definitely what Mr. Morgan said when you asked him about any one having been seen on behalf of the Grand Trunk? A.—Yes, because it only took about a minute. I went over to his library and I said: "Commodore, Mr. Mellen is worried about you; he said that you might have had some conferences with the Grand Trunk people, and he wanted me to ask you whether

CARRANZA HAS IT.

Perfectly Simple: He'd Salute Our Flag; We Could Then Quit Vera Cruz

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—One of the rumors of a day that has been filled with them is that when Gen. Carranza proclaims himself Provisional President of Mexico at Saltillo he will at one stroke remove the casus belli between the United States and Mexico by running up the American flag and giving it the sovereign salute of 21 guns. With the insult to the American flag thus atoned for, according to Carranza's view, and a Provisional President in power espousing constitutional government, the United States would be invited by the Provisional President to withdraw its forces from Vera Cruz.

To observers in Washington this has a humorous sound, but it is precisely in line with the strictly logical position Gen. Carranza has assumed from the first, namely, that Huerta is a mere usurper, and therefore, the demand for an apology should have been made to Carranza.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—It is announced that the attempt at a transatlantic flight in a Martinsyde biplane, which Gustav Hamel was to have undertaken in August, will be made as planned.

There are several applicants for the vacant seat in the great biplane, and the final selection will be made next week. The machine will be ready for a trial flight within a fortnight.

"BIG TIM" LEFT $1,001,277.

New Appraisal Increases Value of T. D. Sullivan's Estate.

In accordance with orders issued a month ago by Surrogate Cohalan, a complete inventory of the estate of "Big Tim" Sullivan was filed in the Surrogates' Court yesterday by William J. Burke and Roderick J. Kennedy. The new inventory, more definite than the previous one, places the value of the estate at $1,001,277.

The claims against the estate are not enumerated. The previous inventory filed by Patrick H. Sullivan and Lawrence Mulligan valued the estate at $970,257.

TORNADO INJURES FOUR.

HOSPERS, Iowa, June 5.—A small tornado visited this town and the outlying country this afternoon. Mrs. Neth Hoogsterp and her three children were seriously injured when their farmhouse was blown down. A farm hand named Sorenson is missing.

THE NORTHLAND FLOATED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 5.—The steamer Northland, owned by the Eastern Steamship Corporation, which ran upon Bartlett's Reef last night at 10:40 o'clock, was successfully floated by the T. A. Scott Wrecking Company at 5:41 o'clock this evening and brought into New London harbor.

The forward compartments of the Northland are badly punctured, but the steamship has been temporarily patched and powerful pumps are keeping the boat free of water. At 12 o'clock tonight the Northland is scheduled to leave for New York for repairs and will proceed slowly up Long Island Sound under her own steam with her own crew and also the wrecking companies' employes aboard.

3,000 RIFLES FOR ULSTER.

Yachtsman Delivers Mausers for Volunteers Under Eyes of Police.

BELFAST, June 5.—The armory of the Ulster Volunteers was strengthened today by the addition of 3,000 Mauser rifles as the result of a daring gun-running feat of an Irish yachtsman.

A part of the consignment was landed to the south of Donaghadee, sixteen miles from Belfast, but most of the rifles wer delivered straight on to the quay at Belfast, and the cases were removed under the eyes of the police by specially selected volunteers.

MEN URGE RATE ADVANCE.

500,000 Employes of Western Railroads Out of Work, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Railroad workers as well as railroad owners favor the 5 per cent. rate increase asked by the roads, according to Fred L. Feick of the Western Railroad Employes, who is in Washington to testify on the subject before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Mr. Feick said that his organization included 1,000,000 men. While they do not advocate a particular increase, he said, they feel that a fair share in prosperity should be permitted to the roads.

"Five hundred thousand railroad men in the West are out of work," said Mr. Feick, discussing the situation. "Men who have been engineers and conductors of ten years' service today have been set back to braking, something that has never happened before.

"Many employes have been dismissed from the service, and retrenchment is general in all departments, and in many cases wages have been cut anywhere from 10 to 20 per cent., and the hours of thousands of employes have been reduced."

BADGER TO STOP HUERTA GUNBOATS

Force May Be Used to Prevent Meddling with the Antilla, Carrying Rebel Arms.

PROTEST BY DELEGATES

ARMS CARGO AT TAMPICO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Important developments in the Mexican situation it can be stated authoritatively, are expected by officials tomorrow or Sunday. These developments are looked for at Vera Cruz or Tampico and evidently relate to the cargo of arms which the Ward liner, Antilla took away from New York Tuesday for delivery to the rebels at Tampico.

The Navy Department is understood to have information that the three gunboats of Gen. Huerta will probably move up the coast to intercept the Antilla, and the belief here is that they will be stopped by the United States warships off Vera Cruz or near Tampico.

Since the departure of the Antilla care has been taken to ascertain her exact speed so that the hour of her arrival at Tampico could be foretold with certainty. Yesterday Admiral Badger was instructed to watch the Federal gunboats at Puerto Mexico and Alvarado that might be expected to enforce Gen. Huerta's proclaimed blockade of Tampico.

Today Admiral Badger's instructions were emphasized by an order telling him to watch the Huerta vessels with predominant forces. That is being done, and there is every indication that force will be used if necessary to prevent the interception of the Antilla.

Embarrassed by Sunshine's Landing.

The embarrassment, caused by the sailing of the Antilla from New York, has been increased by the news that the American schooner Sunshine from Galveston landed a cargo of arms for the Constitutionalists at Tampico yesterday without opposition.

Mr. Bryan said yesterday and the day before that such shipments from the United States were contrary to the understanding with the mediators, and had, in fact, been prohibited by orders issued to port officials of the United States. From what Mr. Bryan said, it appeared that the clearance of arms from American ports was indirectly a violation of the informal armistice with Gen. Huerta, which was a condition of precedent to the conference at Niagara Falls.

According to Mr. Bryan this afternoon, the mediators made no inquiry or protest on the subject. He also denied a report from Niagara Falls that the Huerta delegates, through Señor Riano, the Spanish Ambassador here, had protested against the alleged violation of the armistice in permitting the Antilla to sail.

Officials here avoid all discussion of the landing of arms from the Sunshine which might give cumulative significance to the sailing of the Antilla. Nothing was volunteered on the subject by Mr. Bryan this afternoon, when he was asked about the Mexican situation. Later, when the direct question was presented to the Navy Department, "Has the Sunshine landed her arms?" the answer was a request that the question be not asked and that the incident be "let go at that."

The ammunition, carried on the Sunshine, is thought to have been the same that was prevented by army and customs officials from crossing the border into Mexico. Most of these arms, which were held up, were taken direct to Galveston, awaiting the fall of Tampico.

Possible Blow to Mediation.

What particularly interests Washington is the effect any use of force against the Huerta gunboats by American warships may have on the armistice with Gen. Huerta and the continuance of the peace conference at Niagara Falls.

In diplomatic circles the belief is general that a decision on the part of the United States to prevent a blockade would result in many complications and menace the success of mediation. It was suggested that inasmuch as the American Government had made no effort to interfere with the Constitutionalist campaign against the Mexican Federals at Tampico, or other Mexican cities, interference with the other belligerent in its effort to strike at the delivery of munitions of war would be a violation of neutrality.

These phases of the situation explain the gradual dwindling of optimism regarding the success of mediation. This diminution of confidence is reflected today from every point of contact with the Mexican problem. From Durango Gen. Carranza continued to taunt the United States and the mediators with the unwisdom of the course so far pursued toward Mexico.

Wild rumors have not been lacking today. The most exaggerated, perhaps, was one circulated late today that Admiral Mayo would seize Tampico, place the rebel port in precisely the same position as the Federal City of Vera Cruz.

Nothing of any such plan is known at the Navy Department, according to trustworthy information this evening. The seizure of Tampico would only accomplish at enormous cost the holding up of the Antilla's cargo of arms. But the shipment of arms on the Antilla could have been delayed, if not prevented, by the simple signing of an order. That order would probably have fallen in court if shippers had raised the question. But Mr. Bryan spoke today as if he thought such an order effective, only it was not issued in time.

Nothing reached here today to indicate a change in Gen. Carranza's views toward mediation. All the information Constitutionalist representatives here have received indicate that Gen. Carranza will proclaim himself provisional President of Mexico. That would make more difficult than ever the establishment through the Niagara conferences of a provisional government to take the place of the Huerta regime.

ANTILLA PROTEST TO HUERTA.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, June 5.—Another forward step in the mediation movement has been taken by the Mexican Government in accepting in stated terms the pacification plan prepared by the American and Mexican delegates at Niagara Falls, but almost at the same time the Mexican delegates have taken action that is a distinct danger to the negotiations.

As a result of the sailing of the steamer Antilla from Brooklyn with a shipment of arms for the Constitutionalists the representatives of the Huerta Government have telegraphed the Provisional President on the subject. In the view of the Mexican delegates this affair is a violation of the agreement between the United States and Mexican Governments to preserve the military status quo pending the outcome of the mediation negotiations.

The mediators, however, are taking a position of absolute neutrality. They have made no protest to the Washington Government and do not intend to do so. They contend that the question concerns the American and the Mexican Governments, altogether apart from the mediation undertaking.

No action will be taken by the mediators in regard to the landing of arms for the Constitutionalists at Tampico from the American schooner Sunshine. They intend to maintain a position of absolute neutrality in this and other cases involving the shipment of munitions of war to the revolutionists from American ports. The Mexican delegates had no comment to make in regard to the Sunshine incident, but it is expected that they will notify their Government in order that representations amounting to a protest may be made to the United States.

The agitation of the Mexicans over the Antilla affair caused some expressions of fear today lest this incident, taken in connection with the delay of the Washington Government in approving the pacification plan, might cause Huerta to demand action without delay. But this view doesn't seem to have made any impression on the mediators, who are disposed to allow President Wilson to handle the situation in his own way with the constant purpose of preventing the peace undertaking from resulting in failure.

The sailing of the Antilla for Tampico without opposition by the United States Government has merely accentuated the uneasiness of the Mexican delegates over the delay in negotiations. It is nine days since the American and Mexican delegates reached an agreement on general outlines of a plan of pacification and forwarded it to their respective Governments. Huerta has now acepted the plan in principle and also in the terms of the outline, but no word has come from Washington as to the attitude of the Wilson Administration concerning the proposed terms.

There is no disposition on the part of the mediators to hurry him, however, and it is evident that they are pinning their faith on him. This does not mean necessarily that they believe he will be able to convince Carranza that he should accept the pacification plan, but they believe that he is sincerely anxious that normal conditions will be re-established in Mexico. If he does not succeed in bringing Carranza to agree to the terms of settlement, he will adopt his own course to carry out the peace programme.

President Wilson seems to be satisfied with the plan as proposed, and there is reason to believe that the mediators have had some comforting assurances concerning the effort which he is making to induce Carranza to accept the proposals or at least agree to suspend hostilities and send delegates to Niagara Falls. Nothing has been received here, however, to indicate that Carranza is in a more favorable condition of mind with regard to the mediation proceedings.

It was arranged tonight that the mediators and the American delegates should hold a conference tomorrow. This will be the first meeting in three days, and the conversation may have an important bearing on the attitude of the Wilson Administration. The expectation is that the American delegates will state further views of the Washington Government in regard to the pacification plan and possibly give some explanation concerning the shipment of arms from New York on the Antilla.

WARSHIP DEFIANCE A MYTH.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 5.—An official denial was issued tonight of the German press reports that the cruiser Dresden cleared for action while escorting the Ypiranga and Bavaria out of Vera Cruz Harbor.

The Foreign Office has ascertained that the story is utterly without foundation. The Dresden on the day in question was at Tampico, not at Vera Cruz, while the cruiser Bremen, which was said to have assisted the Dresden in "forcibly" liberating the Ypiranga and Bavaria, was not even in Mexican waters.

All the other alleged details, such as the German crews singing defiant patriotic songs as the cruisers steamed away, belong to the "realm of fiction."

The official statement adds that the Ypiranga and the Bavaria have been hindered in no respect by the American naval authorities, nor threatened with any kind of reprisal. They were simply fined, and the propriety of the fines in accordance with international custom requires an investigation.

REVIVES BENTON CASE.

Daily Express Says Britain Has Sent a Note on the Subject.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 6.—The Daily Express this morning publishes the following:

"The Daily Express learns that the United States Government is confronted with a new and perplexing situation in connection with its Mexican policy. This is no less than a firmly expressed communication from the British Government which, in circumstances at present regarded as improbable, might mean an eventual encroachment by this country on the sacred area of the Monroe Doctrine. Sir Edward Grey has notified President Wilson in friendly, but unequivocal terms, that if as a consequence of his persistent backing of Villa, that bandit should eventually become President of Mexico, the British Government would demand and exact satisfaction for the murder of William S. Benton, the British subject who was done to death either by Villa himself or with his connivance.

"This communication, which is decorated with all the frills and embroidery of diplomatic usage, and is couched in language emphasizing Great Britain's good will toward the United States, places President Wilson in an awkward position. The question now is, if Villa still succeeds, what will be the attitude of the United States in view of Great Britain's unexpected and refreshing return to firmness? Can they permit Great Britain 'to exact' satisfaction, which means physical force, in Mexico, and thus risk the possibility of direct encroachment on the Monroe Doctrine?"

The Daily Express, in an editorial, says: "The murder of Benton, certainly with the connivance of Villa, was a gross offense to the whole British Empire, and the offense could not be removed by the fact that Villa and his nominal chief, Carranza, were being backed by President Wilson and the Government at Washington. Murders are common in Central American revolutions, but British citizens cannot be murdered with impunity.

"We are sorry for the quandary into which the swashbuckling Mexican has put the entirely well-intentioned, if not very practical, American statesman. It would be impossible to exaggerate the fraternal sentiments of Great Britain toward the United States, but the whole nation will approve Sir Edward Grey's straightforward declaration that if the United States does not exact punishment for the killing of Benton Great Britain will.

"'Civis Britannicus sum' has not yet become a meaningless boast. We repeat we are sorry for President Wilson, but the diplomatic mess into which he has got is of his own making."

ARMS LANDED AT TAMPICO.

The Sunshine, from Galveston, Puts Them Ashore Unopposed.

VERA CRUZ, June 5.—Arms and ammunition for the Constitutionalists were disembarked yesterday at Tampico from the American schooner Sunshine, commanded by Capt. Brown, who carried out the operation without opposition.

The papers of the Sunshine, which came from Galveston, were not deposited at the Consulate, the Captain declaring that he knew no reason why they should be.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—When Constitutionalist leaders were asked tonight about the cargo of the schooner Sunshine, which arrived at Tampico today, one of them said:

"Oh, yes, she carried a large consignment of pills, (bullets,) but discussion of ammunition cargoes is taboo with us."

It was generally conceded that if the vessel had landed a cargo of war munitions for the Constitutionalists at Tampico, she would not be subject to any penalty, so far as the United States was concerned. The schooner cleared from Galveston for Havana, and according to information here, went directly to Tampico. This is a violation of maritime law, but as that law is being enforced at Tampico just now by the Constitutionalists, the boat is in no danger on that score.

The cargo of 3,000,000 rounds, shipped from New York on the Ward liner Antilla, consisted of "thirty-thirty" and "seven millimetre" cartridges. These two types can be used in the four kinds of guns with which the Constitutionalists are armed.

READY TO SHIP MORE ARMS.

Morgan Liner Said to be Likely to Take Some for Rebels.

More war material for the Constitutionalists in Mexico was reported yesterday to be ready for shipment here. It was said to be consigned to Southern points from which it was to be transshipped to Huerta's foes by agents of Carranza.

On Pier 48, North River, 1,000 cases of ammunition were said to be waiting shipment on a Morgan Line steamer to Galveston. The accidental will sail in a few days and it was intimated that the ammunition would go on board this steamer. The general freight agent of the line, R. S. Tubbs, said, however:

"So far as I am aware we are carrying no war material for Mexico, or war material of any kind. We are receiving shipments of ammunition daily, shipments for commercial purposes only, so far as I know."

The ammunition reported on the pier is the largest single shipment mentioned since the departure of the Antilla. Employes on the pier said the ammunition there appeared to be for small arms and not for Mauser rifles. Several boxes of ammunition had broken open, said the employes, showing that the shells were more like those used in sporting arms. They admitted that the shipment was unusually large for commercial purposes and consigned to one point.

OBJECT TO FINES ON SHIPS.

Hamburg-American Director Protests About Ypiranga and Bavaria.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The imposition at Vera Cruz by the American Collector of the Port of fines amounting to $500,000 gold on the Hamburg-American steamers Ypiranga and Bavaria was the subject of a protest today at the War Department by Karl Buenz, American Director of the line. He called on Secretary Garrison, who will handle the matter as the line is represented through private and not diplomatic channels, and explained the company's views. The ships had acted in good faith, he said, and in accordance with a definite understanding with Gen. Funston that the Ypiranga, at least, could go where she pleased, if only she went away from Vera Cruz.

It is rumored here that as soon as the Federals evacuated Saltillo the town was occupied by the rebel band of Francisco Coss, but that Coss had hardly assumed control in the name of Carranza when a party of Villaistas arrived and deposed him, saying that they would recognize no other Government but that of Francisco Villa.

The Brazilian Minister, who is temporarily in charge of American interests, has received a dispatch from Consul W. W. Canada at Vera Cruz stating that as the situation has materially changed and the immediate need for Americans leaving Mexico no longer exists, transportation and incidental expenses will be furnished hereafter only to destitute Americans, desirous of leaving the country, who have relatives or friends in the United States that are able and willing to care for them.

There are practically no such Americans in this city at present. The Americans who have remained here are making good livings, though naturally business is not as good as formerly.

NO MORE FORCE—WILSON.

Fervently Wishes That None May Be Used Again in Vera Cruz.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 5.—"I pray God it may not be necessary for our boys at Vera Cruz to use any more force," President Wilson told 154 graduates of the Naval Academy, many of whom will shortly leave for Mexican waters. He spoke in the presence of a gathering of more than 5,000 people made up largely of present and future officers of the navy. The President thus referred to the American forces in Vera Cruz:

"They are not strutting and blustering. The people of Vera Cruz who despised and hated Americans will think differently of them when our boys leave."

In the course of his speech the President said:

"Other nations have been strong; other nations have piled wealth as high as the sky, but they have come to disgrace because they used their force and their wealth for the oppression of mankind and their own aggrandizement. And America will not bring glory to herself, but disgrace, by following the beaten paths of history. We must strike out on new paths.

"It ought to be one of your thoughts all the time that you are sample Americans, not merely sample navy men, not merely sample soldiers, but sample Americans, and that you have the point of view of America with regard to her navy and her army, that she is using them as the instruments of civilization, not as the instruments of aggression. The idea of America is to serve humanity. And every time you let the Stars and Stripes free to the wind you ought to realize that this is in itself a message, that you are on an errand which other navies have sometimes forgotten, not an errand of conquest, but an errand of service.

"What do you think is the lasting impression that those boys down at Vera Cruz are going to leave? They have had to use some force. I pray God it may not be necessary for them to use any more, but do you think that the way they fought is going to be the most lasting impression? Have not men fought ever since the world began? Is there anything new in using force? The new things in the world are the things that are divorced from force. The things that show the moral compulsions of the human conscience, those are the things by which we have been building up civilization, not by force, and the lasting impression that those boys are to leave will be that they exorcised self-control.

"You must bear in mind that you are the champions of what is right and fair all around for the public welfare, no matter where you are, and that it is for what is right and fair for public welfare that you are ready to fight and not merely on the drop of a hat on upon some slight punctilio."

The President praised Admiral Fletcher, saying he had been on duty longer at Vera Cruz than the other commanders and that he had the qualities of a statesman.

PEACE HOPES HIGH IN MEXICO CITY

President Huerta Is Optimistic and Acting Secretary Ruiz Lauds the Mediators.

REASSURES MEXICAN PUBLIC

Conferences Progressing Well, He Says—Denial That De La Barra Is Recalled.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 5.—Esteva Ruiz, the acting Secretary of Foreign Relations, gave out tonight to press representatives the first formal statement that he has made for several days. The text of the statement was as follows:

"It is of the greatest importance that public opinion should have a clear and exact idea of the form and manner in which the Niagara Falls conferences are being held. I have said on various occasions that so serious a matter as is the settlment of an international question must be the subject matter of deep meditation and study.

"In consequence, the impatience, evinced by some persons, to know the result of the negotiations, is unwarranted, but I can assure you that those negotiations are progressing in a most favorable way.

"Inasmuch as within the last few days a report has been started that in the deliberations other influences than those of justice and patriotism have asserted themselves, I declare emphatically and categorically that the action of the three mediating powers and the conduct of their plenipotentiaries has been from the outset, and continues to be, spontaneous, noble, and free from all extraneous suggestion.

"The prudence of the Ambassador of Brazil and of the Ministers of Argentina and Chile, who preside over the peace negotiations in the name of their respective Governments, has been constantly made manifest, and this has been especially noticeable in the very form in which the mediation procedure has been organized, that is to say, in the form of conferences with the delegations of Mexico and the United States separately and before the united delegations in plenary session for reciprocal communication and discussion of their respective propositions.

"The statements which I have just made should satisfy the Mexican people and afford them complete assurance with respect to the rectitude and fairness of the methods adopted by the honorable mediators, whose mission it is to be solicitous both for the ending of the conflict and for the honor of the republic and its Government."

President Huerta is said by members of his entourage to have expressed himself in terms of hopefulness this morning in regard to the outcome of the mediation conference.

The day was one of rumors, and that probably was the reason why Esteva Ruiz, who had not received the press representatives for several days, talked to them tonight. In addition to the formal statement, Esteva Ruiz denied one rumor which had been circulated with the greatest persistence throughout the day. He denied that Francisco de la Barra, once Provisional President, had been summoned home from Paris by cabled orders.

Gen. Velasco who arrived from San Luis Potosi this morning, refused to talk beyond stating that the Potosi Legislature had granted him twelve days' leave of absence.

War Minister Blanquet said that Gen. Velasco's arrival was not connected with politics, and that he had come chiefly for the sake of his health. Gen. Blanquet denied that Colima had been captured by the rebels.

Japanese Minister Adatchi is known to be at Sayula, a small town in the State of Jalisco, and is expected to be able to resume his journey tomorrow.

you had and whether you were worried about it." I did not ask him whether he had a conference or not. He simply said: "You can tell Mr. Mellen I am not worrying, and he need not worry about me," and then I went back and told that to Mr. Mellen.

Q.—It is possible, then, that Mr. Morgan had been in conference with representatives of the Grand Trunk, and that you were not told of it? A.—Oh, perfectly, because I did not ask him the fact.

Mellen's Letter to District Attorney

Mr. Crim asked whether the letter to District Attorney Wise was sent the day on which it was written or not.

Mr. Ledyard answered that his recollection was that Mr. Mellen called in his stenographer and dictated the letter; that the stenographer wrote it out and brought in the draft.

"I think one or two corrections may have been made," he continued. "I think I was the one—I am not quite clear about this, and I am giving you my best recollection—who suggested the letter should not only be a letter to the District Attorney, asking that Mr. Mellen might be heard before the Grand Jury, but that it should itself request the District Attorney to lay the communication before the Grand Jury. I thought if the District Attorney complied with the request the Grand Jury might go over the head of the District Attorney and require Mr. Mellen to be allowed to appear. You ask me for my best recollection, and I think it would be that Mr. Mellen told me then that it was done and signed, and that he sent it down by messenger to the District Attorney. I think so. I could not swear to it, but that is my impression.

Q.—Do you know of any conferences before that letter was sent, and after it was sent, between Mr. Mellen and others, in regard to the propriety of sending this letter? A.—None, except the one at which I was present and about which I have testified.

Q.—It was possible there were conferences about which you knew nothing? A.—Oh, of course.

Q.—Did you have anything to do with Mr. Mellen's defense, as it were, after this letter was sent? A.—Neither before nor after nor at the time.

Q.—Did you make any further suggestions in regard to the Grand Trunk matter? A.—None.

Q.—Or as to the propriety of going before the Grand Jury? A.—None.

Q.—Or any further effort to get before the Grand Jury? A.—I think for several days after he would say to me he had not had any answer to his letter and did not know whether he would be heard or not. I know that not very long after the letter was sent by Mr. Mellen the proceedings before the Grand Jury began and terminated by his being indicted. I think in that interval he did express to me from time to time his wonder as to whether or not the request that he had made would be granted.

Q.—When he was indicted in this matter, did you have anything to do with his defense or advising him as to what should be done in regard to his defense? A.—No.

Q.—A plea in bar was filed with that indictment, was it not? A.—I really don't know, Mr. Crim. You ought to know, because I think you were representing Mr. Mellen as counsel.

Q.—Yes, I filed the plea in bar and was very much interested for the technical defense, did Ledyard. A.—That reminds me that I heard that some plea was interposed there. I did not know it was a plea in bar that had been filed, but heard that it was technical. I expressed myself to the effect that I did not think that was a wise thing to be done because I thought it might simply lead to the withdrawal of the indictment and the finding of another one that might be of a broader scope. I could not tell about the months or dates, but I think there was a continuation of the newspaper reports that the thing was before the Grand Jury.

Q.—Lurid rumors in the newspapers as to what would happen finally? A.—I had some talk with Mr. Mellen about those and about the lashing that appeared in the newspapers as to the character of the witnesses that the Grand Jury was said to be looking into, which indicated that the Government was seeking away back of the Grand Trunk incident, away back to the question of acquisition by the New Haven Road many years before.

Q.—On the theory of a general conspiracy to monopolize trade in New England? A.—Yes, and I went down to Washington and saw the Attorney General about it, and protested against that sort of action being had at that time.

Q.—And very properly, too, I think. A.—The Attorney General afterward stated to me that he did not think that should be done. I told him it might ruin the property, and the rumors that were going on at that time that for them to do anything that would augment the public clamor at that time was very dangerous.

Mr. Folk—Who was the Attorney General? A.—Mr. Wickersham. And I saw the President on the same subject, in Mr. Wickersham's presence.

Mr. Crim—From the time the letter was signed until the second indictment of Mr. Mellen, was there any discussion between you and Mr. Mellen or any other parties in regard to Mr. Mellen going before the Grand Jury, or as to this letter? A.—I remember none.

Q.—You do not know what his attitude was in regard to that letter at the date he wrote it? A.—Except for a few days he was expressing his wonder as to whether he would be allowed to appear or not.

Q.—In the meantime had not Mr. Morgan's health failed very rapidly during the Fall and early Winter of the Fall of 1912, and the early Winter of 1913? A.—I do not think so. As I recollect it, I do not think the evidences of this failing health were apparent until after he went to Europe, and I do not remember when he sailed.

Q.—Was not a subpoena that was issued for him dismissed on the ground of his ill-health? A.—I do not know it if it was. I never heard of it. I know that at one time he told me he had been subpoenaed, but that he had been told he need not appear until he was further required. But what ultimately became of the subpoena I never knew.

Q.—Mr. Ledyard, you knew both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Mellen. Did not Mr. Mellen have a profound appreciation for Mr. Morgan's intellect, his ability, and his kindness? A.—He always expressed himself in that way to me.

Q.—If information reached Mr. Mellen that Mr. Morgan was in very dangerous condition, don't you think he would manifest great sympathy for him about that time? A.—I should think that would be natural.

Question That Led Nowhere.

Mr. Crim then put to the witness a question which Mr. Ledyard appeared not to understand, and which remained unanswered.

"If," said Mr. Crim, "at any time after this letter was sent, Mr. Mellen said to his counsel or others that the letter may have been a mistake, but that if it would protect Mr. Morgan any he was willing to stand by it, would you say that was not true that Mr. Mellen made that statement?"

"You ask me if Mr. Mellen did make that statement—whether it was true he made that statement," returned Mr. Ledyard. "I cannot answer that."

"One moment; I will change that. I admit it is very cumbersome," said Mr. Crim. "If Mr. Mellen stated under oath that he did change his mind in regard to the propriety of sending that letter, but would stand by it because of his great sympathy, what he believed was the loyalty which he owed Mr. Morgan, would you say it was not true?"

Mr. Ledyard looked puzzled. "Are you asking me to be judge and jury, or jury on a question of fact on Mr. Mellen's oath, in some proceeding where he has not taken oath?" he demanded. "I do not quite understand what you are asking me about."

"I will withdraw the question then," said Mr. Crim.

Q.—Had there not been negotiations, Mr. Ledyard, for about six years between the Grand Trunk and the New Haven with respect to a traffic agreement. A.—I cannot answer that of my own knowledge, because I did not know. I was not present at any such negotiations. I knew many times that Mr. Mellen was good deal troubled about his relations with the Grand Trunk, and had been for a number of years past.

Q.—Mr. Ledyard, Gov. Folk hands me this record in regard to the Grand Trunk matters which may perhaps refresh your recollection. Its purports to be a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New England Navigation Company. (Handing a book to the witness.) A.—I see the record.

Q.—That would indicate in 1911— A.—It would indicate that in 1911 Mr. Mellen procured a committee to be appointed to consider the relations of this company with the New London & Northern.

Q.—Did you ever go through the correspondence and records of the New Haven? A.—And it appears I was not a member of that committee. But I am quite sure it never met and never acted. I have no recollection of it.

Mr. Crim repeated his question as to whether the witness ever had occasion to go through the correspondence and records of the New Haven in regard to this Grand Trunk matter.

"No, I have not. I don't know at all what they would disclose," answered Mr. Ledyard. "I went into Mr. Mellen's office one day and found Mr. Hays there. In former years I had known Mr. Hays quite well. He was then the President of the Grand Trunk Road. I found him and Mr. Mellen sitting there talking. They were discussing the question of the situation of differential rates in reference to the attitude that the Lackawanna was taking at that time. They went on and had a very friendly talk, and Mr. Mellen said something to Mr. Hays—he asked me to sit there a few minutes—and Mr. Mellen said something to Mr. Hays about the way Mr. Hays was persecuting all along the line, and why it was he was making such a war upon the New Haven.

"Mr. Hays said he was not doing that; that he did not care anything about the New Haven. All he wanted was to protect his Western lines; he did not care anything about New England, he said; he did not care anything about the situation in New England. He said that what he wanted was to come in; he did not care to have a differential line. If he could come in through the Niagara gateway and be taken care of there, he would just as soon come in with standard rates and would be perfectly satisfied with the whole situation. All he wanted of his hold in New England was the power it gave him, and if he could be put in the position where he could come in through the Niagara gateway and be taken care of there, he was perfectly satisfied and did not want anything more.

"Why," he said, 'Mr. Mellen, I would give you the New London & Northern.' Of course, I knew we could not take the New London & Northern, that the New Haven could not do it. But he said, 'I would give you the New London & Northern, and don't want it. I don't think I would want to give up the Central of Vermont, because I want to keep my access to Boston, but the New London & Northern I care nothing about. He told me he could get in through the Niagara gateway and have trackage rights over the West Shore or the New York Central to the New York, Ontario & Western, and come into New York terminals through the Ontario & Western.

Disavowed Hostility to New Haven.

"It was a pleasant talk and did not come to anything—it was not intended to come to anything, except the statement in a pleasant way of Mr. Hays's views; and he assured Mr. Mellen of his lack of hostility to the New Haven road.

"Mr. Mellen has often referred to that interview to me since, and he said he did not believe, if I had not been present to testify about it, that anybody would believe it occurred, because Mr. Mellen never saw Mr. Hays again. Mr. Hays had gone to Europe, and the first thing that was known was an announcement in the newspapers that the Grand Trunk people in New England, at the instigation of Mr. Hays, had authorized the building of a line from Palmer to Providence, by the Grand Trunk, in New Haven territory.

"That is the only thing I ever knew, and that was not a negotiation. However, that was the only thing at which I was ever present in which there was ever a representative of the Grand Trunk and of the New Haven, in which their situation was talked about."

Mr. Folk then took up the cross-examination.

Q.—You understand you appear here as a voluntary witness, unsworn? A.—That is not my fault.

Q.—And whatever you say may be used against you? A.—Oh, yes, sir. It can be used to any extent against me that anybody wants to.

Q.—So you are perfectly at liberty to refuse to answer any questions. A.—I shall refuse to answer nothing that is within my knowledge.

Q.—With that understanding, then, I will ask you some questions. Your relations with Mr. Morgan were quite intimate, were they not? A.—For many years.

Q.—You made a number of trips with him on his private yacht? A.—Yes. I used to be on his yacht a good deal. When he was Commodore of the New York Club I think I was Vice Commodore for several years, and I used to see a great deal of him in yachting matters. I was Commodore afterward for a few years myself.

Q.—You drew his will, did you not? A.—I drew his will, not as a professional service. I never charged him anything for it. I did it as a friendly act.

Q.—You were made one of the executors of the will? A.—I am one of the executors of the will.

Q.—Mr. Morgan was a man of great and aggressive ability? A.—Great ability, yes; aggressive, sometimes, and very contrary; very aggressive at other times. He was very changeable in that way.

Q.—When he desired to do a thing he had a habit of going right ahead without consulting any one else at times, did he not? A.—I should not say he had a habit of doing it. I have known him to do such things, and I have known him also to consult people. I think that is true in the same way of most people.

Q.—On one occasion he put you into a Steel underwriting without your knowledge and consent? A.—He told me he had used my name down as a participator in that underwriting.

Q.—And he had not informed you about it at all? A.—No. I never heard of it until I got the check from the firm.

Q.—You objected to it? A.—Yes, I objected to it and took it back to the firm, and they did not know anything about it, and did not do anything because Mr. Morgan had told them to put my name down as of the underwriters.

Q.—He overcame your objections? A.—No, he did not.

Q.—You said at first you would not accept the check, and then you did accept the check? A.—Because he fussed about it so much that I took the check, and gave it to a charity that Mr. Morgan was supporting in New York.

Q.—What did you care about how much he fussed? A.—Because he was my friend. Don't you ever have any friends that you fuss over?

Q.—I am asking you the question; you are the witness. A.—So are you.

Q.—I am not a witness; I am examining a witness. You appear here and volunteer to answer questions. A.—I will answer any proper question under the ruling of the Commissioner.

Q.—You say you acquiesced in Mr. Morgan's wishes because he was fussy about it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You did not care to offend him? A.—I was not afraid of offending him. I never was afraid to offend Mr. Taft, and opposed him in the New Haven board. I never had the slightest hesitation about it. Mr. Morgan was a dear friend of mine. He knew me thoroughly well, and I knew him thoroughly well, and I never had the slightest hesitation.

Q.—You would not oppose him enough to make him mad? A.—Oh, many times.

The New Haven Directors.

Here Mr. Folk drew from the witness a characterization of the entire membership of the New Haven board and the interests which they represented on it. Mr. Ledyard said that Mr. McRea of the Pennsylvania Road found it inconvenient to be on the board and had T. De Witt Cuyler put on to represent the Pennsylvania. H. McK. Twombly was there to represent the New York Central, Richard H. McCurdy the Mutual Life Insurance Company, Charles M. Pratt was there—not to represent the Standard Oil, the witness declared, but a very large amount of stock held for his father's estate; Lawrence Minot was there in his capacity of professional trustee—"the typical Boston trustee." The Connecticut Directors, making the number required by law to be on the board, Mr. Ledyard would not by any means call "dummies." At Mr. Folk's suggestion Mr. Ledyard described them in detail with now and then picturesque touches. Prof. George J. Brush of New Haven, he said, was "the most positive and emphatic old gentleman you ever heard of." Of Mr. Billard he said he knew nothing at all and barely got acquainted with him.

Q.—These Directors would get a twenty-dollar gold piece from the New Haven board meeting and a twenty-dollar gold piece from the Navigation Company meeting, and a twenty-dollar gold piece from the meeting of each of these other Boards of Directors, and some of them would get a number of twenty-dollar gold pieces during the course of the day, would they not? A.—I really do not know how many. The records will show what the meetings were, and the records of the company, which the examiners have in their possession, will show.

Q.—Every meeting of the Directors of the New Haven Railroad, which includes those of the Navigation Company, cost the New Haven Railroad about a thousand dollars, did it not? A.—I should not think it would.

Q.—And some of them served on the board of other subsidiaries, and it might be as much as $1,500 or $2,000. Then they always had a banquet after each meeting, did they not? A.—I know that some of the Directors, and I think most of those who came from out of town had a dinner. I never went to the banquet. They dined together, and they had at that dinner some of the New Haven officials with them, with whom they would confer and talk over the affairs of the railroad, but I don't know. I never attended one.

Q.—Would you say that the Board of Directors of the New Haven Railroad was too large? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why was it too large? A.—It was too large, because you never can get the most effective work done with a large body of men of that kind. I do not think any Board of Directors should be more than a certain manageable number of men. By "manageable" I mean men who take an interest in the property and who are few enough in number to always have a quorum present and have all of them thoroughly in touch with the affairs of the company. I think the Board of Directors of the New Haven Railroad is entirely too large. I do not think that a railroad company is as effectively served by a larger board as it is by a board of perhaps not exceeding a dozen or thirteen men.

Q.—Do you remember whether the Secretary of the New Haven Board reported the transactions as they were, or were they written up after the meeting adjourned? A.—No; they were written up after the meeting adjourned, I assume, except in those cases where there was some formal resolution which had been prepared in advance. Where no formal resolution had been prepared in advance or filed, after a disposition of the matter by the board it would be handed to the Secretary, and I have seen him make a little minute on the edge of it. I assume it was to indicate a little memorandum to himself of what he should record when the thing should be written out afterward.

Q.—Well, you consider the minutes of the Board of Directors' meeting regarding the Billard transaction as untrue, do you? A.—I have testified that the second part of it—

Q.—The second part is false? A.—The second part did not, according to my recollection, occur at any meeting at which I was present.

Q.—Well, will you say it is false? A.—I have said all I can say about it. That, according to my very clear recollection, what is transcribed there as to what happened there did not happen.

Mr. Ledyard was subjected to long and sharp questioning concerning the Billard transaction in Boston & Maine stock, but the witness could only reply that he could get no light from Mr. Mellen's testimony or Mr. Billard's statement that the New Haven or Mr. Billard had purchased this stock or that the New Haven had aided Mr. Billard in financing it.

Q.—You did not know of this $2,000,000 loan by the navigation company to Mr. Billard? A.—I don't know of any such loan now. What loan of $2,000,000 to Mr. Billard?

Q.—Two million dollars loaned by the navigation company to Mr. Billard. I merely asked you if you know of it? A.—I knew nothing. I never was present at any meeting that authorized any such thing—never to my knowledge. Where was that authorized?

Q.—I am asking you—by the navigation company. A.—I have not any copy of the Navigation Company minutes.

Q.—It seems that on Sept. 18, 1909, Messrs. Morgan, Rockefeller, Ledyard, Robertson, and the general counsel of the company, Mr. Robbins, were appointed as a committee on the question of purchasing the gold notes of the Billard Company. A.—That is true. I have seen that upon the record. But that committee never, never took any action, and you will find in a subsequent record that it was discharged. I never received any notice of any meeting of the committee and never attended any.

Mr. Cromwell—We will show you the checks in a moment.

Mr. Ledyard—I know nothing about checks.

Mr. Folk—For the $2,000,000.

Mr. Ledyard—May I ask for the authority you have of a loan to Mr. Billard? I know of none. My conviction is I never have had any knowledge of it. If there is any record here that shows I ever voted for a loan to Mr. Billard I would like to see it.

Copy of Books Produced.

Mr. Folk produced a copy made from the books of the New England Navigation Company, which showed that on Oct. 7, 1909, twenty notes of the Billard Company, Nos. 1 to 20, were purchased and $2,000,000 cash was paid, but Mr. Ledyard said he knew nothing about the transaction or about the account books of the New Haven Road—that he never had seen them.

Q.—You were on the board at that time, and as far as you know you were kept in ignorance of that transaction? A.—I never knew of it. I take it that I should have remembered such a transaction if I had ever been called upon to vote for it. If it is authorized in any proceeding of the board, either of the Navigation Company or the New Haven, it would be in the records.

Q.—We have a statement showing the payment of $2,000,000, and we have the books of the New England Navigation Company showing the $2,000,000 cash paid. What we should like to find out ourselves is by what authority that was paid. A.—I cannot help you; I don't know.

Q.—I show you checks we were referring to a little while ago of the New England Navigation Company, Nos. 1 to 20, inclusive, for a million, and I ask you if you know anything about those checks? A.—No. I know nothing about them, except I think I recognize the signature of Mr. Kochersperger and Mr. May, the Vice President and Treasurer.

Q.—Can you explain why two checks of $1,000,000 each should be issued to Mr. Billard by the Navigation Company, for which you were a Director, without your knowledge? A.—I don't know. So far as my recollection goes, I know nothing about it.

Q.—You were a Director of the Navigation Company in 1911 borrowed more than $2,000,000 from the New Haven, in order to pay dividends to the New Haven? A.—I may have known that, but not now. If I did, it was when the Navigation Company was earning enough to pay that dividend.

Q.—Did you know that the Navigation Company had borrowed more than $2,000,000 from the New Haven in order to pay a dividend to the New Haven? A.—I do not believe I did in 1912, because, as I told you, I was in Europe most of that year.

Mr. Cromwell—In the minutes here this morning referring to the Grand Trunk matter, showing that you were appointed on a committee to consider the relations of the New London Northern Road, I believe you said you did not recall that? A.—No, I never served on any such committee, and I have no idea it ever held any meeting. No question was ever brought before it.

Q.—You never represented Mr. Mellen in the Grand Trunk matter? A.—Represented him?

Q.—Yes. A.—What do you mean?

Q.—As attorney. A.—No.

Q.—You went to see Attorney General Wickersham in regard to that case? A.—I did.

Q.—Whom did you represent? A.—I did not go to see him about the Grand Trunk matter.

Q.—Did you go to see President Taft about that matter? A.—Not about the Grand Trunk matter. I went to see President Taft, and Mr. Wickersham was present during my interview with President Taft.

Commissioner Daniels—I want to ask you Mr. Ledyard, this one question: Do you of your own knowledge know whether the money accruing to Mr. Billard by reason of his dealings with these stocks terminated with Mr. Billard, or passed through him as a conduit to others?

Mr. Ledyard—I have not the slightest idea. I never knew whether Mr. Mellen owned the stock for his own account or whether he had partners in his enterprise or not. I was an entire stranger to the matter.

This concluded Mr. Ledyard's examination.

Other Witnesses Heard.

Hoffman Miller appeared to submit to the commission a statement by his father, a Director of the New Haven, living at Morristown, N. J., and unable on account of very advanced age to appear to testify. Mr. Miller's statement was verified and sworn to, and the commission ruled to receive it subject to a decision later to send to Morristown and take Mr. Miller's deposition.

Mr. Hines, as attorney for the various Directors, brought before the commission several witnesses, among them Thomas De Witt Cuyler of Philadelphia, Mr. Tomlinson, auditor of the New Haven, and Mr. Clark, the Secretary of the Board of Directors of the New Haven, to identify records and get into the record data in regard to various matters testified to heretofore.

Mr. Hines presented a copy of the minutes of the New Haven board, dated Jan. 7, 1907, in regard to the purchase of the Westchester Road, at which a letter from Oakleigh Thorne was presented, showing all the details of the purchase, and giving the information which Mr. Mellen in his testimony said he had not received from Mr. Morgan, a circumstance which aroused the surprise and indignation not only of Mr. Mellen himself, but of Mr. Skinner, Mr. Elton, and other Directors.

At one time Commissioner McChord and Commissioner Daniels, who sat with him today, seriously contemplated holding an all night session if necessary to conclude the investigation tomorrow, but it was finally decided that only two or three more witnesses should be heard and that the inquiry could be finished at tomorrow's session.

HIGHER FARES, FEWER TRAINS

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 5.—When they begin their Summer time tables next Sunday, the New Haven lines will be operating 4,500 fewer passenger train miles each day than they were a year ago. This curtailment is part of a plan to save $1,000,000 a year. Fares will be increased to assist in this saving.

The train mileage of the New Haven lines has been about 50,000 a day, and the elimination of service is spread over Massachusetts, New York, Connecticut, and Rhode Island.

The schedules have called for the operation of about 2,036 trains a day. Howard Elliott's management has discovered that 190 trains, covering 3,800 train miles of service a day, earn less than forty cents a train mile, and that 163 trains, doing 3,350 miles a day, earn less than fifty cents a mile. The actual cost of fuel and the wages of the train crews exceed a half dollar a mile. In railroad circles it is conceded that unless a train earns more than $1 a mile it is a losing proposition.

The New Haven is putting into effect this week its higher rates of fare on the main line. On a through trip between New York and Boston these amount to twenty-five cents. It is expected that these increases will yield $500,000 to $800,000 more yearly revenue.

GIRL RIVALS STEEPLEJACKS.

'MONA LISA' THIEF GETS A YEAR IN JAIL

DID NOT 'SHIVER' AT THEFT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, June 5.—"Didn't you shiver and shake when you were unhooking 'Mona Lisa?'" asked one of the Florentine Judges today, questioning Perugia at his trial for the theft of the painting.

"Good bless you! no," he replied, "why should I shiver and shake when I was intent on bringing back home to my countrymen one of the treasures robbed from our Italian museums? In a Paris motion picture theatre I saw Francis I. heading a procession with wagonloads of choice works of art which his brigands had purloined from Italy."

The lenient jury allowed the plea of extenuating circumstances and, instead of acquiescing in the public prosecutor's demand for three years' imprisonment, gave a verdict of a year and fifteen days.

Perugia is still convinced that he has played a patriotic part, and is proud of having ushered in a new era of popularity for "La Gioconda." He listened to his sentence with a facial expression somewhat akin to "Mona Lisa's" enigmatic smile.

YIELDS ALL TO BERNHARDT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 5.—Edmond Rostand has sent the following telegram to the attorney of Sarah Bernhardt, who is bringing an action to prevent the cinematographic reproduction of his play "l'Aiglon," of which she holds the acting rights:

"I have the honor to inform you that I would rather cut off my right hand than appoint a lawyer against Mme. Bernhardt. No human force could oblige me to defend myself against her. Before all others I would uphold the principle which concerns all my confreres, but before her I bow, as they all would do. I declare that what she wishes is always well.

"I abandon to her, if this compensation is satisfactory to her lawyer, the whole of my rights for these cinematograph performances which distress her, and I kiss with respect and gratitude her fingers, between which a writ retains for me the grace of a lily."

The Times this morning reproduces comments from American, Canadian, French, and German newspapers on the excesses of the militants and the inability of the Government to cope with them. Commenting editorially on these expressions of opinion from other countries, it says: "It is evident that our reputation for sanity and practical common sense is at stake and that if we are unable to cope with this outbreak of domestic violence and unreason, our reputation will be lowered in the eyes of the world."

Dealing with the suggestion contained in a recent NEW YORK TIMES editorial, that the militants should be allowed to starve themselves in prison if they chose to do it, The Times says:

"This is a common sense view and one that is generally indorsed by public opinion. The reason why it cannot be acted on is that the prison authorities are legally liable for the lives of those in their charge, and are bound to do everything in their power to keep them alive. The remedy seems to be a short act of Parliament, relieving them of responsibility for persons who refuse to take food.

"This would get rid of the forcible feeding, which is an odious expedient, only necessitated by the present law, and would place the responsibility entirely on the prisoner. It obviates all violence and is not an attack on these misguided women, but on the contrary, leaves them free to do as they choose.

"While the law remains as it is, they have the key of the gaol in their pockets and are free to commit any crime, even to murder, with the certainty that by refusing food they can procure their release. It is an absurd position and ought to be ended."

Another Church Burned.

LONDON, June 5.—The campaign of arson and attempts at destruction of property by means of bombs was continued today by the militant suffragettes. Breadsall Church, a historic edifice near Derby, was burned to the ground in the early morning, and during the day an amateurish bomb was found in Dudhope Castle, near Dundee, which was once occupied by the famous Graham of Claverhouse. Fortunately, however, the fuse of the bomb had been extinguished by the wind.

Sylvia Pankhurst, borne to the platform on an invalid chair, made another appearance tonight at a suffrage meeting in Canning Town and repeated her threat that she would lie on the steps of the House of Commons without food or water until Premier Asquith consented to receive a deputation of her followers.

While the militant suffragettes are pursuing a campaign which in the opinion of most people tends only to defer the attainment of their wishes, the non-militant section has organized and is carrying out a constitutional political programme of peculiar annoyance and embarrassment to the Government. The National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies, whose Executive Committee embraces a large number of influential persons, including Mrs. Henry Fawcett, Lady Francis Balfour, the Countess of Aberdeen, Lady Brassey, Lord Courtney, and Lord Lytton, has issued a report showing that it is spending funds freely at by-elections in support of Labor Party candidates and against the official Liberal candidate.

The policy of the National Union is to do its utmost to overthrow the Asquith Government, the entire onus for the defeat of the woman suffrage bills being placed upon the Premier, and at the same time to help the Labor Party, which is the only party supporting the women's cause. This policy will greatly strengthen the Laborites in promoting their three-cornered contests, and the avoidance of such triangular candidatures at the next election is believed to be the Government's only chance of a return to power.

Tonight's Court in Buckingham Palace was not disturbed by any suffragette demonstration.

The recent discourtesies shown by militant suffragettes to the King and the burning down of many churches have inflamed public opinion to a remarkable degree. The British people have been still further incensed by what is regarded as the well-grounded belief that much of the work of destruction is done by hired hands, well paid for their work out of the bulging coffers of the Women's Social and Political Union. Cases have even been reported of women leaving other employment in order to join the militants, not from love of the cause, but because the pay was better.

On several recent occasions Police Magistrates have told suffragette prisoners that if they had not been protected by the police they would almost certainly have suffered at the hands of the irate public, and the ugly temper shown by the crowd at recent militant demonstrations seems to support this view.

Much lucrative American tourist business is being lost by London hotel and store keepers because of the suffragette raids upon the public museums and art galleries. Many disappointed visitors from across the Atlantic are packing their trunks and departing for the Continent.

In consequence of militant suffragette attacks, churches in many parts of the country are being closed, except for the usual Sunday service. A sample of the notices posted by the rectors is as follows:

"Owing to dastardly outrages by frenzied criminals who have no regard for God or man, this church will be closed except during the hours of divine service."

The Earl of Lytton today replies to the church newspaper which appealed to the suffragettes for a "truce of God" as follows:

"There is only one way in which this deplorable movement can be ended, and that is by the introduction by the Government of a woman's suffrage bill. On all matters connected with their policy the women are absolutely deaf to suggestions or advice."

John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, today declined a request made by Irish woman suffragists that he receive a deputation on the subject of the inclusion of women as electors for the Irish Parliament. Mr. Redmond pointed out that previous deputations of this nature had caused only unpleasantness and reiterated the view that Ireland under Home Rule must decide for herself whether she wanted women voters.

PANAMA DEPORTS GUNMEN.

French Apaches Sent Out of Country—Secretary Bishop Returning.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, June 5.—The Panama Government is continuing its clean-up of undesirable French Apaches. Another batch of eleven gunmen from the red-light district was deported to Curaçoa yesterday. Many murders have taken place lately among the Rizal clans, and this and the activity of white slavers are given as reasons for the step.

Joseph Bucklin Bishop, Secretary of the Canal Commission since 1905, sails with his family for New York on July 1. He will supervise installation of the canal exhibit at the San Francisco Fair, at the expiration of which his resignation from the office of Secretary will become effective.

Merchants of Colon are taking steps to have the Government declare Colon a free port, as they say that the city is threatened with a business crisis even worse than that which followed the close of the French canal days. People are said to be leaving Colon by the hundreds, as they can find no work there.

GERMAN SOCIALIST COMING.

Dr. Ludwig Frank to Lecture Here This Fall.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 5.—Germany's most brilliant Social Democrat, Dr. Ludwig Frank, a lawyer, who represents Mannheim in the Reichstag, has accepted the invitation of the German branch of the American Socialist Party to deliver a series of public addresses in the United States in August, September, and October. Dr. Frank is 40 years old and is considered by many the eventual successor of August Bebel in the leadership of Germany's most important political party.

Dr. Frank is identified with the moderate wing of the party, which is gradually becoming ascendant.

A TITIAN DISCOVERED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—According to W. M. Power, the well-known picture restorer, who is also a member of the National Art Fun Committee, another Titian has been discovered. It belongs to a Shropshire gentleman, who bought it in Australia in 1884 at a fair price.

Mr. Power, who has been intrusted with the task of restoring the picture, pronounces it to be a portrait of Titian by himself at the age of 84. He estimates its cash value at anything up to $500,000.

German Cruiser to Santo Domingo.

BUYERS BID BRISKLY FOR FOULC BOOKS

Paris Collection Brings $33,230 at Third Day's Sale After Animated Offers.

GO CHIEFLY TO DEALERS

Sale Ends Today, When Engravings and Drawings Will Go Under the Hammer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 5.—The third day of the sale of the Foulc collection brought larger crowds than ever to the salesrooms in the Hotel Drouot. The bidding was more animated than on either of the preceding days, and the sale ended an hour later than usual. The buyers today were mainly professional, many dealers from Brussels, Berlin, and London being in attendance. The total amount realized today was $33,230.

Among the items for which high prices were paid were the following:

The works of François de Cuvillies, the elder and the younger, published in Munich and Paris in the middle of the eighteenth century, in two volumes, one in the original and one in more recent binding, the first containing 350 and the second 208 plates; sold for $1,860.

Works of various styles designed by Jean-Baptiste Huet, and engraved by Demarteau; published in Paris about 1780; a set of forty-eight plates, chiefly designs for tapestries; sold for $1,750.

Works of J. Charles Delafosse, published in Paris by Chéreau and Daumont in 1768; a collection of all the varied branches of this artist's work, with two title pages and 421 plates; sale price, $1,660.

"French Architecture: a Collection of Plans, Elevations, Cuts, and Views of the Churches, Palaces, and Private Houses of Paris, and the Principal Country Houses of the Environs"; published by Mariette in Paris in 1727 in three volumes; sold for $1,500.

Works of J. de la Joue, published in Paris by Huquier, with 157 plates, illustrating almost the entire work of the artist; sold for $1,400.

"First Book of Selections," by Gille Marie Oppenord; published by Huquier at Paris; a collection otherwise known as the "Moyen Oppenord"; very rare; seventy-two plates; sold for $1,160.

"French Architecture: a Collection of Plans and Elevations of the Principal Buildings of Paris and the Surrounding Country, with Descriptions"; by J. F. Blondel; published in Paris by Jombert, 1752-56; sale price, $1,160.

Various works of Lalonde, containing a great number of designs for interior decorations, with examples of the best furniture of the age; published by Chéreau in Paris about 1780; 234 plates; $1,060.

Works of Juste Aurele Meissonier, painter, sculptor, architect, and designer of the private apartments of Louis XV.; published by Huquier in Paris about 1730; seventy-two plates; $1,000.

The sale will end tomorrow, when the engravings and drawings will be sold.

ALFRED HERTZ MARRIED.

Metropolitan Conductor's Bride a Viennese Concert Singer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 5.—Alfred Hertz, the German conductor of the Metropolitan Opera, who recently arrived in Germany, has just been quietly married in this country to a young and beautiful Viennese concert singer. Mr. and Mrs. Hertz are spending their honeymoon at a suburban hotel on the shores of Wannsee, near Potsdam, in the hope of escaping the attentions of their many friends in Berlin.

Mrs. Hertz, who speaks English as fluently as an American woman, is a tall brunette, about 28 years of age. The couple planned to keep their marriage more or less secret until their arrival in America in August.

Rumors recently in circulation that Herr Hertz is to be succeeded by Felix Weingartner as German conductor at the Metropolitan are said, for the present at least, to be entirely without foundation.

LEOPARD KILLS A MOTORIST.

Capt. Kelsey, Automobiling Through Africa, Dies from Wounds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 6.—An attempt at a motor journey through Africa from the Cape to Cairo has come to a tragic end through the death of the leader of the expedition, Capt. Kelsey.

A special correspondent of The Daily Telegraph accompanying the expedition, in a message via Broken Hill, says that Capt. Kelsey died near Serenje under an anaesthetic while being surgically treated for injuries received while leopard hunting.

TWO FRENCH AIRMEN KILLED

Their Aeroplane Falls Half a Mile After an Explosion.

DIJON, France, June 5.—Two French Army aviators, Lieut. Gironne and Sapper Rioux, were killed today while flying near here.

Peasants watching an aeroplane which had risen from the military aviation station and was flying swiftly at an altitude of half a mile over the forest of Casquette, heard an explosion and saw a burst of flame. A few moments later the fragments of the aeroplane to which the aviators were strapped, fell among the trees, and the bodies of the men were found horribly burned and mutilated.

AMERICANS AT COURT.

Five Presented Last Night—Meredith's Granddaughter a Debutante.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—At to-night's Court—the last of the season—Mrs. Page presented Mrs. E. N. House of New York, Mrs. Hugh Wallace of Washington, Miss Olga Kelly of Baltimore, and Miss Evelyn Marshall of New York. Mrs. Charles W. Kirkby, daughter of the late Arthur B. Gibbs of New York, was presented by her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Fenton.

Miss Kelly wore white satin with a white chiffon train, with silver lace and pearl trimming.

Mrs. House wore a Nile-green chiffon gown, embroidered with pearls and rhinestones, with a tulle bodice. The corsage bouquet was lilacs and orchids and the train of cream lace, lined with green tissue and bordered with tulle ruching.

Mrs. Wallace wore white satin charmeuse, draped with lace, embroidered with pearls and rhinestones, and a bodice of tulle and silver gauze, with a corsage motif of pearls and rhinestones. The train was of lace, lined with satin and attached to the shoulders by ornaments in brilliants.

Among the numerous débutantes was the young granddaughter of the late George Meredith, Miss Joan Meredith Sturgis, whose diaphanous gauze frock was sprinkled with crystal dewdrops. She was presented by her mother, Mrs. Henry Sturgis, who was attired in silver brocade, with a Brussels lace train.

MRS. SCHOONMAKER SUES.

Raid on Apartment Figures in Action Meant to be Kept Secret.

The trial of Mrs. Grace Llewellyn Eaton Schoonmaker's suit for divorce against Frank Laying Schoonmaker, was begun before Justice Giegerich in the Supreme Court yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Schoonmaker were married at the Collegiate Church in January, 1905. Their wedding was a social affair of magnitude. After their marriage they became active in society and were well known among the younger set.

Mr. Schoonmaker was a member of several clubs and he was noted for the large dinners he frequently gave and for the vivacity of them. He was connected at one time with the brokerage firm of Vernon C. Brown & Co. and was reputed to be a man of large means. Mrs. Schoonmaker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Eaton, who are wealthy and are prominent in society.

Every effort was made to keep the suit secret. The papers were filed in the County Clerk's office almost at the closing hour, and every effort to procure information concerning the case was repulsed. After the filing of the papers as well as before there was hope that the matter would be adjusted without bringing it into open court.

The co-respondent named in the complaint was Miss Marie Merwin, who was said from time to time to be a young woman of wealth. Walter Eaton, a brother of Mrs. Schoonmaker, and Felix D. Unger, a private detective, told the story that led to the filing of the suit. They worked together to verify the reports that had reached Mrs. Schoonmaker about Mr. Schoonmaker's conduct with Miss Merwin. Unger said that on March 10 Mr. Schoonmaker was found at 55 East Fifty-sixth Street. Unger and Mr. Eaton went to the third floor and waited until 11 o'clock when all the lights in the apartment were out. Then Mr. Eaton said to the detective that he could go ahead, and Unger rapped on the door. This was the way Unger told the story of what happened:

"I knocked three times, and there was no answer, and so I knocked again. A lady's voice wanted to know what it was, and I said I had a message. She wanted to know who it was from and I said, 'Merwin.' She opened the door a little and put out her hand and I pushed the door open and went right in."

Unger said that it was Miss Merwin who opened the door and she cried out, "Oh, Frank!" in a loud voice, and repeated it when it seemed to meet with no response. Unger found the electric light button and threw the apartment into a flood of light. He said Mr. Schoonmaker was lying on a lounge and seemed to be asleep. Mr. Eaton pointed at him and told Unger: "That is my brother-in-law." But Mr. Schoonmaker wasn't disturbed. He just opened his eyes dreamily, and, having sensed what was going on, closed them again, and apparently went to sleep, according to the detective. Unger said that he got a good look at Miss Merwin, so that he would know her again, and that then he and Mr. Eaton went away.

Miss Bertha Johnson testified that she was an investigator and had engaged an apartment in the East Fifty-sixth Street house to watch Mr. Schoonmaker and Miss Merwin. She described Miss Merwin as a blonde, about 27 years old, and of medium size. She testified that Mr. Schoonmaker and Miss Merwin frequently went riding about in a taxicab, and that long boxes of flowers often were delivered at the apartment for her.

Eva Fisher, another investigator, also testified that she watched the doings of Mr. Schoonmaker and Miss Merwin, and then the trial was adjourned until Monday.

Queen Eleanora Coming in the Fall.

Clayton Rockhill, Honorary Consul General for Bulgaria, received yesterday a cable from William Caspar, who was over here recently to make arrangements for the visit of the Queen of Bulgaria to this country, which said that Queen Eleanora had decided definitely to start for the United States in the Fall, and that she would sail from the other side about Oct. 15. Mr. Caspar is in Sofia.

ELECTRICITY DIRECT FROM COAL--EDISON

New Process Will Eliminate Boiler, Engine, and Dynamo, Says Famous Inventor.

BIG REDUCTION IN COST

Ten Years' More Work to Perfect Methods—Great Results Expected from Light Storage Battery.

Thomas A. Edison predicted yesterday that before many years had passed electricity would be derived directly from burning coal for commercial purposes. More than 100 of the foremost authorities on electricity in this country had been working on various processes for achieving this result, he said, and success was at last an absolute certainty.

"It will require ten or fifteen years more work—it has taken nearly a hundred years to reach the point we have now attained," Mr. Edison said.

He was seen in his laboratory at Lakeside Avenue and Valley Road, West Orange, N. J., by a TIMES reporter after he had finished his afternoon experiments with a light battery for automobiles, on which he has been working a long time. Asked if he was devoting his personal attention to the problem of obtaining electricity from coal, the solution of which, it is asserted, will make it possible to produce electricity at a fraction of the present cost, Mr. Edison said he was interested only from a scientific viewpoint.

"I am getting to be an old man," he said, "and I am afraid it will remain for others to give industry this new method. But it's a certainty, that's the important thing, and no man living can estimate how vastly it will affect the commercial use of electricity in the future."

The new method, it was explained, would ultimately eliminate boiler, engine, and dynamo in the transformation of the heat produced by the burning of coal into electrical power. By the present process of making electricity, in which these three middle processes must be used, approximately 90 per cent. of the original power is lost through the boiler, 10 per cent. of this is lost through the engine, and only 90 per cent. of the engine power is finally converted into kilowatts. More than four-fifths of the original power is lost through the intricate process, and, whereas one pound of good coal should produce four kilowatts for an hour, or five and a half horse power, only three-fourths of a kilowatt hour is derived from it.

It is on the principle of the thermopile, a thermoelectric battery which has been long used to detect slight variations in heat, that most of the scientists are basing their experiments at present. By this means a slight electric current is generated when the junction of a circuit of two wires of different metals is heated. The small amount of current produced is not sufficient to light an electric bulb, but can be readily detected by a galvanometer. The electricity is produced, it was explained yesterday at the Edison laboratory, by the rapid movement of the tiny molecules of each metal when heated. A German inventor, Johannes Marschall of Dresden, has recently patented a modification of the principle which he believes will be of commercial value. It consists of a large furnace containing a series of thermopiles made of heat-resisting metals, and is said to deliver a lighting current for a fuel cost slightly lower than that under the method in general use. Mr. Edison discussed Marschall's furnace briefly yesterday afternoon.

"It is not practical for commercial purposes," he said, "but indicates that the solution to the great problem is being sought among scientists the world over. By his method, however, only 1 per cent. of the power of the coal can be converted into electricity. A number of Americans are working on methods somewhat different from this and are obtaining gratifying results. Already we have succeeded in converting between 2 and 3 per cent. of the coal power into electricity."

When asked if it was possible to estimate the percentage of power which would be saved, Mr. Edison said that that could not be done at present. When the new process has been perfected to the extent that more than 20 per cent. of the coal power can be made use of, will be equal to the present process and the equipment required for generating electricity will be insignificant compared to the present equipment.

"The possibilities are boundless," he said. "I can't anticipate them. I don't know much about electricity—nobody does. We know only one millionth of all there is to be known about it."

A few of those who have made a close study of the subject say that when the new process has been developed to a sufficient degree it will be possible to propel ocean liners by electricity, thereby saving the present great waste of power necessary where boilers and engines are used, and making it possible for liners to travel with a much smaller tonnage of coal.

While Mr. Edison considered the ultimate uses of the new process more or less as conjecture, at present, and believed that no conjecture could do them justice, he spoke more confidently of the light storage battery he has spent so many years upon.

"I have found a method of making storage batteries of just half the weight of those in general use," he said, "and am now working as hard as I can to reduce this weight. It has been said that the light storage battery will make possible the operation of aeroplanes by electricity. That is impossible. Aeroplanes will never be operated by electricity. The light storage battery, however, will make it possible to build a light electric automobile which can carry a great deal of power and go long distances without being recharged. That is the sole mission of such a battery, and it will not be long before we will have light electric automobiles that everybody can afford and anybody can handle."

One of the foremen of his laboratory said that Mr. Edison had been working unusually hard on his storage battery lately, and had been sleeping with the irregularity for which he is noted. Although in his sixty-eighth year, Mr. Edison appeared to be in excellent health. When asked if he would take a vacation this year he replied:

"I have been taking a vacation ever since I returned from my last 'rest.' There's no better or more healthful vacation imaginable than hard work and lots of it; the only trouble is that most people don't know it. They've never tried to scheme." He said, however, that he would spend some time in Florida next Winter, and that, with his family, he would take a day off to attend the third annual field day of the employes of the various Edison plants at Olympic Park, Newark, on June 25. The laboratory and other plants will be closed on that day.

were crowded and the street full of traffic.

John W. Armstrong of 478 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, a cash clerk employed by the can company since 1910, and Joseph Bonnaviat, a porter and bank messenger employed since 1903, were returning to the office with a small metal-lined leather satchel containing the weekly pay roll of the factory, amounting to $2,700, which they had brought from the New York County National Bank at Eighth Avenue and Fourteenth Street, a block and a half east of the company's office. Bonnaviat was carrying the satchel and Armstrong was walking beside him as a guard.

Beaten with Blackjacks.

Suddenly the two were set upon, just at the entrance of the building, by two men from behind. Neither caught a glimpse of his assailant. Armstrong was the first to go down, felled by a blow from a blackjack on the back of his head. Bonnaviat, who is 39 years old, was likewise struck with a blackjack on the head, and threw up the bag to protect himself. Two more blows were rained on him, however, and the satchel was snatched from his hands.

As Bonnaviat fell, with three deep cuts on his head, the two robbers ran to the curb, threw the stolen satchel into the rear of a dark-gray automobile, that seemed to be creeping up along the curb, waiting for them, and then jumping in themselves, shouted to the chauffeur to speed away.

Bonnaviat and Armstrong struggled to their feet just in time to see the car dart off. P. H. Anderson, a clerk in the can company office, whose desk was beside a front window on the ground floor, rushed to the street and was the first to give chase. He saw the auto turn north at Tenth Avenue, and in a few seconds lost it in the maze of traffic.

Within five minutes after the attack the police had been notified, and Detective Lieut. Rein, with Detectives Dennison and Scanlon, attached to the West Twentieth Street Police Station, were at the scene of the hold-up. There Dr. Wilbur Crutchley of 335 West Fourteenth Street was sewing up the gashes in Bonnaviat's head and treating Armstrong, who was suffering from shock.

Get Number of Car.

Jonh Smith of 196 Avenue A, a motorman on a passing Fourteenth Street trolley car at the time of the hold-up, and Michael Landau of 55 First Avenue, whom he was breaking in as a helper, were able to give the detectives a good working clue. They said they had seen the escaping car, which drove on the track right in front of the trolley car in its effort to get away, and both had noted the number of the automobile.

According to the police, the number seen by Smith and Landau was 42,126 New York. A little later a passerby telephoned in to Police Headquarters the same number. The clerk, Anderson, and Miss Emma Schroeder, another employe of the can company, could only recall that the car was dark.

That number, the police ascertained, belonged to a seven-passenger Roché-Schneider touring car owned by Charles Pace, a dealer in automobile tires at 1,947 Lexington Avenue.

Pace, when questioned by detectives, said the car in question was out of his shop, having been taken out between 7:30 and 8 o'clock that morning by Frederick Kelly. Kelly, he said, had first been known to him as a driver of an auto truck, and had reappeared at his shop three days before. According to Pace, Kelly pointed to the Roché-Schneider car there and said:

"That's a nice car. What are you going to do with it?"

When Pace answered that he did not know what use he would make of it, Kelly, he said, suggested:

"I can make money with it for you, if you let me drive it for you. I have a chauffeur's license, and we can go fifty-fifty on the expenses and earnings."

To this proposition, Pace said, he agreed. Kelly, he informed the police, told him on Thursday night that he would have a good job for the car yesterday, since he always took a private family out for a drive and a few drinks in Westchester on Thursdays, and that he expected to get $15 for the job. He took out the car in the morning, promising to be back by noon. He had not returned.

A careful search was made by the police in all the known haunts of Kelly. They recalled that he had been arrested on Nov. 6, 1913, and fined $2 for driving a car without lights, but beyond that they could find no record of an arrest or conviction. The police had been watching, however, for Kelly for the last three or four weeks, in connection with an automobile hold-up which, they had learned, was set for Friday of last week. But Kelly left the place where he was working, and was lost sight of by the police, and the hold-up failed to materialize. Nevertheless, as soon as Inspector Faurot found that the license number seen by three different witnesses led to this particular man, he was sure Kelly had had a part in the hold-up.

Chauffeur Arrested.

At 4:05 P. M. Detective White of the Morrisania Police Station arrested Kelly as he emerged from the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Annie Smith, 876 Jackson Avenue, and was about to step into Pace's car, which was waiting on the street in front of the house. Kelly was at once taken to Police Headquarters and examined by Second Deputy Commissioner Rubin and Inspector Faurot.

He is a tall, thin man of 33 years, fair haired, and wearing glasses. He at first denied stoutly that he had had any part in the Fourteenth Street hold-up, or that his car had figured in it. He insisted that he could account for every hour of the time from the moment he left Pace's shop till the moment of his arrest.

"I feel sure that we have got the right man," said Inspector Faurot after the first examination. "We have knocked his alibi sky-high, and got most damaging admissions against him from his boss, Pace. We had a line on Kelly and his gang for three or four weeks, and he fits just such a job.

"His story is contradicted in several points by his own witnesses. He says he left his boss's garage at 8:30, whereas Pace says it was between 7:30 and 8 o'clock.

"Then, he says, he went to his home in the Bronx, stopping to buy gasoline on the way. He has no receipt for this gasoline purchase. From 10 o'clock in the morning till 12, he says, his car stopped in front of his mother-in-law's home. Thereafter, he says, he took his wife, his mother-in-law, and another woman to Clason Point for a drive, and returned to his mother-in-law's house, where he was arrested as he emerged. The wife, mother-in-law, and the other woman all give different times than those stated by Kelly. He tells of buying gasoline a second time at Clason Point, and for this purchase, oddly enough, he has a receipt to show, but not for the earlier purchase of gasoline in the morning, which is far more important in point of time for its bearing on the robbery. He took great pains to build up an alibi at Clason Point. There is no doubt that he was there all right. But if his statement is true, he must have used up five gallons of gasoline in getting there.

"There is no question but that this was the car that figured in the hold-up. It has been identified by Anderson, Miss Emma Schroeder, and another witness.

Boss Confronts Him.

"Kelly's boss, Pace, confronted him at headquarters and asked him how he came to be taking his family out for a spin when he had stated on the night before that he was going to take out the car for a $15 job. To this Kelly merely replied that Pace was mistaken, that he had meant another day. We have tangled him up badly. He merely says in reply to such contradictions: 'If God Almighty contradicted me, I'd stick to my story.'"

At Headquarters, Kelly was lined up amid a dozen other men, and an attempt was made to have him identified by John White, auditor of Masury & Son of Brooklyn, who had seen the two robbers there escape from the building. Mr. White admitted that he had not seen the chauffeur of the car that figured in that hold-up, however, and could not identify Kelly.

The witnesses who had seen the automobile speed away from the hold-up in front of the American Can Company building, also could not identify Kelly, but pointed out that they had had only a fleeting glimpse of the car from the rear.

$3,100 HOLD-UP IN BROOKLYN.

Two hold-up men, acting in concert with the chauffeur of a brown touring car, robbed two employes of John M. Masury & Son, paint manufacturers, of 50 Jay Street, Brooklyn, of $3,100 a few minutes before 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The paint company is a business client of the American Can Company, which was robbed in Manhattan a little later.

The hold-up was one of the boldest ever perpetrated in Brooklyn, according to the police. It was committed on a narrow staircase and within twenty feet of the executive offices of the paint concern and within fifty feet of several hundred employes of the company. The victims of the robbers were Arthur F. Barlow, 23 years old, a clerk, of 735 East Twenty-third Street, Paterson, N. J., and Harry Beck, 18 years old, a clerk, of 1,289 Decatur Street, Brooklyn.

For several years Barlow and Becker had been intrusted to cash drafts on pay days at the Kings County Trust Company in Fulton Street. They went to and came from the bank in the concern's automobile delivery wagon. A chauffeur accompanied them.

Last Monday the automobile delivery wagon broke down and was taken to a repair shop. When Barlow and Becker appeared for duty yesterday morning they were told to take the trolley car to the bank. They left with a draft for $3,100 and with a little yellow leather satchel. They had the draft cashed and placed the $10, $5, and $1 bills in the satchel.

Car Waiting Near Office.

The two clerks took a Smith Street car to the approach to the Brooklyn Bridge and then walked north on Sands Street to Jay Street, three blocks away. They turned west in Jay Street and continued toward the East River to the paint factory, about three blocks distant. At York Street, a hundred feet from the entrance to the executive offices of the factory, they saw a five-passenger brown automobile. A chauffeur was in his seat and the engine was running, but the young men paid no particular attention to the car.

Entering the factory Barlow and Becker saw another man on the sidewalk, but still their suspicions were not aroused, according to their stories. They started upstairs to the second floor to the President's office. Barlow was carrying the bag and Becker was walking just behind him. They had gone only a few steps when the man on the sidewalk walked in behind them.

There is a landing half way up and the steps turn. At the very moment that the man started up the steps from the sidewalk another man walked around the corner at the landing. He leveled a revolver at the two men and said in an ordinary speaking tone:

"Hand it over or I'll blow your brains out."

A shuffling on the staircase below the clerks caused them to turn and they found themselves looking into another revolver. Becker required no further urging. He dropped the bag and instantly the man in front of him grabbed it and ran down stairs, his accomplice following with him. The hold-up took about three seconds and not a shout had been raised. While the hold-up men ran down stairs Barlow and Becker continued upstairs and burst into the office of Mr. Masury.

"We've been robbed," shouted Becker, "right here in the building, on the stairs."

A number of workers in the office stretched their heads out of the windows facing on Jay Street. They told the police later that they could see no one running away nor any automobile driving away. From others in the neighborhood, however, the police learned that two men carrying a yellow satchel had jumped into the brown automobile in York Street, and that the chauffeur had made a flying trip up Jay Street to Sands.

Get Automobile Numbers.

Detective Capt. Duane of the Brooklyn Police Headquarters got several automobile numbers. The numbers varied considerably, but the last three figures were similar in all the accounts. All of the observers agreed, also, that the license was a New Jersey one. The men in the car, it was said, were about 25 years old.

Capt. Duane was interested particularly in the information that the automobile delivery wagon of the paint company had been put out of commission last Monday. He will try to find out how many of the employes in the paint factory knew that the automobile would not be used yesterday in getting the money from the bank.

At the factory it was said that Barlow and Becker were young men of excellent reputation. The detectives who interviewed the young men also spoke well of them.

AUTO TRUCK KILLS BOY.

Driver Crashed Into Elevated Pillar, Trying to Avoid Him.

As William Weidner, driving a large auto truck, reached Ninetieth Street on his way down Second Avenue last night a group of boys ran into the street and seemed in danger of being run down. In seeking to avoid them Weidner ran into an elevated pillar. The car, which had missed the boys, crashed into the pillar with considerable force and rebounded. As it did so it hit Michael Horgan, 4 years old, of 224 East Eighty-ninth Street, who had apparently been saved by the chauffeur's action. The boy's skull was fractured, and he died soon after he had been picked up.

Seamstress's $10,000 to Missions.

The Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday announced that Miss Nettie Yeoward of Sterling, Ill., had given $10,000 for the board's activities. Miss Yeoward earned the money working as a seamstress.

REDS IN LEGAL TRAP NOW HIRE ATTORNEY

Anarchists Who Scorned Lawyers Learn Time to Ask Jury Trial Has Lapsed.

LONG SENTENCES EXPECTED

Tarrytown Prepares to Send Twelve Agitators to Penitentiary—Sheriff Gives Them 'Phone Privilege.

The rule for anarchists by which even lawyers are taboo because they represent too closely the forces of "law and order" was modified in the cases of the twelve anarchist agitators confined in the White Plains Jail yesterday afternoon.

The prisoners, who tried to conduct their own cases and loudly expressed scorn of the lawyers, found they had made a botch of it. They made a formal demand for a jury trial yesterday, and were informed by District Attorney Weeks that the time for making such a demand lapsed on Thursday night.

In a panic of fear, occasioned by the long sentences imposed by Justice of the Peace Moorehouse in Tarrytown, Arthur Caron, leader of the agitators, asked permission of Sheriff Doyle to telephone for a lawyer. The Sheriff conducted Caron to his office and permitted him to call up Justus Sheffield, who represented the I. W. W. agitators in the Tannenbaum church raids.

Mr. Sheffield, after accepting an appointment as counsel for the twelve, got into communication with District Attorney Weeks at White Plains. Mr. Weeks was disinclined to waive objections to an extension of the time in which to ask for a jury trial. Mr. Sheffield then said he would go to Tarrytown this morning to attend the trial of the prisoners before Justice Moorehouse, and would endeavor to have the trials delayed three days to present a demand for a jury trial.

Sheriff Doyle received a telephone call from Alexander Berkman for Becky Edelson and permitted her to go to his office and hold a half hour chat by long distance with the Anarchist. Berkman promised her that he would be at Tarrytown for the "sentence" with a party of friends." He sent Maxim Appell to Tarrytown to plead with Justice Moorehouse for his co-operation in obtaining a trial by jury for the I. W. W. prisoners, but the Justice would not see him, and Appell left for White Plains to intercede at the District Attorney's office.

In Tarrytown preparations were made to convey Caron and his party directly to Kings County Penitentiary, where Westchester County boarded its prisoners, from the Tarrytown Court House. It was taken for granted that Justice Moorehouse, who frowned with especial severity upon disorder in the usually quiet Sleepy Hollow district, would give the invaders long sentences. Those to be tried comprised the original invading party, whose members arrived last Saturday night and were arrested, one by one, as they arose on a soapbox to speak in Fountain Square. Those who came up as a relief party on Sunday were sentenced to from thirty days to six months in the Kings County Penitentiary.

There was trouble in the I. W. W. ranks, it was learned, over plans to invade Tarrytown with a big force, and the trouble was of such a serious nature that it threatened the overthrow of all of the I. W. W. programme. Members of the various factions of the Reds were found in ample numbers to make a formidable host for a Tarrytown invasion, but the dollar needed by each man to pay his fare to Tarrytown and back was not found by more than a small percentage of those willing to go.

The failure of Berkman to find money enough to finance the invasion was said to be responsible for a change in his plans. It was announced a "monster mass meeting" would be held in Union Square next Saturday to protest against "conditions in Tarrytown."

There was an I. W. W. scare at Billy Burke's home, Burkeley Crest, near Hastings, at noon. Miss Burke saw somebody loitering about the place and telephoned for the police. Policemen Leary and McQuade shooed the man away. They found him eating Miss Burke's chicken salad. She said she had given it to him to keep him contented and interested in something until the police should come. He said he was a "plain hobo."

Upon Sinclair, Lincoln Steffens, and Leonard Abbott all signified their intention to go to Tarrytown this morning to protest against the trial of Caron and his associates. Sinclair sent a telegram to Justice Moorehouse demanding admission to the trial as a correspondent of The Appeal to Reason. He received no answer. Berkman sent to the Rev. Mr. Cates, who recalled an invitation to meet him, a personal pledge that neither he nor his followers would molest the clergyman or try to force the issue with him. He expressed his regret that the clergyman, too, "found it impossible to enjoy the right of free speech in Tarrytown."

Many of the citizens of Tarrytown were incensed at young Mr. Rockefeller. They said that they had to stay there and bear the burden, while he slipped out of town and was free from any danger. Mr. Rockefeller left Sunday and had not returned. His father was in Tarrytown, but had kept himself indoors, except an occasional game of golf. The citizens of Tarrytown could see no reason why the agitators should bother them, when Mr. Rockefeller did not live there, and did not pay a cent of taxes in Tarrytown.

At the Rockefeller estate it was said that Mr. Rockefeller had started to lay off men, and it was feared this would incite further trouble. He had many improvements under way, including a nineteen-room addition to his son's house. He gave the order when he read on Sunday that the agitators had arrived and were prepared to fight for free speech. It was explained he feared that in employing new men some of the agitators might get on his estate and he might be harmed.

ROCKEFELLER 50-TON STONE.

Block for Fountain Guarded Against Anarchists with Dynamite.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 5.—The fifty-ton stone that was hewn out of a 250-ton block for a fountain for John D. Rockefeller arrived here today. It will be heavily guarded, for it is feared anarchists may attempt to blow it up with dynamite.

Men who have worked on the estate for four years steadily have been laid off, and now work has been halted until the trouble blows over. It is a serious blow to the townspeople, for Mr. Rockefeller employs many hundred men and his payroll is $30,000 a month. The Rockefeller estate will be heavily guarded tomorrow. There are stone walls that the agitators could climb, but an extra guard will be placed on duty there and practically all work will stop. Any man stepping on the grounds will be placed under arrest as a trespasser.

QUINLAN'S SENTENCE AFFIRMED

But Paterson Agitator Is Gone and May Have to be Extradited.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 5.—The conviction of Patrick Quinlan, an I. W. W. agitator, for inciting to riot during the Paterson silk strikes, was affirmed today by the Supreme Court. Quinlan had been sentenced to serve from two to seven years in prison, and to pay a fine of $500.

His present whereabouts are not known to the New Jersey authorities. He entered the State Prison a year ago, but was released on a writ of habeas corpus soon afterward pending the result of his appeal to the Supreme Court. He disappeared a few days after obtaining his release. The New Jersey authorities believe that he went to New York and that it will be necessary to extradite him.

WILSON'S MAY 30 SPEECH.

Writes G. A. R. Commander of Lack of Time to Prepare It.

A letter has been received by Forman J. Reynolds of Newark, Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, New Jersey, from President Woodrow Wilson in response to a letter that was sent by Mr. Reynolds last month in behalf of the department, expressing regret at the President's declination to attend the Memorial Day exercises in Arlington. The letter reads:

The White House.
Washington, D. C., June 1, 1914.

My dear Mr. Reynolds: I thank you for your letter of May 26. When I found that my action was being misconstrued, I, of course, quickly made up my mind to attend the memorial services, which I did with pleasure, though I was not able to make such a speech as I should have wished to make if I had time for preparation. Thank you sincerely for your letter.

Cordially yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

Mr. Forman J. Reynolds, Department Commander, G. A. R., Newark, N. J.

$560,000 TO STEVENS TECH.

Alumni Announce Campaign to Make Gifts Available.

Donations to the Stevens Institute of Technology amounting to $560,000 were announced at last night's annual meeting of the alumni in Hoboken. Alexander C. Humphreys, President of the Alumni Association, who announced the gifts, said they were all conditioned on raising $800,000 more. A campaign to get this sum will be started by alumni and friends of the institution.

Of the amount promised $250,000 is from the Rockefeller Foundation, $250,000 from Andrew Carnegie, $50,000 from an anonymous donor, and $10,000 from W. H. Childs. Of the fund to be raised with the assistance of the gifts $500,000 is to be added to the productive endowment, $360,000 to cancel debts, and the remainder for the improvement of buildings and equipment.

Up-State Judges in Brooklyn.

Because of the decision of Supreme Court Justice Jaycox that John F. Hylan and Robert H. Roy had been illegally appointed as additional County Judges in Kings, Judges from up-State counties have again been called upon to sit in the County Court in Brooklyn. On Monday Judge G. H. Baker of Yates County and Judge J. C. Talmadge of Greene County will come to Brooklyn to preside in the County Court with Judges Dike and Fawcett.

Two New Coroners' Physicians.

Saying that they desired to give all their time to their private practice, Drs. Lester D. Volk and Gerard Kasper have resigned as Coroners' physicians in Brooklyn. Yesterday afternoon Drs. Charles Wuest and George W. Tong were appointed to succeed them by Coroners Senior and Wagner. Dr. Wuest was formerly a Coroner's physician.

FIND PENSION PLAN GOOD FOR THE POOR

New York Association Says Its Experiments Have Increased Efficiency of Those Aided.

WOULD EXTEND SYSTEM

Funds Enable Mothers to Stay with Their Children, and This Safeguards Youngsters' Morals.

After experimenting for eighteen months with private pensions for a few families and studying conditions surrounding the other 500 families in its care, the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor has decided that the State or city or private charity organizations should provide pensions for dependent widows and children. This was announced in a report issued by the association last night.

The decision is based, according to the report, on the health and efficiency of the children and mothers in the families to which the association granted pensions, as compared with the health and efficiency of the members of other needy families. Fifty pensions have been granted since the association began its experiment in December, 1912, and of these seven have been discontinued because the increased efficiency of the families made them unnecessary. Of the other forty-three families, the report says, only eight of the mothers are working outside of their homes, and these are spending only a short time daily away from their children. In the case of the 500 families studied, which were not given regular pensions, the report says that nearly 200 of the mothers are working away from home and their children are necessarily neglected.

"The effect of this enforced neglect is indicated by the evidence of waywardness and truancy among the children," the report sets forth. "Twenty-four are in correctional institutions at the present time."

The largest pension granted was $14.25 a week, to a family consisting of a mother and six children. The average was $34 a month. When the pensions were first granted, the report says, members of all except four families needed medical attention and nursing. At present 50 per cent. of the mothers and practically all the children are said to be in good health. The association's method of pensioning was to study the needs of the families and make up a weekly budget, the food expense being planned by an experienced dietitian, and other needs being estimated by visiting nurses or other agents. The personal interest taken in each member of the family by the visitors, William H. Matthews, Director of the association's Family Welfare Department, thinks, was a considerable factor in improving the moral and mental condition of those visited. General Director Bailey B. Burritt of the association said that for this reason he considered it more advisable for private organizations to undertake the general granting of pensions than for the city or State to assume the task.

The association estimated in its report that it would need $93,000 a year more than it now has at its disposal to carry out the pension work properly. This amount, it was said, would grant material relief, educational work in the home, and medical and nursing care for all of the families it is assisting in which the father is dead or permanently incapacitated by illness or insanity.

Thomas Davidson School Closing.

The Thomas Davidson School will hold its closing exercises in the auditorium of the Educational Alliance tomorrow evening. The students have arranged a long programme and have invited as special guests Justice Samuel Greenbaum and the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise. The school holds closing but not graduation exercises, because its students leave and return again to pursue courses that vary every year. Many friends, including the teachers, all of whom give their services without compensation, will be present.

the uncertainty that now exists. If enacted into law it will do a great deal of harm. The interstate trade commission bill represents an evolution in the plan evolved in the office of the Commissioner of Corporations. It may serve a useful purpose by bringing business and the Government into closer relationship. The Clayton bill is dangerous. No one can do business under that bill without having the penitentiary facing him all the time. Every business transaction will be left liable to a criminal charge. It is sufficient to say that it is Democratic legislation."

Representative Murdock, the Progressive leader, said:

"The virtue of these bills over the Republican attitude is that they move away from the stand-pat and standstill situation in which we have been for twenty-four years. They will not solve the problem at which they are directed, but will hoist the problem out of its rut and will force Congress to move on to the true solution. There is no question in my mind that the movement which will grow out of this legislation for an actual remedy will be the creation of a trade commission with real power to determine facts, to prevent unfair trade practices, to differentiate between natural and unnatural monopolies, and destroy both."

WHAT THE BILLS PROVIDE.

Control Railroad Issues, Create Trade Board, Strengthen Trust Law.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Close regulation and control of the stocks and bonds of railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission is proposed by the substitute for the Rayburn bill prepared by the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee and passed by the House today.

The commission would be authorized to require periodical or special reports on the financial condition of railroads, balanced statements of receipts and expenditures in relation to capital accounts and all other financial transactions.

Before issuing stocks or bonds the bill would require railroads to file with the commission a certificate of notification showing in detail the character of the securities, the purposes for which they are to be issued, and the disposition to be made of them. Such certificates the bill makes public record and open to inspection.

The bill carries a prohibition, effective two years after the bill becomes law, against one Director acting on more than one railroad under the jurisdiction of the commission, without the commission's approval. It also would make it unlawful for any Director or officer of a railroad to profit by the sale or disposition of stocks or bonds.

The Covington Trade Commission bill creates a commission with broad inquisitorial powers over corporations engaged in interstate commerce, transferring to it the power now held by the Bureau of Corporations in the Department of Commerce, with additional powers.

The bill provides for the appointment of three Commissioners, no more than two of one political party, by the President. The Commissioners would serve six years at a salary of $10,000 and employ a secretary at a salary of $5,000. The Commissioners would be barred from engaging in any other vocation while serving. The bill abolishes the Bureau of Corporations.

It provides that all corporations, with a capital of not less than $5,000,000, except those now subject to the Interstate Commerce Commission, shall submit annual reports, "records of their organization, bondholders and stockholders, and financial condition," to the commission. The commission may also designate corporations having a capitalization of less than $5,000,000 from whom it desires reports. It may call for special reports in addition to the regular annual statements required by the bill; and would provide a penalty of $100 a day for delay in filing reports.

Upon the direction of the President, the Attorney General, or either house of Congress, the commission would be authorized to investigate and report the facts relating to any alleged violations of the anti-trust laws. The commission would also recommend possible readjustments of the business of corporations so investigated in order that they might conduct their business in accordance with the law. When the commission finds information as to any "unfair competition or practice in commerce, not necessarily constituting a violation of the law," it is called upon to report to the President and aid him in making recommendations to Congress for remedial legislation.

The bill would authorize the commission to take charge of cases in which the courts decided that a complainant is entitled to relief under the anti-trust laws, and recommend "an appropriate form of decree to the court." It would also empower the commission, on its own initiative, or at the request of the Attorney General, to investigate the manner in which decrees under the anti-trust laws have been carried out.

The Clayton Omnibus bill, designed to strengthen the Sherman law and other acts against monopolies and restraints of trade, contains prohibitions against price discrimination, or arbitrary refusal to sell natural mineral products, and against the enforcement of conditional leases, or contracts of sale under which lessees or purchasers agree not to deal in the products of competitors of the seller or lessor; a provision that decrees in suits brought by the Government under the anti-trust law shall be final evidence in suits brought against the defendant by others involving the anti-trust laws; provisions against holding companies and interlocking directorates in concerns under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, and provisions guaranteeing labor and farmers' organizations their legal existence under the Sherman law.

The latter provisions are contained in Section 7, which is the compromise reached between the radical labor men of the House, acting for the American Federation of Labor, and the members of the Judiciary Committee, who represent the views of the Administration. The section reads:

That nothing contained in the anti-trust laws shall be construed to forbid the existence and operation of fraternal, labor, consumers', agricultural, or horticultural organizations, orders or associations instituted for the purposes of mutual help, and not having capital stock or conducted for profit, or to forbid or restrain individual members of such organizations, orders, or associations from carrying out the legitimate objects thereof; nor shall such organizations, orders or associations, or members thereof be held or construed to be illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade under the anti-trust laws.

When this section was put to a vote in the House, while sitting as a committee, 207 members of all parties voted for it, and there was not a single vote in opposition.

The other disputed labor provision is contained in Section 18 relating to restraining orders and injunctions, which reads:

That no restraining order or injunction shall be granted by any court of the United States, or a Judge or the Judges thereof, in any case between an employer and employes, or between employers and employes, or between employes, or between persons employed and persons seeking employment, involving, or growing out of, a dispute concerning terms or conditions of employment, unless necessary to prevent irreparable injury to property, or to a property right of the party making the application, for which injury there is no adequate remedy at law, and such property or property right must be described with particularity in the application, which must be in writing and sworn to by the applicant or by his agent or attorney.

There is also a provision providing for jury trials in cases of indirect contempt of court.

The bill forbids injunctions against striking, peaceful picketing, primary boycotts, the payment of strike benefits, or the peaceful assemblage of strikers, and contains a provision legalizing such acts.

The holding companies provision of the act would prevent one company from acquiring any stock in another corporation "where the effect of such acquisition is to eliminate or substantially lessen competition between the corporations, or to create a monopoly." The provision exempts, however, corporations purchasing stock solely for investment, and not attempting to lessen competition.

HARPER'S BOOKS

Cross Trails

By Herman Whitaker

A stirring novel of the Canadian Northwest. In the white world of a Hudson Bay lumber-camp turbulent scenes and chivalry surround the only woman snowbound there. She witnesses a mutiny of the lumberjacks which is quelled by the Viking-like superintendent, and discovers that for months she must be cooped up with the one man in the world she wishes to avoid. A vivid transcription of the life which the author knows well.

At the Casa Napoleon

By Thomas A. Janvier

Here is the charm which hovers over the passing away of a quaint and rare existence. And no writer but Janvier could have made this bit of bygone New York so real and desirable. Though the scene is New York it is a New York new and full of interest, with a life almost as foreign as that of some small European town. In reading of the dwellers in the Casa Napoleon—mostly Latins—you realize what discoveries the metropolis offers to those in search of exotic flavor.

The Price of Love

By Arnold Bennett

An entirely new kind of who-stole-the-money story, told at lightning speed. In the first pages the reader is brought face to face with an extraordinary situation. The interest which the six characters find in all the details of life is intense—Bennett's own contagious interest. Youthful love, youthful intolerance, youthful oblivion of all but self and the moment, are embodied in the heroine.

A special de luxe edition printed on thin paper, with many illustrations, has been issued besides the regular edition.

The Marryers

By Irving Bacheller

"There is a vein of delicious burlesque in the book and yet the characters are delightfully convincing."—Boston Herald. "The author of 'Keeping Up With Lizzie' has put much humor into this latest volume."—Kansas City Star. "His humor keeps bubbling up like a perennial spring, and his quaint philosophy is so entertaining."—Detroit Journal. "The book will serve a most beneficial purpose—that of making people merry and the world therefore better."—Salt Lake City Tribune.

Good Form for All Occasions

By Florence Howe Hall

The author presents in this little volume for men and women a valuable counsellor to all who desire to follow the proper dictates of social requirements. She begins with the week-end visits and the duties of both hostess and guest. Next follow chapters devoted to teas, receptions, formal and informal dinners, luncheons and anniversaries, weddings, public dinners, receptions, balls, and card parties. The appropriate clothes for each occasion are specified, and the form of invitation shown.

C. H. STRAUSS'S BODY DISCOVERED IN LAKE

DEATH MYSTERY UNSOLVED

Empty Boat, Cap, and Novel Bear Evidence of Tragedy—Possibly a Victim of the Heat.

The body of Charles H. Strauss, general agent for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, with offices at 200 Fifth Avenue, who had been missing since Thursday, May 28, was found yesterday floating in Lake Mohegan, near Peekskill, N. Y. The body appeared to have been in the water several days, and, from information of Mr. Strauss's movements obtained by his family and friends, it was thought that he had been drowned on Thursday night.

No explanation of Mr. Strauss's unusual actions on the day of his disappearance or of why he left his office and home was advanced. Lessing Rosenthal, a Chicago lawyer, who was for many years counsel and friend of Mr. Strauss's family, was at the dead man's office all day and persons seeking information were referred to him. He said that Mr. Strauss's death and the circumstances surrounding it were a complete mystery to every one in the family. The only possible explanation, he said, was that Mr. Strauss, who was easily affected by heat, had suffered mental derangement on the hot Thursday he vanished.

The known facts relating to the disappearance and death were given out by Mr. Rosenthal. Mr. Strauss left his home and went to his office as usual on the Thursday mentioned. From his own office he went to the office of Frank S. Liveright, a friend, in Newark, N. J., arriving there shortly after noon. Mr. Liveright was in New York at the time and Mr. Strauss went away after telling his friend's secretary that his business was of no importance. His visit was the second he ever had made to Mr. Liveright's office. The secretary told Mr. Liveright later that Mr. Strauss had apepared to be suffering greatly from the heat. All these facts were communicated to Mr. Rosenthal yesterday in a letter from Mr. Liveright.

Mr. Strauss returned from Newark and went to his office. His secretary saw him sitting in an open window, as though seeking a cooling breeze. He was very warm, he said. He did not remain at the office long, and the last seen of him by any one who knew him was when he left his office between 1 and 2 o'clock. He went to a hat store near the Grand Central Terminal about 2 o'clock and bought a cap, leaving his Panama hat to be sent to his home at 155 Riverside Drive. The hat was received by his wife on Saturday.

Rented Boat at Lake.

After Mr. Strauss bought the hat, it was thought, he went direct to Peekskill, for at about 6:30 on Thursday evening he rented a boat at Billingee's dock on Lake Mohegan and rowed out into the lake. This, as far as any one knew, was the first time that Mr. Strauss had ever been to Peekskill. Mr. Billingee went to bed at 11:30, and Mr. Strauss had not returned. The next morning (Friday) the boat was found on the shore of the lake opposite the dock, and in it were the cap and the novel "Salamander." Mr. Billingee said yesterday that persons who rented boats often deserted them on the shore, and that the cap and novel had not excited his suspicions. The boat had not been paid for.

The body was discovered by W. J. Rule and T. V. Darling, cadets of the Lake Mohegan Military Academy, who were on the lake in a canoe. They notified Dr. J. Russell Forshay, Coroner of Peekskill, who found in the pockets a gold watch and cigarette case, both initialed "C. H. S." These initials and a resemblance of the drowned man to pictures of Mr. Strauss that Dr. Forshay had seen in New York papers led the Coroner to communicate with Charles A. Riegelman, a lawyer, at 44 Cedar Street, and Franklin P. Adams of The Tribune, both relatives and close associates of Mr. Strauss. Mr. Riegelman and Mr. Adams went to Peekskill and identified the body. They remained there last night to be present at the inquest this morning.

When Mr. Strauss's wife had not heard from her husband by Friday morning of last week she telegraphed his two brothers, Henry X. Strauss and Milton A. Strauss, and his brother-in-law, Max Hart of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, all of whom live in Chicago, where Charles H. Strauss formerly lived and where his mother now resides. The three men arrived in New York last Saturday and went to the Biltmore Hotel. They spent Saturday and Sunday searching for Mr. Strauss in this city. The police were notified and $1,000 was offered for information of Mr. Strauss's whereabouts.

Two "personal" advertisements that added to the mystery of the case appeared in morning newspapers in New York and several other cities on Monday. Mr. Rosenthal admitted yesterday that the one signed "Henry" had been inserted by Henry X. Strauss and the one signed "Florence" by Mrs. Strauss, who was formerly Miss Florence Levi of Milwaukee. The personals were:

"Charlie—For God's sake communicate with me. Mother knows nothing; fear the shock will kill her; cannot keep it from her over twenty-four hours. Have arranged everything for a fresh, new start; as yet no publicity. Am in New York, at same hotel as last time. HENRY."

"Charlie—Only come back and all will be entirely forgiven. Love. "FLORENCE."

Appeal of Wife and Brother.

There were no advertisements of this nature in any paper Tuesday morning, so far as could be learned yesterday, but on Wednesday morning this personal appeared:

"Charlie—Pull yourself together and communicate with us. Nothing to be gained by your present course. Can't you realize that if you return matters can be adjusted? HENRY AND FLORENCE."

And on Thursday morning this personal appeared:

"Charlie—Can't you realize that nothing and nobody in the world matters but you? You must come back and save me. FLORENCE."

Mr. Rosenthal said that the only explanation of these advertisements he could give was that when Mr. Strauss disappeared his family concluded that "something was wrong" and inserted the advertisements to assure the missing man that no matter what the matter was it would be adjusted if he returned. He denied that Mr. Strauss had had domestic trouble or that his business affairs were not correct. When he arrived in New York on Tuesday morning in answer to a summons from Henry X. Strauss, he said, he at once notified the Boston headquarters of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company and asked that an auditor be sent to go over Mr. Strauss's books.

The auditor arrived the next day Mr. Rosenthal said, and carefully examined the books. He found Mr. Strauss's accounts right to a penny and returned to Boston yesterday, according to Mr. Rosenthal. Also, Mr. Rosenthal said, it was found that Mr. Strauss had a large balance in his personal account with the Garfield National Bank.

Mrs. Strauss was prostrated when she heard of her husband's death. Henry X. Strauss spent the day with her, sending all who called on him for information to Mr. Rosenthal. Milton Strauss and Mr. Hart returned to Chicago on Wednesday.

Charles S. Strauss came to New York from Chicago in 1910. He had many prominent connections among his relatives and friends and was popular. He had been married eleven years and had one child, Aline, 3 years old. Among the clubs to which he belonged were the Harmonie, the City Athletic, the Aldine, the Woodmere, and the University of Michigan. He was 34 years old.

DR. J. D. BRYANT'S ESTATE.

Widow Inherits for Life $1,000 to Teach Medical Ethics.

Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, the noted surgeon who died in St. Vincent's Hospital on April 7, left practically his entire estate in trust during her lifetime to Mrs. Annette A. Bryant, his widow. After her death, or in case she remarries, the estate is to go to his daughter, granddaughter, and to various public and charitable institutions. The will was offered for probate yesterday.

Dr. Bryant provided that Mrs. Bryant should receive $25,000 outright, all his household furnishings, and a life interest in the residuary estate. To Mrs. Florence B. De Peyster, his daughter, he left $15,000 outright, and to Florence B. De Peyster, his granddaughter, $2,500 outright. A trust fund of $1,000 was established for the benefit of New York University, which is also to share in the residuary estate after Mrs. Bryant's death. Dr. Bryant gave these directions:

"The income of this fund shall be devoted to instilling in the minds of the Senior Class the principles of ethics of the American Medical Association. This bequest is made in the belief that early admonition and the implanting of preventive means to seductive inclination or dangers is the surest method of securing ethical practice in human affairs."

Upon the death or remarriage of Mrs. Bryant the residuary estate, held in trust for her, is to be divided as follows: Four-sevenths to Mrs. De Peyster, his daughter; one-seventh in trust to New York University, one-seventh in trust to the New York Academy of Medicine, and one-seventh to the First Baptist Church of Norwich, N. Y., and to the Norwich Hospital.

In the event that his daughter dies before his widow Dr. Bryant provided that the daughter's share in the residuary estate should be divided among St. Vincent's Hospital, the City of New York, St. Joseph's Guild, the American Medical Association, the Bellevue Hospital Alumni Association, the Medical Society of the State of New York, and other institutions and certain individuals. One contingent bequest of $10,000 was to be used, Dr. Bryant directed, in opposing the anti-vivisectionists in this State.

ORDERS TRACKS RELOCATED

Estimate Board Approves Widening of Central Park West.

The Board of Estimate yesterday adopted the resolution introduced a week ago authorizing Borough President Marks to proceed at once with the work of relocating the street car tracks along Central Park West so as to widen the roadway and make more room for vehicles. The matter had been before the board for several years, but the New York Railways Company had always contended that it should not bear the entire expense of the undertaking.

The company on March 27 submitted an offer to share equally with the city the expense of having the tracks relocated, which was estimated at $852,000. The Committee on City Plan refused to accept the offer and recommended that the President of the Borough of Manhattan be authorized to proceed with the physical work of widening the roadway and to take all necessary steps to force the railway company to bear the expense of removing the rails. The plan is to remove the present easterly rails and build a new track to the west of the present westerly one.

The city has to pay the expense of widening the roadway, destroying one line of elm trees and planting another, and reconstructing the sidewalk and pavement. This work will cost about $220,000, while it is estimated by the city's engineers that the street car company will have to spend about $275,000, although the company's own estimate is $352,000.

Borough President Marks will not begin the actual work of tearing out the rails until he obtains the necessary funds from the Board of Estimate, which will be in about three weeks.

Never Judge Werner's Secretary.

Judge Werner of the Court of Appeals informs THE TIMES that Miles Rosenbluth, the lawyer indicted in Queens County for acts in connection with the foreclosure of a mortgage, was never his private secretary, as stated recently. Rosenbluth's only connection with Judge Werner was that when he first began to read law he had a place in the office of Judge Werner's firm which he held for a few weeks only.

EMPRESS INQUIRY SET FOR JUNE 16

Will Be Held at Montreal or at Quebec—Lord Mersey to Arrive on the 13th.

RIMOUSKI HEARINGS OFF

Lloyds Investigating to Discover Chances of Floating the Ship—Three More Identifications.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The inquiry into the Empress of Ireland disaster will open on Tuesday, June 16, at Quebec or Montreal. This announcement was made in Parliament today by the Hon. J. D. Hazen, who stated that Lord Mersey would arrive from England on the 13th, and, with Sir Adolphe Routhier of Quebec and Chief Justice McLeod of New Brunswick, would immediately open the investigation.

The Commissioners will be assisted by Commander F. W. Caborne of the British Royal Naval Reserve, Prof. John Welsh of Newcastle, England; Capt. Demers, Dominion Wreck Commissioner, and Engineer Commander Howe of the Canadian Naval Service. Commander Caborne and Prof. Welsh have been nominated by the British Board of Trade. Mr. Hazen expressed the hope that the court would meet with the approval of Parliament and the people, as it had already met the approval of the British authorities.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, June 5.—The Attorney General of Quebec, Sir Lomer Gouin, who is also Premier, has instructed the Coroner at Rimouski to adjourn the hearings on the Empress of Ireland without taking further evidence, pending the judgment of the Royal Commission of Inquiry.

The cruiser Essex, it is now stated, will proceed to Rimouski and send her divers down to survey the sunken Empress.

Lloyds, the insurance underwriters, are selecting a special committee of salvage and engineering experts to investigate the chances of floating and saving the wreck, according to announcement made at the Canadian Pacific Railroad offices today.

Proposals are now being made in marine circles to establish two distinct channels five miles apart for ships incoming up the gulf to Father Point, also to compel colliers to carry pilots up the gulf, not to come within five miles of the Father Point or Rimouski shore, and to compel all colliers to carry wireless. These and other proposals will be submitted to the Royal Commission by the Shipping Federation.

Lieut. Col. Pelletier, at present agent general of the Province of Quebec in London, who is in Quebec, has written a letter to the press in refutation of the charges made in some United States papers that passengers were cut with knives.

He says:

"I have seen wounds of all descriptions on a great number of those corpses, but it was very easy to judge that those wounds were not inflicted with a sharp and cutting instrument as a knife would do.

"These victims were struck by pieces of iron or wood when the accident occurred and were killed before they dropped into the water. Others had evident marks of being hit by the explosion. I have not seen one single wound which could be caused by a cutting instrument such as a knife. I have been practicing medicine for twenty-four years and acted as coroner for ten years."

Three identifications were made this morning. They were Mrs. George Bolton of Toronto, by Mrs. D. Cascadden, her sister-in-law; Miss Jennie Newton, Minneapolis, by William Cook of Toronto, her nephew, and Mrs. Andrew Kivesto, Port Arthur, by her husband.

Sixty-nine bodies still await identification, and arrangements have been made to move them to the vault in Belmont Cemetery, Quebec, tomorrow night. Thirty bodies were shipped to various parts yesterday. A. J. Musgrave of Winnipeg last night identified the body of Miss Alma Assafray. For days he had been uncertain whether it was she, but the identification was established beyond all doubt on the arrival of another friend last night. The bags belonging to Major David Creighton and Ensign Knudson of Toronto have been washed ashore and have been sent on to the Salvation Army authorities. Miss Knudson's watch stopped at 2:25.

Salvation Army Mourns Members Lost on Empress of Ireland.

LONDON, June 5.—Gen. Bramwell Booth of the Salvation Army, Mrs. Booth, and 10,000 other Salvationists gathered in Albert Hall tonight at a memorial service for the members of the Salvation Army who were drowned in the Empress of Ireland disaster.

A letter from Queen Mary was read, in which her Majesty expressed her heartfelt sympathy with the Army in the loss of its colleagues.

WOMAN LEFT $3,749,965.

Charities to Benefit Under Will of Miss Elizabeth Thompson.

Miss Elizabeth Thompson, whose father, David Thompson, was for twenty-five years the President of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, left a net estate of $3,749,965, according to an appraisal filed yesterday. Miss Thompson died on Nov. 17, 1913. Under her will a joint and surviving life estate in $3,340,033 is given to her sister, Miss Mary G. Thompson, and to her brother, Charles G. Thompson. After they have died this money is to be divided equally between the Children's Aid Society, the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the New York Historical Society, the New York Hospital, the Presbyterian Hospital, and Columbia College. There were minor bequests to nephews and nieces.

Miss Thompson's estate consisted of these assets: Bank accounts, $419,253; jewelry, $18,084; silverware, $285; furniture, $5,846; and stocks and bonds, $3,415,116. The bonds held by the estate were $5,000 Chicago Stock Yards, $3,000 Corn Products Refining Company, $42,700 New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, $19,700 Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, and $15,300 P. Lorillard Company.

Studebaker

ECONOMICAL LIGHT WEIGHT SIX

$1575

High proportion of manufactured parts means car value, long life and roadability.

Studebaker SIX incorporates a greater proportion of manufactured parts than any other car.

Its vital parts are heat treated more thoroughly—two to four times—and with greater scientific accuracy.

Methods of manufacture are more intensive; machinery equipment more complete and costly, yet far more economical because of big production.

Laboratory and engineering work goes deeper, is more thorough, and actually in charge of manufacturing.

Friction and vibration minimized, the life of the car lengthened by perfect alignment of co-related parts, perfect lubrication and perfect balance.

Hence the Studebaker SIX is the greatest value, has the longest life, the most perfect roadability.

No higher price can buy as much, let alone more.

BLUECOAT SHOOTS DETECTIVE IN RAID

Policeman Mistakes Sleuth for a Fleeing Criminal—Also Wounds Girl in Chase.

TWO OTHERS ARE INJURED

Heroin Dealer Slashes Investigator with Bread Knife in Dash to Escape—Traced by Wounded Nose.

Harry C. Gilson of 263 West 112th Street, an investigator attached to the staff of District Attorney Whitman and engaged in the crusade against the sale of cocaine and other habit-forming drugs, knocked shortly before noon yesterday at the door of an apartment on the ground floor at 178 West Houston Street, between Bedford and Conger Streets, where it had been reported that drugs were on sale.

After he had been admitted by a young man, Gilson took a fifty-cent piece out of his pocket and asked for two papers of heroin. The drug dealer went to a chest of drawers and returned with two small packages in his hand. As he was giving them to Gilson, Detective Ernest F. W. Seyler, attached to the staff of Inspector Wakefield, entered the room in citizen's garb.

Gilson and Seyler thereupon told the young man he was under arrest. Before Seyler could lay hands on the youth, however, an old man broke into the room and shouted something in Italian. The prisoner took advantage of this interruption to seize a bread knife and leap for the hall slashing desperately right and left. Gilson jumped forward to capture the young man, but his right arm was struck aside by the bread knife which was sharp enough to lay open the right wrist.

Seyler then started after the fugitive, but the old man, who had entered the room to interrupt the arrest, managed to stumble into the doorway ahead of the policeman. Seyler lost barely a moment in brushing him aside, but the fleeing youth was already at the end of the hallway leading to a courtyard in the rear of the building, and when Seyler covered the hallway his prisoner was scaling a fence to swing himself into the courtyard of a neighboring building. Seyler fired a shot at him. The bullet struck the left side of the fugitive's nose, passing through it, and he fell to the ground on the other side of the fence.

Policeman Dennis H. Mitchell of the Macdougal Street Station, who was standing in front of the building unaware that any raid was in progress, dashed into the building when he heard shouts from the hallway, in which there were a number of women and children from the crowded tenements above. As Mitchell entered women were shrieking "Murder!"

Bluecoat Shoots Detective.

Mitchell ran through the tenement with his revolver drawn. In the courtyard the bluecoat saw the detective starting to climb the fence, and when he failed to stop at Mitchell's shout, the uniformed policeman fired at him.

Seyler fell back from the fence with an ugly bullet wound in his left thigh. As soon as he had been informed by Gilson that he had shot a detective instead of a criminal, and that he had aided an escaping prisoner, Mitchell left the wounded man behind and vaulted over the fence in pursuit of the alleged drug dealer.

Mitchell quickly learned that the fugitive, who had reached the courtyard of a building several doors west of 178, had run back into Houston Street.

The prisoner was made too conspicuous by his wounded nose for escape to be possible. As soon as Mitchell was back into Houston Street scores of persons shouted to him that the fugitive had turned into Bedford Street. Many had seen the man running with a handkerchief to his face and they acted as guides to Mitchell, who ran from Bedford Street through Dominick to Varick Street and along Hudson Street to St. John's Park.

Near the park the policeman came in sight of his prisoner and doubled his speed. The street was too crowded for sprinting, however, and Mitchell collided with an old man. In his fall he brought down his revolver so heavily against the sidewalk that a cartridge was exploded. A few feet in front of him a young woman pitched forward to the sidewalk, screaming that she was shot.

Keeps Up the Chase.

The fact that he had wounded two innocent persons so far in the chase did not deter Mitchell from continuing it. As soon as he had regained his feet he ran into the park toward which the fugitive had been heading, and there Mitchell found the man lying on the ground exhausted.

In the meantime Policeman Seyler had been carried to a drug store in West Houston Street by Policeman Donnelly and Detectives Murphy and Donahue and was attended by Dr. Catteggio of 45 Macdougal Street and Dr. A. Savorini of 8 King Street. These physicians also treated Gilson's wound, which was not serious.

A few minutes later an ambulance arrived from St. Vincent's Hospital and picked up the wounded detective. After making a trip with him to the hospital the ambulance hurried to St. John's Park in answer to a call from Policeman Mitchell. There they took aboard his prisoner and the young woman who was accidentally wounded.

At St. Vincent's Hospital it was found that Detective Seyler, while very painfully wounded, was in no great danger. The bullet which had entered the left hip struck one of the pelvic bones. The lead was shattered into several small pieces, which could not be reached with a probe.

The young woman, who was Miss Lilian Cudahy of 50 Morton Street, was shot in the heel, but her wound was not serious.

The prisoner said that he was James Reggina, 22 years old, and that he had come to this city recently from Chicago. He said he had been cured of the heroin habit, but that he had about $3 worth of the drug left and that he needed money so badly that he was selling it.

Reggina said that he did not mean to resist arrest, but that he had used the knife when he thought the police were going to attack his father, John Reggina.

After he had been treated at St. Vincent's Hospital, Reggina was locked up in the Macdougal Street Station on the charge of felonious assault. He was searched for a revolver, but none was found, though he had two revolver cartridges in his pocket.

Detective Seyler is single and lives with his father at 306 East 96th Street. He has been on the force six years and was tranferred last October to the staff of Inspector Wakefield.

Seyler is engaged to be married to Mary Laurino, 19 years, of 4,133 Park Avenue, and applied for a marriage license on Thursday at the Bronx Marriage License Bureau. Some time ago it was announced that the marriage would take place on Aug. 8, when Seyler's vacation will begin.

FIVE LIVE ON 60 CENTS A DAY

Mother, 15 Years Old, Heard by Industrial Relations Commission.

Mary Minora, an Italian of 15, who had been married for two years and a mother for three months, on the stand, told how she and her mother managed to keep their husbands, who were out of work, at the session of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations yesterday. The Commissioners decided to adjourn until Monday to get time for a little inspection of the east side for themselves.

Mrs. Minora apparently was not in the least depressed by the conditions under which she had to live. Testifying through an interpreter, she said that she occupied two rooms with five other persons and had begun to work at finishing garments, when she was only 10 years old.

For the last nine months her husband and her father had been out of work, and she and her mother had to support them and her brother as well. At one time they had been able to make $1 a day, but things had changed and now 60 cents was all they could earn.

"How do you manage to live?" asked Chairman Walsh. The girl laughed outright, and replied.

"We sometimes buy a dollar's worth of macaroni and other food from the pushcarts, and we do the best we can."

"And your clothes?"

"We put by 5 cents a day for them when we can, and when we can't we go without it."

As the young mother left the stand and received a $2 witness fee she smiled at the Commissioners and dangled the two $1 bills in the face of her sleeping babe.

Mrs. Falzoni, a mother with three children and her parents to look after, told of similar conditions, and when she was asked how she managed to pay for their food, replied: "Oh, as God provides."

OFFER $350 FOR $100 STOCK.

The New York Railways Company, successor to the old Metropolitan Street Railway Company, proposes to purchase some of the stock of one of its subsidiaries, the Twenty-third Street Railway Company, at the rate of $350 for a share worth $100 at par. When the Metropolitan interests were trying to establish a monopoly of the street car companies of Manhattan they met with stubborn resistance from some of the better-paying concerns. They found that they could only obtain control of the Twenty-third Street Railway Company by paying its stockholders a rental of $108,000 a year, which amounted to a dividend of 18 per cent. on its 6,000 shares of capital stock.

The New York Railways Company has an opportunity now of purchasing the control of the Twenty-third Street Company by buying a block of 4,204 shares, and has agreed to give for them $350 each. In this way it will keep $75,672 of the rent it must pay on the line in its own treasury, and will earn on its investment 5 1-7 per cent. The purchase price will amount to $1,472,000, and to obtain this money the company proposes to issue 4 per cent. first mortgage gold bonds. It has also announced its intention of buying up as many more of the Twenty-third Street shares as it can obtain at the same figure.

Commissioner Maltbie will hold a hearing on this plan on the afternoon of June 15.

STANDARD OIL MAN JAILED.

Charles Russell Burke Is Behind in His Alimony.

Charles Russell Burke, who is connected with several of the subsidiary companies of the Standard Oil Company, surrendered himself yesterday to Sheriff Grifenhagen and was locked up in Ludlow Street Jail. In November, 1910, Mr. Burke's wife, Katharine Pope Burke, began a suit against him for a separation. Supreme Court Justice Page gave her alimony and the custody of her two infant sons. The payment of the alimony lapsed and Mrs. Burke began suit to collect arrearages amounting to $3,272. The order of arrest was issued by Justice Gerard on Nov. 15, 1912, but Mr. Burke remained out of the jurisdiction of the State courts until yesterday.

He sent a telegram to his wife asking her not to press the order against him and permit him to remain at liberty so he might continue transacting business and so get the money to pay her. He said in the telegram that if he received no answer he would construe it as a refusal. He got no answer.

The Burkes were married in June, 1903. In fixing alimony, Justice Page directed Burke to keep up the payments on two life insurance policies for $10,000 each, which Mrs. Burke said were taken out in her behalf in pursuance of an ante-nuptial agreement. She said that after trouble came between her and her husband he changed the name of the beneficiary in one of them and allowed the other to lapse.

RESEARCH AGENT OUSTED.

READING, Penn., June 5.—A fight between Edward H. Filbert, City Treasurer, and J. H. Clowes, chief of the New York Municipal Research experts, enlivened events at the City Hall today. The trouble grew out of a new system of paying the city taxes, which had been put into effect at the suggestion of the experts, and may result in an Aldermanic inquiry.

Mr. Filbert said the expert had made himself obnoxious and had been warned to keep out of the Treasurer's office. When Mr. Clowes entered the office today and began directing the work of the clerks Mr. Filbert objected, and they had a quarrel. The row ended when Filbert threw Clowes out of the room.

MISQUOTED, MAYOR SAYS.

Tells What He Did Say in Cincinnati About Referendum and Recall.

Mayor Mitchel returned to the City Hall yesterday from his Western trip, where, with President Churchill of the Board of Education and Chamberlain Bruere, he inspected the workings of vocational schools in Cincinnati, Gary, Ill., and Chicago. The Mayor said that he had obtained valuable information on school matters in every city visited. He praised the work of the vocational schools, and said that the same methods should be adopted in this city. The Board of Education and the Committee on Education of the Board of Estimate would soon take up the matter, he asserted.

The Mayor said he had been misquoted in Cincinnati in regard to the new City Charter.

"I said that I believed in the initiative, referendum, and recall," he said, "but I did not make the statement that they would be included in the new charter. I will probably recommend that they be included, but that doesn't mean that the Legislature will necessarily put them in. The committee which is to draw the new charter has not been completed yet."

Prizes for Peace Essays.

The Church Peace Union has offered prizes totalling $5,000 in value for essays on international peace. The awards will be divided so as to allow competition among pastors of churches, students in theological seminaries, church members between 20 and 30 years of age, Sunday school pupils between 15 and 20 years of age, and Sunday school pupils between 10 and 15 years. All essays must be in by Jan. 1, 1916. Further particulars can be had of the Secretary of the Church Peace Union, the Rev. Frederick Lynch, 70 Fifth Avenue.

LABOR AGENTS MEET TO ENTER PROTEST

Fear Their Occupation Will End if Federal Commission's Plans Go Through.

NEW YORK TIMES PRAISED

About 300 employment agents, most of them women, gathered in Tuxedo Hall, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, last night to talk things over. The weight of the opinion seemed to be that if the Federal authorities continued to meddle with the employment question the agencies would be driven out of business.

The meeting was called by the United Employment Agents' Association, which aims to drive crooks out of the agency business. Charles O'Connor Irwin, President of this association, did not attack the Federal investigators, but many others did. The association was strengthened and it was decided to employ legal aid to fight attempts to change State laws any city ordinances.

Mr. Irwin admitted frankly that there were rascals in the employment agency field and he, for one, he said, had been trying for nearly 30 years to drive the crooks out. He said that there was absolutely no place in New York for any agent who chose to violate the laws. His association, he said, would welcome complaints and would make every effort to drive out the violators of the law.

Mr. Irwin praised THE NEW YORK TIMES for its fight against dishonest advertising, and said that THE TIMES was the greatest aid to his association in the fight against crooks. The refusal by THE TIMES to accept help wanted advertisements failing to state clearly the character and conditions of the employment offered, he said, was an aid to the employment agents desiring to live up to the law.

"THE TIMES insists that every advertisement must be guaranteed," said Mr. Irwin. "That is right. This paper is leading the way to better conditions. It is clean and we indorse its principles."

Most of the discussion centred about the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, which has been taking testimony on the employment question at the City Hall. President Wilson's commission is to find out whether free employment agencies in cities can not be established and whether charges should not fall upon the employer.

Criticism was leveled at the commission because it did not seek voluntary testimony and contented itself with calling only three employment agents from among the 800 in the city. The bulk of its testimony, it was charged, was taken from persons hostile to employment agencies. The commission, it was charged, lent open ears to the representatives of charity organizations, forgetting that the charity organizations bore grudges against employment agents.

One man particularly attacked because of his testimony was Charles K. Blatchly, superintendent of the Joint Application Bureau of the Charity Organization Society and the Association for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor. It was said that Mr. Blatchly had told the commissioners that the employment agents were no good, in words to that effect.

"Mr. Blatchly didn't explain why he hated us," said one of the speakers. "The truth is that his charity organization sends hundreds and hundreds of miserable creatures to us and asks us to get jobs for them. The charity organizations all over town send men and women to us for whom they can do nothing. Sixty per cent. of the men the charity organizations send to us are drunkards. If we got jobs for them we would be violating the law of the State."

Len Spencer, a theatrical employment agent, said that the sole aim of the added regulation of the employment business was "to create more political machinery and to get more jobs for the grafters."

REAL ESTATE MAN ARRESTED

A man who said he was John D. Ireland, a real estate dealer of 137 West 145th Street, with an office at 122 Liberty Street, was arrested last night at Park Avenue and Forty-second Street. He was locked up in the Greenwich Street Station.

Detectives Clare and Brown of the Greenwich Street Station and Detective Apple of the Atlantic City Police Department made the arrest. The Shelbourne, Traymore, Seaside, and Chalfonte Hotels in Atlantic City asserted that Ireland had given them bad checks, the detectives said.

Vestry Doesn't Feel Bound to Preserve Historical Landmark.

Old St. John's Chapel in Varick Street probably will be torn down as the result of the new subway construction work. Col. William Jay of the Trinity Church Vestry, owners of the Chapel, told the Board of Estimate yesterday that he could give no assurances that the building would be maintained for some public or semi-public use. The Committee on City Plan of the board recommended that the chapel be permitted to remain in the streets and that the additional cost of maintaining the structure during the subway construction be paid by the city, providing that assurances were given that Trinity would preserve the structure for public use. Col. Jay assured the board that Trinity would give the building to anybody who would purchase the site.

"'I may say once for all," said Col. Jay, "that there is no possible hope or expectation in my mind that the chapel will be preserved by Trinity Church for religious uses. We do not feel that we are bound to do this. We think we have done all we should in the way of preserving historical monuments. It is now up to somebody else to preserve St. John's. The vestry voted with very great reluctance to discontinue services at St. John's because that seemed to look toward the ultimate destruction of the chapel, and they are as much interested now in this movement for its preservation as anybody. We would like to see it preserved and will do what we can to meet the views of any gentleman, or any body of gentlemen, or any society that wants to come forward and take the property upon such terms as may be agreed upon with the city or ourselves, and I may say that I believe Trinity will deal with them very liberally. They are not in this business to make money out of it, but they cannot see their way to carry on services and keep the church open because it is considered by some people to be ornamental and by some to be historical."

HAIL NEW FOOD BUREAU.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5.—Announcement yesterday of the establishment of an order and food products bureau by the Adams Express Company enabling consumers and retail dealers to buy direct from grower or producer, caused a sensation in commission and jobbing circles here today. All concerned viewed the innovation as a decisive step toward the reduction of the cost of living.

Although the new bureau has started operations in New York, Boston, Baltimore, and other cities, New Yorkers are using the service for obtaining meat supplies from Philadelphia. At the office of the company it was said today that about 1,000 pounds of meats had been sent this week to New York families who had formed buying clubs as a means of reducing the cost of living. The shipments ranged from 40 to 70 pounds.

One of the newest features of the bureau is an improved means of shipping cream. At the country dairies the cream is reduced to a temperature of about 40 degrees and then immediately placed in airtight thermos cans. Each can, containing four or five gallons, is filled to the top to prevent the cream from turning to butter en route, and then sealed and shipped without refrigeration. When the cans arrive at their destination twenty-four hours later the cream is found to be only five or six degrees warmer than it was when shipped. This feature of the bureau service does away with the cost of icing and allows the shippers more time in which to deliver their consignments.

IGNORES WIFE'S DIVORCE.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 5.—Nevada and Connecticut divorce laws clashed today, when Judge Gardner Green of the Superior Court took under advisement the petition of Ebenezer Hill, Jr., Commander of the Connecticut Naval Militia, for a divorce from Mabel Cameron Currie Hill, now the wife of Judge Priest of St. Louis.

Commander Hill was married to the defendant at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, Feb. 23, 1903. He says that he had no misunderstanding with his wife until she went to Europe on July 18, 1910. She never returned. He acknowledged that his wife had complained of the quiet life in Norwalk and longed for New York and London. Mrs. Hill later went to Reno and obtained a divorce from Commander Hill on the ground of non-support. That is not ground for divorce in Connecticut.

Commander Hill seeks a divorce on the ground of desertion, also to clear up the record in accordance with the laws of the State, which are in conflict with those of Nevada. Commander Hill's father is head of the Norwalk Iron Works and President of the Norwalk National Bank. Ex-Representative E. J. Hill is his uncle.

Press Convention Ends.

SYRACUSE, June 5.—The convention of the New York Press Association closed with two sessions today. The speakers today were Jay E. Klock of The Kingston Freeman, Walter B. Cherry of Syracuse, William H. Clark of The Cortland Standard, Frederick G. Beach, Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, and James H. Potts of The Troy Times.

Two More Gas Explosion Deaths

BOSTON, Mass., June 5.—The casualties resulting from the explosion of sewer gas at the East Boston pumping station of the metropolitan sewerage system on Monday were increased to six today, when Elmer C. Gifford and Philip Haley died of their injuries.

SCHUMANN-HEINK'S 'GREAT SECRET' KEPT

Husband, Being Sued, Says He Hopes He Won't Have to Tell It—Crowd Disappointed.

CHARGES READ IN COURT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Crowds thronged the court room today, the third day of the hearing of Mme. Schumann-Heink's divorce suit, and they were disappointed on failing to hear the "secret" referred to yesterday.

"I do not want to tell the great secret in the life of Madame Schumann-Heink. I hope from the bottom of my heart that it may not be necessary to bring that into this case," said William J. Rapp, Jr., husband of the singer.

A number of depositions were presented by counsel for Madame Schumann-Heink. These were by private detectives and others, and bore on the alleged relations of Mr. Rapp and Mrs. Catherine E. Dean, named as co-respondent.

Tomorrow morning the reading of depositions will be finished. Attorney Elias Mayer and Sidney Stein, counsel for the singer, hope to bring her side of the case to a close before the end of the afternoon session. They definitely announced today that Madame Schumann-Heink would not leave Chicago for Bairreuth until the case was finished.

Attorney Mayer said that he knew of no "great secret." He was asked regarding statements said to have been made by Rapp containing veiled intimations as to the reason for objections to questions asked of the plaintiff and her daughters last Thursday.

"Such questions had no business on the evidence in this case," he said.

The depositions read yesterday were those of three private detectives, two boarding house keepers, one stenographer, one janitor, and one negro messenger.

Eugene Rossi, a detective, said he began to shadow Rapp in December, 1912. "The first time I saw Rapp he met a woman on Thirty-fourth Street, and they both went to a house," he said. "Neither of them came out that night."

He said he followed Rapp and Mrs. Dean on a shopping tour and told of seeing Rapp enter her apartment with his own key.

"He went there with a black satchel," said the detective, "and next morning emerged with a suitcase."

Josephine Goldsmith, at whose home Rapp roomed from August, 1912, to February, 1913, deposed that "he never was away for more than a night or two at a time."

The Court ruled today that questions concerning the earlier marriages of the singer would not be permitted. Effort was made yesterday to prove by her daughter, Marie, that Schumann was only the "stage name" of her first husband.

The deposition of William Maples, a detective, was read. Maples said that he followed and watched Rapp during the month of February, 1913, and that on numerous occasions he saw him in company with Mrs. Catherine Dean of New York. He said he had seen Rapp enter the woman's apartments late at night.

John Berger, janitor of one of the buildings where Mrs. Dean had an apartment, deposed that Rapp had been among her visitors. Mrs. Dean moved out after three months, explaining that she could not pay the rent, Berger's deposition stated.

MAN OF MYSTERY NO LONGER

Brother and Sister of "J. C. R." Recognize Him as Mrs. Pitkin's Son.

CHICAGO, June 5.—The identification of "J. C. R.," the inarticulate man of mystery, by Mrs. H. E. Pitkin of this city as her son, Earl W. Iles, was confirmed today by his brother and sister. Thus the eight-year-old mystery of "the man who was," whose mind is practically a blank, but who, nevertheless, gave evidence of affectionate remembrance of his mother, was cleared to the satisfaction of all concerned. He is a son of Mrs. Pitkin by a former husband.

"I have been working for months to prove that he was my son, and they have all been compelled to admit it at last," she said today.

"Son," she said, turning to the disease racked man who sat beside her, "they have said that I am not your mother."

With a quick clasp of his arm the invalid drew her to him and his lips moved as if he would speak.

Mrs. Pitkin said the initials "J. C. R.," by which her son was known, were those of her father. They were engraved on his watch, which he presented to Iles.

Iles left Chicago in 1906 with $7,000 to complete payment for machinery to be used in mines he had at Goldfield. In the Fall of that year Mrs. Pitkin received a letter from him dated Minneapolis, stating that he was on his way home. That was the last she heard from him.

Apparently he was stricken with paralysis or was injured on a train near Waseca, Minn. There was nothing by which to identify him except the watch with its initials "J. C. R.," and he remained in that village for several years. Efforts of surgeons to restore the man's intelligence were ineffectual.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has notified its Assistant Secretary, John F. Skelly, its Labor Clerk, Philip J. Coffey, and its Assistant Labor Clerk, Frank Curtis, to seek transfers to other departments. Mr. Skelly was appointed in 1906, Mr. Coffey entered the service in 1897, and Mr. Curtis in 1899.

Promotion examination for Deputy Chief in the Fire Department will be held by the Municipal Civil Service Commission on July 14 and 15. Promotion examination for Battalion Chief will be held on July 15 and 16.

Promotion examination has been ordered for stationary engineer, (steam,) Department of Bridges. It will be open to oilers, stokers, and licensed firemen.

The commission has granted the request of Herman Schmeidler that his name be certified from the list of clerk, second grade, only for positions paying not less than $1,050 a year.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces for June 29 an open competitive examination for plant pathologist in potato investigations only, to fill a vacancy in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, at a salary ranging from $1,800 to $2,250 a year, and vacancies as they may occur in positions requiring similar qualifications. The duties will consist of investigations of the diseases of the Irish potato, and especially study of the late blight. Competitors will not be assembled for examination, but will be rated on general education and scientific training, experience in pathological investigations and fitness, and publications or a thesis on pathological or botanical subjects. An educational training equivalent to that required for a Ph. D. degree from a college or university of recognized standing, including graduate work in plant pathology, plant physiology, and cytology, is a prerequisite. Applicants must have reached their twenty-fifth but not their forty-fifth birthday on the date of the examination. Further information may be obtained from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Abnormally low pressure still persists over northern districts west of the Mississippi River, and there were showers over the greater portion of this area, with abnormally low temperatures in the plateau region and the Pacific States.

Snow fell Friday morning in Northern Nevada and killing frosts occurred in other portions of the State and in Eastern Oregon.

The Atlantic Coast disturbance of Thursday night has moved northeast beyond the Canadian Maritime Provinces, and the weather has cleared in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, with rising pressure and moderately low temperatures.

It is also considerably cooler in the Ohio Valley, while in the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys and the Southwest temperatures are still high.

In addition to the western showers there were also thunder showers in the Central Valleys, Tennessee, the East Gulf and South Atlantic States. In the Southwest the weather was fair.

Generally fair weather will continue Saturday and Sunday in the northeastern and southeastern portions of the country, but elsewhere the weather will be unsettled and showery, although generally fair by Sunday west of the Rocky Mountains.

Temperature changes will be irregular over the interior, but not decided over extensive areas.

It will continue moderately cool in New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Winds for Saturday and Sunday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest to north, becoming variable Sunday. Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate north and northeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate, variable, mostly east.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday. Sunday, partly cloudy.

New England—Fair and cooler Saturday and Sunday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

8 A. M.	59	59	4 P. M.	78	71

TO FIGHT MOSQUITOS.

RUMSON, N. J., June 5.—Prominent New Yorkers who summer here have combined to exterminate the mosquitos, which have annoyed Rumson and vicinity for years. Among those active in the movement are Jacob H. Schiff, J. Hassen Rhoades, Fritz Achelis, H. N. Thornell, H. A. Cesar, Thomas H. Banks, James A. Scrymser, Col. William H. Barbour, Ira Barrows, and Mrs. J. C. Hoagland.

The plan contemplates the elimination of every mosquito breeding place within four miles of Little Silver Point, Oceanic, Fair Haven, and Seabright. A ten-year contract has been made with a dredging and irrigating company, which began to install machinery this week.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 6, 1914.

DEMOCRACY AND PEACE.

Undoubtedly President WILSON was on safe ground at Arlington when he gave to democracy the chief credit for the marvelous unity that has grown up in this country since it was torn by civil war. Our contest was over the interpretation of a Constitution resting on democracy. It was not, as were the civil war in England and the later one in France, a revolution undertaken to upset a limited and arbitrary rule and to advance the rights of the mass of the people. But, whether it be a necessary trait of democracy or not, it must be remembered that the main stock of the American people on both sides of that memorable struggle was of English descent, or of descent akin to English, and that they inherited the English aptitude for making the best of any conditions by which they were surrounded. The conditions fifty years ago, at the close of the war, were well defined and unmistakable. Thanks to the stubborn courage and endurance of the people of the South, the war had literally been fought to a finish. The South surrendered only in the last ditch, and in the very bottom of the ditch. No further armed resistance was possible. There was, of course, the possibility of guerrilla warfare, of which, indeed, we had some taste in the Ku-Klux activities, but as a people the South saw that they must in some way live with the North, or not live at all.

On the other hand, though there was for a decade in the North an obstinate attempt to enforce extreme measures in the South, based partly on idealism and partly on partisan zeal and ambition and greed, the great body of the people of the North soon came to see that they must live with the South in substantial accord, or suffer incalculably in the progress of the nation. Thus, while we must give due weight to the sentiment of justice and to the fraternal feeling that arose, the force that wrought most effectively in this unprecedented movement for reunion was the saving common sense of the people of both sections. Unquestionably a democracy gives better opportunity and wider scope to general common sense, and this is in part the secret of the great advance we have made. Whatever view we take of it, the achievement is without precedent in history and is of infinite beneficence.

COL. ROOSEVELT'S STRENGTH.

To underestimate an adversary's strength just before a fight is not safe. This is what The World seems in danger of doing when it compares Col. ROOSEVELT's vote in 1912 with the pitifully small Progressive vote cast in 1913. Col. ROOSEVELT got 390,021 votes, and a year later the Progressives polled only 195,097 votes for Judge HAND, their candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals. The temptation to draw from this the conclusion that Col. ROOSEVELT as the Progressive candidate for Governor would not be a factor of any importance is one that should be resisted. Men usually do not get much excited about an election to the Court of Appeals, and there is little temptation to bolt one's ticket; there certainly was little in 1913. These 195,097 votes, therefore, may be taken as representing the thick-and-thin Progressives, those who would vote the ticket no matter who was on it. Col. ROOSEVELT's vote is largely a personal one. True, Mr. STRAUS got more than he did, but the returns of 1912 show that the votes on the State and national tickets went hand in hand; there was little variation. On the Democratic side, SULZER got 649,559 and WILSON 655,475; on the Republican, HEDGES got 444,105 and TAFT 455,428; on the Progressive, ROOSEVELT got 390,021 and STRAUS 393,188.

It will do no harm to concede at the beginning that Col. ROOSEVELT will get a big vote if he runs. It is not the election returns of 1913 that make him so anxious to dodge the nomination. It is the election returns of 1898, 1898, and 1912. Four times he has run for office in New York. He was defeated for Mayor of this city in 1886; in 1898, with the Spanish war just ended and its glory fresh upon him, he narrowly escaped defeat; in 1904 he carried the State for President, but in a great Republican year, when the divisions that now rend the Republican Party rent its opponent; and in 1912, running for President again, he was third in the race in New York. In other States he ran either first or second, but not in this one. There is hardly any State in the North where his vote-getting capacity is relatively so small as in New York. He might make the race in Minnesota or Michigan with a good deal of confidence, but New York never has been a good field for him.

Has it become a better field? Is there reason to suppose that he has gained in strength, gained so much that he can be elected on a third-party ticket against both the old parties? The bitterness that was felt toward him by Republicans in 1912 may have been somewhat softened since his return from South America; but after his return from Africa in 1910, when he was at the height of his popularity, he could not carry the State for STIMSON. True, STIMSON is not ROOSEVELT, but that campaign was conducted on the assumption that if STIMSON were elected ROOSEVELT would be the real Governor. He got the votes in 1912 of a good many disaffected Republicans who cared nothing for Progressivism, men who wanted to rebuke the party for its legislation at Washington and for other reasons. Those issues are dead now; those votes he will not get. As against Mr. WHITMAN, he would not be likely to get many of the kind of Republican voters who are vaguely dissatisfied with their party leadership. The most he could do would be to defeat the Republican candidate, and it is in the hope of doing that that his Progressive sub-leaders are trying to make him run. If they do, and he is defeated, as he almost surely will be, the effect on his real campaign—that of 1916—will be ruinous. It is no wonder that he is not willing to incur such a loss for so small a gain.

NEW HAVEN'S GREEN.

The first civic centre in the United States, planned in 1638 by Gov. THEOPHILUS EATON as the public square of a future mighty commercial city, ex-President TAFT did well in his speech dedicating the new Post Office that fronts it to recount the associations that cluster about New Haven's Green. That city is not great commercially. Its fine harbor had to compete with a finer one, the finest on this continent, less than a hundred miles distant. But the dust of the Pilgrim ALLERTON, the "father of American commerce," lies under the Liberty Pole of the old Green.

The spirit of JOHN DAVENPORT, New Haven's first minister, still breathes in the three beautiful churches standing on this central square of the oldest existing city plan. Its sod was trodden by GOFFE, WHALLEY, and DIXWELL, the Regicide Judges, and the New Haven Court House, the Public Library, and the College Street façade of Yale University stand before it as memorials of ROGER SHERMAN, NATHAN HALE, JAMES HILLHOUSE, the INGERSOLLS, the DWIGHTS, the HADLEYS, a succession of scholars, patriots, jurists, and constructive statesmen whose influence in the business and councils of this nation is felt through the men who yearly go out from New Haven's university to be its servants. The old Green embellishes a municipality that has extended its powers far outside the physical limits of New Haven. The first city plan has had magnificent fruitage.

THE MENTAL MOURNERS.

In coining the phrase "mental mourning" to characterize the ostentatious pessimism about business exhibited by the politicians, Secretary of Commerce REDFIELD was careful to say in his speech at Raleigh that he did not mean to deride the depressed state of mind that prevails over certain Eastern business areas. The men within these areas of low barometer are really troubled by the weather, he acknowledged, and many of them cannot believe that it will clear up. But there is plenty of sunlight over the great cotton-growing South and the agricultural West, and something moves the dejected Easterners to stimulate by their demand the production of automobiles in and about the lake area. The decline in exports for the month of April is greatest in crude products, but least of all in fully finished manufactures. Of the increase of imports of more than twenty-seven millions over twelve millions was in manufacturers' materials and over eleven millions in foodstuffs. Of imported manufactures for consumers' use there was about $3,000,000 worth. No open-minded person can base an argument for or against the tariff on that trifling sum. There is not basis enough even for an argument about the psychological effect.

THE ANNALIST had already discovered the same fact by inquiry among the merchants most affected by the tariff. They have only an indirect interest in campaigns, being more intent on the entries in their books than upon turning the rascals out upon any argument, good or bad. Among those interviewed by THE ANNALIST was a representative of BUTTERFIELD & Co. Assuming the imports under the new wool schedules—which are among those most criticised—to be double those of recent years—as they cannot be—they would be only 2½ per cent. of the consumption of the country. So small a proportion would be inadequate to cause the trade disaster the politicians dread with fearsome delight. A similar calculation is made for the cotton trade. Others well qualified speak for other trades, with the result that there are disclosed no such conditions or fears as the notoriety-seeking and vote-chasing mental mourners would delight to have exist.

The general depression of trade abroad makes our foreign friends unable to buy from us, and desirous to sell to us at even sacrifice prices. This appears not only in the prices for merchandise, but in the abnormal price which they are willing to pay for gold. To mark up our gold is to enable us to mark down their commodities.

THE USE OF WOOD ALCOHOL.

The amendment of this city's Sanitary Code in 1913 to permit the use of wood alcohol in preparations intended for external use appears to have been unwise. Since its adoption the use of wood alcohol in toilet waters, bay rums, hair tonics, cologne, &c., has rapidly increased. Out of a total of 233 toilet preparations recently examined by the Department of Health more than one-third were found to contain this adulterant. The requirement that such preparations indicate the presence of wood alcohol on the label is frequently evaded. But even proper labeling does not help the patrons of barber shops, who cannot read the labels from their chairs.

Taken internally wood alcohol is a deadly poison. Applied externally to the face it may cause dermatitis, and in some cases blindness. Wood alcohol is highly useful and valuable in certain industries. But its presence in any preparations intended for human use should be absolutely prohibited. That was the conclusion reached by Prof. BASKERVILLE after an exhaustive study for the State Factory Investigating Commission in 1912. The Department of Health announces that legislation forbidding it is now under consideration.

A WOMAN FOR CONGRESS.

In proposing to nominate Mrs. JAMES J. BROWN of Denver and Newport for Congress her friends probably intend no more than to pay her a compliment and are aware of the kind that will please her. Mrs. BROWN has displayed a good deal of activity and energy in a number of ways, and at the time of the Titanic disaster she showed courage and resourcefulness. She is said to have taken virtual command of the boat in which she escaped, calmed the frightened, overruled the incompetent, and directed the work of rescue. That may not prove her possession of the qualities most needed in Congress, but why should not woman demonstrate her fitness for the vote by adopting the same exalted reasons for electing Congressmen that appeal to the sager sex? If HOBSON can run for office as "the hero of the Merrimac," why not Mrs. BROWN as "the heroine of the Titanic"?

But she probably will not. Women divide pretty much as men do in politics, and though they have the vote in ten States they have shown no disposition to make sex a determining consideration in electing candidates. Strange to say, they vote on party lines, and when party lines are broken they bolt in the same direction that men do—except in a few rare instances, as where they supported Judge LINDSEY in a body when he was running independently. Colorado is the leading suffrage State, because it is the only large one where woman suffrage is more than an experiment, but in Colorado very few women have ever been elected to the Legislature, usually not more than one in any given election. The machines are not likely to nominate a woman for Congress, and an independent nomination would probably give Mrs. BROWN merely the pleasure of running.

AVE AQUITANIA!

New York plays no favorites. The cup racers of the world's steam fleets are welcome, whatever flag they fly. Yet it is impossible to deny a special tenderness toward the Captain and the craft which do the harbor credit. It was not the Vaterland's fault that she needed a fleet of tugs and some hours to get into her slip, and narrowly escaped accident at departure. The Aquitania benefited by the hindrances to the Vaterland, and glided into her place at the pier like a lady of quality in a minuet. She behaved as well at sea as in the harbor, showing the speed of her family, and a surpassing steadiness under foot. There were fast boats before the turbines, but the vibration was distressing if they speeded. Now on the 50,000 tonners there is no excuse for dreading the sickness of the sea, and many of those who travel upon them have comforts which they are not accustomed to ashore.

To be sure they must be paid for. Travel on them is not cheap even in the lower classes. But the 50,000 tonners lower the rates on the boats which they outclass. Accommodations which not long ago had to be specially paid for are now at the service of humble travelers on the single cabin plan favored by those of nice tastes and modest means. The thronging of the big boats to New York benefits also the outports which cannot accommodate them. The pleasure palaces of a few years ago, the second class boats of the present, find their place in serving travel of the sort just described.

The larger the tonnage the greater the necessity of coming to New York for accommodation. There are few ports in the world which can float Aquitanias and Vaterlands. Still fewer ports can dock them, and perhaps no other can supply pier accommodations for both passengers and cargo at the same place at the edge of the shore. Here New York's complacency must be limited. Its primacy is more a matter of natural advantages than of judicious development. In no port of New York's class are port facilities worse organized. Nowhere is there such a lack of mechanism for economy and efficiency in handling cargo. Nowhere are there greater inconveniences for passengers in passing from ship to railway. These disadvantages are least in the case of this high-class traffic, and worst on the bread and butter business which comprises the bulk of commerce. Private enterprise is showing the way to transfer business of all sorts from ship to rail without intervention of lighter or wagon, but much remains to be done if New York is to retain its primacy.

A GREAT ART LEADER.

When WILLIAM M. R. FRENCH entered Chicago's School and Museum of Art less than forty years ago the fine arts were regarded by the rough-barked Chicagoans as effeminate and exotic; not nearly so valuable, for instance, as the beef industry that was making their city famous. Last year Director FRENCH saw his museum attended by more people than crowded the Metropolitan Museum in this city, and the day before he died GEORG BRANDES was praising the paintings exhibited in Chicago and comparing the increasing sense of beauty in the rich Western cities with the Renaissance of Venice and Florence.

Mr. FRENCH not only used exquisite judgment in the acquisition of art objects for Chicago, but he preached his aesthetic ideals throughout the country. The art school connected with the Chicago Art Institute became one of the largest in the world, and its pupils became in turn missionaries of the gospel of taste and appreciation of the finer realities of life that is doing more for civilization in America than all the indoctrinating of the social "uplifters."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

How Science Was Robbed by "Ethics."

A truly staggering blow is struck by American Medicine at the contention, so dear to doctors of a certain class, that medical news, no matter how important or how interesting to the general public, should always have its first presentation in the official organs of the profession. They insist that any doctor who procures or even permits announcement of his achievements or discoveries in the daily papers is a sinner beyond compassion or redemption.

Disagreeing utterly with these survivals from another age, and realizing that the war against disease neither is nor ought to be a mystery carefully guarded from the uninitiate, the editor of American Medicine says that the great majority of physicians first learn from the lay press of new things affecting their work. They do look for the full and accurate details later in the technical journals, but "if the facts were not mentioned elsewhere they would come to the attention of only those few men who happen to see a particular journal." Then comes a magnificent illustration of the truth: "This is the way that MENDEL's great discovery was lost for over twenty years."

It was, indeed, and for a good deal over twenty years—for thirty-six, to be exact. For it was in 1865 that MENDEL wrote the essay on hybrid peas which now ranks among the greatest three or four contributions ever made by one man to science. In the most orthodox and "ethical" manner it was first printed—a year later!—in the "transactions" of the society in Brunn for the study of the natural sciences to which he belonged. There, if it had a single reader, not one of them even glimpsed its importance, and it remained buried from the world until 1900, when some strange chance brought it at about the same time to the attention of three men who could appreciate its worth and meaning.

Had MENDEL's paper, or an intelligent abstract of it, appeared first in a real newspaper with a real circulation it certainly would have come to the notice of the group headed by Darwin, the theory of evolution would have been at once modified, and a vast amount of subsequent work in this field would have been done in a clear light, not a confusing fog of error as to the exact nature of cross matings.

Commuters Had a Warning.

When the New Haven road was criticised in this column for not making prompt and full announcement at the Grand Central Station of the delay to which its trains were subjected as a result of the severe electrical storm of May 27, an injustice to the company was done, not the less to be regretted because it was wholly unintentional.

It is true that the indignation then voiced here was shared by a good many New Haven commuters who were imprisoned in stalled trains when they might and would have taken dinner in town if they had known betimes the state of the service that afternoon. That they did not know it, however, was not, we now learn, the fault of the New Haven officials, but that of the commuters themselves, who, in their usual fashion, had rushed through the gates to their trains without a single glance at the bulletin boards beside them.

Had they looked there they would have received the information they complained of not getting, for it was posted in large and legible letters as soon as news of the breakdown reached the station and there it remained till the embargo on traffic was raised by the repair gangs. More than that, the guards at the gates had been ordered to explain the situation to the arriving passengers, and no doubt they did it to those who questioned them after noticing the announcements posted.

The only excuse for criticism that remains—and to use it is ungracious after making a false accusation—is that the measures taken, though elaborate and commendable, did not sufficiently consider the long known habits of the commuting class, its invariable haste, and its natural failure to do the things done by occasional travelers. That is proved by the fact that the efforts to warn the commuters were far from wholly successful. We admit that this one excuse is a pretty poor one, for commuters have no better right than other people to be negligent and stupid.

A Defense of the Stockyards.

GEORG BRANDES is another distinguished foreigner whose delicate sensibilities have been offended by the activities conducted at the Chicago stockyards. His expressions of pain, however, were like those of many a sensitive native, so it is not as an alien that we purpose to labor with him, but merely as with one of many who might well hesitate before indulging in criticism which is after all mere psittacism—"parrot-talk," to use plain English.

The Chicago stockyards do, of course, assail the refined visitor with both scenes and scents that are unpleasant, offensive, or horrible, according to the extent and nature of his refinement. But the business carried on there must be called honest and even commendable by everybody who admits the permissibility of killing animals for food, and the butcher work is done in Chicago nowadays in a scientific, cleanly, and humane manner.

Until we all become vegetarians, that business will have to be transacted somewhere, and it is better, not worse, to transact it on a wholesale scale in a few places than to scatter it all over the country in little slaughter houses where it would be worse conducted and in the sight of many more people than under the present system.

Nobody sees what goes on in the stockyards who doesn't go there voluntarily. Some of us who do not like bloody spectacles find it easy to avoid them, but while we continue to eat beef and mutton and pork we deem it only fair to refrain from scolding or deriding Chicago for anything except the prices it charges for the meats it provides.

Yachting Secrets Considered.

Why is it necessary for the men engaged in building and sailing contestants for the America's Cup to do so much of their work in secrecy? They hide the exact dimensions and "lines" of the boats as if they were old-fashioned manufacturers guarding trade secrets, and really this is not quite pretty for amateurs and gentlemen who in pretense or sincerity—no doubt it's sincerity—have in mind many better and higher things than the mere beating of a rival in competition for a thing of value.

Concealment may be business, but it is not in accord with the nobler ideals of sport. Those ideals are, or are supposed to be, exemplifications of generosity and chivalry, and not victory, but the manner of victory, is what counts.

The ideal sportsman doesn't "spring things" on his opponent, and he is readier to give than to take advantage. So, if the yachtsmen on either side of the sea can teach those on the other side anything, why don't they do it, betimes and gladly?

Some of us hate, too, the laboriously guarded secrets of college football and college rowing. They go well with gate receipts, but ill with contests for pure joy and glory.

FUNDS FOR MANOEUVRES.

Legislature Would Have Granted Them if Properly Urged.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is unfortunate that the Legislature of 1914 failed to make an appropriation for the Summer and Fall manoeuvres for the National Guard of this State. The fault must be at the door of the Adjutant General in failing to impress upon the Legislature the importance of field manoeuvres for the National Guard. The Legislature has been more than liberal in appropriating money for the use and vocation of the National Guard when the subject matter was properly presented to them.

It is more serious at the present time that this appropriation was not made, in view of the fact that the National Guard of this State may be called into service in the Mexican trouble. The 18,000 enlisted men and officers of the Guard look to the manoeuvres as an appreciation by the State of their voluntary services, in which the State becomes the benefactor in these manoeuvres.

New York is the only State in the Union that has a complete division in the Militia Reserve of the United States, due to the fact of the liberal appropriations by past Legislatures.

PRISONERS' HIRE.

Contractor Found Penitentiary's Silk Petticoats Unprofitable.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to a communication of Miss Florence Kelley, General Secretary of the National Consumers' League on Prison Contract Goods, printed on May 30, I wish to state that she has been misinformed concerning the manufacturing of silk petticoats in the West Virginia Penitentiary.

The contractor paid 75 cents per day to the State, per man, and not 50 cents, as quoted by Miss Kelley. In addition, the diligent prisoners were paid a considerable sum on account of exceeding the work assigned to them. This contractor found that silk petticoats could not be manufactured profitably with convict labor, as a result of which the contract was surrendered two years prior to its expiration. The company has since organized and is operating a similar factory in a nearby city, and seems to be operating successfully.

Attracting Church Members.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just read the delightful bit in THE TIMES about the Long Island pastor who covenants with the men of his parish to begin the Sunday service at 10 and stop promptly at 11, permitting them to attend in their golfing clothes, so as to have time for 18 holes before lunch. But my feeling is that the pastor in question has no true claim to be designated "A Progressive Clergyman." Your real "progressive parson" would have the 9th hole on the church green, giving the men an opportunity to drop into the service for a few moments' rest and refreshment in passing. People use terms so loosely nowadays!

AN ULTRA-PROGRESSIVE.
Southampton, June 4, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Both my wife and myself have been struck by wet and dirty footballs and baseballs while traversing the streets of our neighborhood in Brooklyn. Of course we received apologies in most cases, but what cure are apologies for broken noses, blackened eyes, or ruined clothing?

I don't blame the children for these breaches of the law, but those who have charge of them and who are older should see to it that the young ones do not become a menace to life and limb. I should like to see the children given proper places for such games in all neighborhoods.

GLYNN STIRS SUFFRAGE IRE.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 5.—A delegation of woman suffragists called on Gov. Glynn today to receive his answer to an invitation that had been given to him to speak at a suffrage mass meeting to be held in Odd Fellows' Hall tomorrow night. The Governor declined to participate actively in the meeting.

"He's playing politics," said Miss Elsie Lincoln Vandegrift, who was one of the delegation. An invitation had been extended on Monday to the Governor to be the chief speaker at the meeting, and Miss Vandegrift, who is the suffragist organizer of Colorado; Miss Ruth Leonard, Mrs. Andrew MacFarlane, Mrs. Edward S. Deevey, and Mrs. Edward Easton, Jr., waited on the Governor at noon to receive his answer. Gov. Glynn received his callers in the Executive Chamber. An earnest conversation of ten minutes' duration followed.

At its conclusion Miss Vandegrift said that the committee had "called his bluff," adding, "it hasn't percolated into his brain that the band wagon has arrived and that a woman is on the front seat.

"The Governor," Miss Vandegrift continued, "tried to beg off on the ground that he probably could not make as radical and strenuous a speech in favor of our cause as we might desire. He admitted that he thought we were going to get the vote, and so we asked him to come and simply make that statement."

Governor Glynn declined the invitation to sit on the stage, saying that if he attended the meeting it would be as a citizen, and that he would sit with the audience.

"You can put it down," said Miss Vandegrift, "that we are going to get the vote in 1915, not 1950, and when Gov. Glynn runs for United States Senator he will be sorry he turned us down, for the women of this State will be voting then."

DELAY IN TOLLS VOTE.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Little progress was made in the Senate today on the tolls repeal legislation, and no conclusive vote is likely now before next Tuesday.

Senators Cummins, Poindexter, La Follette, and Smith of Michigan, Republicans, intend to speak at length on the measure. Senator Cummins will do so to-morrow. The speeches of Senators Poindexter and La Follette are expected each to consume the greater part of a day. Senator La Follette has discovered what is alleged to be new material bearing on the question and a speech in volume not unlike his recent collection of data bearing on the advance rate case is anticipated.

Evidence of a belief on the part of the Administration that the saving clause proposed to be attached to the tolls repeal bill must be made much stronger than the amendment offered by Senator Simmons, which was adopted by committee, was afforded today. Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia, an Administration Senator, made several drafts of a saving clause of much clearer language and broader meaning, which he proposes to offer in the Senate.

While not affirmatively stating the right of the United States to exempt its coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls, Senator Smith's amendment will provide against breaking down in any manner the complete control and sovereignty of the United States over the Canal. He has made several drafts of the amendment in an attempt to get one satisfactory to a majority of the Senate.

In order to recover part of the time lost today in discussions which Senator Borah facetiously termed a filibuster against the bill by its friends, Senator O'Gorman asked and obtained consent for a motion for a recess until 11 o'clock tomorrow. This was to save time at the opening of the session by eliminating "morning business."

MOTION PICTURES OF GAMES.

Why Not Use Them to Teach the Best Tennis and Golf Strokes?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In these days of novelty might I suggest the introduction of the moving picture as a great aid in athletic games of all kinds. Tennis and golf number their enthusiasts by the thousands, and I am sure many of us would be only too glad to pay for the privilege of seeing the champions of these two sports in slow action.

I have tried to the best of my ability to learn from books the correct method of making the different strokes. Also I have studied McLoughlin and Travers and attempted to copy their movements exactly. The result has been the most miserable failure. If one could watch a moving picture of McLoughlin, for instance, making a forehand drive and have the reel run off so slowly that each position could be memorized, how much more useful it would be than the pages of advice to beginners in the various hand books.

This summer we are to have assembled the greatest tennis players in the world, and if some enterprising company could induce Wilding, Brooks, McLoughlin, Williams, and others to pose for the camera while making their various strokes, and then during the Winter months reproduce these films with the help of some professional to explain them, I am sure many of us would be eternally grateful.

"Teleseme" Not New.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent, William Allaire Shortt, will find "teleseme" derived and defined in the Century Dictionary. When the Hôtel Imperial was opened in this city each guest room was equipped with a "teleseme." This consisted of a dial carying the names of a large number of things a guest would be likely to want—from various beverages to valet service. A movable pointer was used to indicate what was wanted. When the pointer was placed over "cab" and a button pushed, a receiving indicator in the hotel office registered "cab" and the room number and a bell rang or buzzed. If memory serves, this electrical signaling device was installed by a Dr. Herzog. A similar system was placed some years later in the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia.

CRISIS.

Can this be you and I—so lately glad?
So near, and yet how far and cold you seem!

My heart seems dead. No words come to my aid—
The miseries of past mistakes crowd nigh
Do you, too, feel them, hov'ring vulture-like,
As, sitting here, we watch the evening die?

My fault! I've walked unheedingly beside you, blind.
How face the thought of wasting joy so deep?
How shall I bear it all alone, this Life?
No. Better far the poppied path—to sleep!

• • • •

Through veils of tears a miracle I see!
Beloved hands stretched out to hold me fast—
Your lips! I feel them, warm upon my mouth—
The old light in your eyes—re-lit at last!

And feel my trembling spirit winging back—
Safe and forgiv'n—a tired, homing bird.

N. Y. U. ALUMNI TO GATHER.

Graduates of Fifty Years Ago Will Attend To-day's Reunion.

A large delegation of the older alumni of New York University is expected today at University Heights to participate in the annual Alumni Day exercises. Officers of the university have sent invitations to all alumni of more than fifty years' standing. John J. Stevenson, '04, Professor Emeritus of Geology, has charge of the arrangements for the expected guests.

John J. Rice, '64, Dean of Westminster College, Missouri, will meet a classmate in John Chalmers, whom he has not seen for more than half a century.

It is hard to realize that it is now half a century since I bade you goodbye in the horse car, clad in the uniform of the Twenty-second, when you started for the front," said Mr. Rice in a letter to his old friend, who he thought was long since dead.

Many of the later classes will attend in costume. There will be prizes for the class most interestingly costumed and the class, one of whose members has come the greatest distance. There will be prizes also for the classes which can show the greatest number of members present and which can produce the oldest living alumnus. It is expected that the latter prize will go to the class of '44.

After luncheon and election of officers the classes will parade about the campus in the order of their seniority, and will finally go to Ohio Field, where they will be reviewed and judged. The annual Alumni Day games will be followed by a game of baseball between Trinity College and New York University.

One of the main topics of conversation is expected to be the plan of Andrew Ten Eyck, which calls for a central organization to include all the alumni bodies of the various schools, together with the publication of an alumni monthly, the establishment of a central office and permanent Secretary for caring for the alumni matters and the founding of an employment board for recent alumni.

PASTOR FOR FORTY YEARS.

Festival Week at Mt. Washington Church in Dr. Payson's Honor.

The Mount Washington Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Dyckman Street, will hold a series of meetings during the coming week in honor of the completion of the fortieth year of the pastorate of the Rev. George Shipman Payson, D. D. Dr. Payson was graduated from Yale in 1866 and from the Union Theological Seminary in 1871, spent two years traveling in Europe and Palestine, and acted as special agent for the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church for one year. On June 8, 1874, he came to the Mt. Washington Church, his first and only pastorate.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Payson will deliver an address on the history of the church during his pastorate. In the evening the Rev. Henry M. MacCracken, the Rev. Dr. Jesse F. Forbes, the Rev. Ira S. Dodd, and the Rev. David Baines-Griffith will deliver greetings from the clergy of the Presbytery of New York. Tuesday night will see a reception by the women of the congregation for Dr. and Mrs. Payson, and on Wednesday evening the church's midweek service will be turned into a reminiscence meeting, at which several of the older members of the congregation will talk of life in Inwood during the last forty years. On Thursday night Dr. Payson will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the brotherhood of the church, and on the following Sunday morning the Children's Day exercises of the Sunday School will be featured by greetings of the children to their pastor.

PARK NEWS STANDS STAY.

Sites Will Be Changed—Music to be Improved.

Park Commissioner Cabot Ward, accompanied by the Newsdealers' Committee of the Publishers' Association, inspected the news stands in City Hall Park yesterday, and it was announced later that the stands would be allowed to remain, but that their location would be changed so as not to interfere with public traffic. Chairman Victor Ridder said that the committee heartily indorsed Commissioner Ward's plans for the relocation of the stands. Mayor Mitchel said:

"I did not know anything about the controversy until I returned from the West. Commissioner Ward has informed me that the matter has been satisfactorily settled. The stands will be allowed to stay, but they will be located differently, so as not to interfere with traffic."

The Park Commissioner announced that he had appointed a committee of prominent composers, musical directors, and critics to improve the music of the band concerts held in the city parks. On the committee are Victor Herbert, Frank Damrosch, John Philip Sousa, Reginald De Koven, Nahan Franko, Henry E. Krehbiel, Richard Aldrich, musical critic of THE TIMES; Manuel Klein, and David Mannes. The committee will meet with Commissioner Ward next Monday.

JUNE WEEK AT WEST POINT.

Opens with a Review—Seventh Regiment to be There Today.

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 5.—June Week was formally opened at the Military Academy today with a review of the battalion by the members of the Academy Board, headed by Col. C. P. Townsley, Superintendent, and Capt. George Vidmer, Adjutant. The battalion was in command of Col. Morton F. Smith, Commandant of Cadets. A reception to the officers of the post and the cadets of the senior class was held on the lawn at Col. Townsley's quarters after the review. Tonight there was a band concert.

The polo game between the cadets and Squadron A of New York was postponed until tomorrow morning because of a wet field. The Seventh Regiment of New York is coming here tomorrow at noon to give a review and dress parade before the cadets and officers. The regiment's ball team and the cadet team will play a game in the afternoon. At night there will be a hop.

JULY 4 COMMITTEE STARTS.

Chairman Littleton Sends Out Letter Asking for Funds.

The Mayor's Fourth of July Committee began its work for another safe and sane July 4 yesterday by sending out letters appealing for funds. Martin W. Littleton is President of the committee this year, and is the author of the letter which was sent to hundreds of business men yesterday. He said in it that the safe and sane method of celebration saves from destruction hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property and allows for a real patriotic significance to the day.

Contributions, which will be acknowledged through the press, should be sent to Edward Hagaman Hall, Secretary, Tribune Building. Checks should be made payable to Isaac N. Seligman, Treasurer.

CRITICISE M'ADOO FOR SUBWAY DELAY

Secretary Says Plan Benefits the Interborough Only—City Wants Concession for Nominal Payment.

Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, unless he sees fit in the next few days, to give a decision on the request of the Public Service Commission for an easement for a subway under the Post Office, which was made six months ago, is likely to receive an urgent representation on the subject from the Board of Estimate. The matter came up at the meeting of the board yesterday and was referred to the Transit Committee, consisting of President McAneny and Borought Presidents Pounds and Mathewson, who will consider it next Tuesday.

Controller Prendergast criticised the delay on the part of the Secretary, when the question came up on the application of the Public Service Commission for the approval of the Spruce Street route as an alternative in case the Government demanded too much for the Beekman Street line.

"It may take," explained Leroy T. Harkness, assistant counsel of the commission, "several months to obtain the property owners' consents for the new line, and we may have to go to the Appellate Division to get a commission appointed, if the property owners decline to agree. We have already lost six months on account of the delay in connection with the easement under the Post Office, and, even if the board desires to negotiate further with Washington, it should approve the alternative route we suggest."

"In other words," said Mr. McAneny, "we face the possibility of having finished subways lying idle because of Mr. McAdoo's refusal to permit the construction of the Post Office line."

"Up to the present," Controller Prendergast asserted, "Secretary McAdoo has done nothing but delay subway building. It is more than six months since the matter of this route was referred to him, and nothing has come from him save an indirect intimation that he bases the easement valuation at $1,000,000 on an appraisal of what it would be worth if the Federal Government had a full title to the Post Office site, which it has not. Nothing could suggest the payment of more than a nominal fee."

Mr. McAneny thought that, as this was the first time the subject had come before the board, the Transit Committee should be empowered to consult with the Public Service Commission about it and see if some way could not be reached by which the problem could be solved. He afterward made a request that the commission should provide the Transit Committee with all the correspondence which had passed between it and the Secretary in connection with the Beekman Street route.

This correspondence begins with the request made by the commission on Jan. 12 that Secretary McAdoo should grant the city the Post Office easement. It quoted in a deed it sent the Secretary, as a suggestion, the act of Congress giving the Secretary the right to grant the city the easement "for such consideration, nominal or otherwise," as he might deem proper, and proposed that the easement be forty feet wide and thirty-five feet below the street level, and that the price the city should pay should be only $1.

The answer of the department disapproving the deed was not sent until March 7, and the Secretary then asked the city to pay for such expert legal and engineering opinions as the Government might consider necessary on the part of the Government. A conference was held between the Secretary of the Treasury and Travis H. Whitney, Secretary, Leroy T. Harkness, Assistant Counsel, and other officials of the commission, on March 23, and some

CENTURY OPERA IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES

But Greater Number of Performances Will Still Be in English Next Season.

TO SEEK SINGERS ABROAD

Milton Aborn, Sailing Today, Says That He Will Find American Artists in European Companies.

Milton Aborn, general manager, with his brother, Sargent Aborn, of the Century Opera Company, who sails this morning for Europe on the Imperator, issued a statement yesterday in which he announced officially that opera would be sung in foreign languages as well as in English at the Century next season. It has been known that this step was being considered, but it had not been admitted officially up to yesterday.

The greater number of performances will still be in English. "La Bohème," "La Traviata," "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Pagliacci," and "Cavalleria Rusticana" will each be given six performances in English and two in Italian. "Lohengrin" and "Tannhäuser," the latter a novelty for the Century, as is also the case of "La Traviata," will each be sung in German twice, and for the remaining six performances in English. Operas which are scheduled for performance only in English are: "Carmen," "Romeo and Juliet," "William Tell," "Faust," and "The Barber of Seville." Of the latter group "William Tell" and "The Barber of Seville" are novelties for the Century.

These operas comprise the list for the first ten weeks of the season. No mention of plans for the second ten weeks is made, and it is said that the extent of the foreign language performances will be determined by their reception during the first ten weeks.

Mr. Aborn will go to London first, and afterward to Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Milan. He will be gone six weeks, during which time he will be on the lookout for new singers for the company.

"You would naturally think," said Mr. Aborn yesterday, "that when you wish to engage American singers you would look for them in America. But, strange as it may seem, you must search almost anywhere except in their own country for them. We have heard many splendid voices in this country, and there are enough of them here to make up the casts of many fine grand opera companies if they were trained and experienced in the grand opera repertoire.

"Their opportunities for this in America are very small, as there are few lesser operatic organizations from which they can graduate to the larger ones. Europe is full of grand opera companies ranging from the smallest to the greatest artistic standards, and it is in these institutions that young American artists acquire a large repertoire and develop their talents. It is there you must go to find them."

During Milton Aborn's absence, Sargent Aborn will remain at the Century Opera House to carry along the preparations for the season being made there this Summer, among which are the remodeling of the building, the building of scenery and the training of the chorus.

COHAN GREETS THE FRIARS.

New Abbot Holds Reception—Will Work for New Clubhouse.

George M. Cohan, the actor-playwright, who was yesterday elected the Abbot of the Friars Club, held a reception for members at the clubhouse at 11 o'clock last night.

The election of officers of the club took place yesterday afternoon and the officers chosen, besides Mr. Cohan, were William Collier, Dean; Corresponding Secretary, John J. Gleason; Recording Secretary, Rennold Wolf; Treasurer, Richard J. Hatzel; Governors for the two-year term, Sam H. Harris, Mike Simons, George S. Dougherty, Ralph Trier, and John W. Rumsey. The five governors elected to office last year for a period of two years, who will hold office until next June, are Channing Pollock, H. H. Burnside, Frank D. Thomas, Fred Belcher, and Harrison Fisher.

George Cohan, the new Abbot, succeeds John W. Rumsey, who had held the office for four successive terms. The report of the Treasurer showed the club to be in a very flourishing condition, and under Mr. Cohan's direction the Friars are planning to proceed rapidly with the building of their new clubhouse in West Forty-eighth Street.

A set of resolutions praising Mr. Rumsey for the work he has done for the club will be drawn up and presented to the former Abbot.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Julian Eltinge sails on the Imperator today for a six weeks' vacation in Europe. He will visit London, Paris, Berlin, and Vienna to look over the theatrical attractions in those centres, and then make an automobile tour of France and Italy. Mr. Eltinge will begin the next season in "The Crinoline Girl" on Labor Day.

Members of the "Panthea" company, which terminated its engagement at the Booth Theatre recently, will leave for Chicago this morning, where the play will open tomorrow evening at the Garrick Theatre. Mme. Olga Petrova will continue to star in the title role.

Tonight, at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, David Warfield will bring his season of thirty-five weeks in "The Auctioneer" to a close.

Arthur Hammerstein has changed his plan to have "High Jinks" run all Summer at the Casino Theatre. The engagement of the Hauerbach-Frimi musical comedy will close next Saturday night and reopen on Aug. 3.

Monday evening at the Globe Theatre will be Motion Picture Convention night, when 500 members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association will attend a performance of Annette Kellermann in "Neptune's Daughter."

KEPT WEDDING SECRET.

Son of Rev. Pascal Harrower and Miss Bear Married on May 25.

Announcement was made last night of the marriage of Perrie E. Harrower, 24 years old, son of the Rev. Pascal Harrower of the Church of the Ascension of West New Brighton, S. I., to Miss Marie Bear, 21 years old, daughter of Mrs. M. H. Pancoast of St. George. The ceremony took place May 25 and was performed by the Rev. J. J. Billingsley, pastor of the West Tenth Street Methodist Episcopal Church in New York.

The announcement of the wedding was a surprise to the parents and friends of the couple. It was learned that on the morning of May 25 the couple came to Manhattan, obtained a license at the City Hall, and then went to the church. Both returned to their respective homes and did not make mention of the wedding.

The bridegroom is a baritone singer. The bride was editor of the woman's page of The Richmond County Advance and is a suffragette. She is the head of the Junior Political Economy League, a member of the Richmond County House Wives' League and also prominent socially.

There is no opposition to the marriage. The couple were asked why they kept the marriage a secret and said that they had personal matters to attend to before making it public.

Miss Fuller to Wed E. P. Larned.

The engagement was also announced last evening at the dinner Mr. and Mrs. William Ayrault Hazard gave at Meadow Hall, their Cedarhurst (L. I.) country home, for their daughter, Miss Katharine Hazard and her financé, Courtlandt Dixon Moss, whose marriage takes place in St. John's Episcopal Church at Far Rockaway this noon.

Miss Fuller is to be one of the four bridesmaids at the wedding. Mr. Larned was graduated from Princeton in the class of 1906 and is a member of the Racquet Club. No date has been mentioned for the wedding.

Finch-Gardner Wedding June 18.

The wedding of Miss Adelaide Barbour Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Le Briton Gardner of New York and Ridgewood, N. J., and Rufus Crane Finch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Finch of Plainfield, N. J., is to take place on Thursday, June 18, in Christ Church at Ridgewood.

The bride will be unattended. Edward R. Finch is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will include Frederick C. Tanner, Warren W. Barbour, Stanley M. Seaman, H. L. Finch, Jr., all of New York; George W. Elkins, Jr., of Philadelphia, and William Palmer Smith, Jr., of Netherwood, N. J.

A reception will follow at Kenmore, the country home of the bride's parents. The couple's engagement was announced last April.

The Rev. Robert Bruce Clark and Mrs. Clark announce the engagement of their only daughter, Miss Marjorie Clark, to Lieut. John Morris Sneallie, U. S. N. Miss Clark is a graduate of Wheaton College. Her fathre is pastor of the Church of the Puritans, 130th Street and Fifth Avenue. Although no date has been set for the wedding, it will take place shortly.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has engaged a suite of rooms at Cottage K, Garden City, L. I., and will remain there with her guests, near Meadow Brook, next week. A polo ball is to be given at the Garden City Hotel on June 12. It will be a fancy dress affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Delafield, who spent several weeks with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sloane, at Princeton, N. J., will next week open Quogue Point, their Summer home at West Hampton Beach, L. I.

Mrs. William Curtis Demorest and her daughter, Miss Charlotte Demorest, are sailing for Europe today. They will be at the Hyde Park Hotel, London, until July, when they go to Dinard, to be joined there by Mr. Demorest. They will spend the Autumn at their Adirondack camp.

Mr. and Mrs. George Austin Morrison, Jr., are the guests over the week-end of Dr. D. Hunter McAlpin and Mrs. McAlpin at Morris Plains, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Kobbé have left Short Hills, N. J., and have gone to Lawrence, L. I., for the Summer. Miss Martha Leavitt Kobbé is spending two weeks at Southampton.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Wagstaff, (Miss Mary Cutting Cumnock,) whose marriage took place on Thursday, will spend the Summer with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Cumnock at Seabright, N. J., and in the Autumn will occupy their own home at Babylon, L. I.

The wedding of Miss Katharine Hazard, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ayrault Hazard, and Courtlandt Dixon Moss will take place at 12 o'clock today in St. John's Church at Far Rockaway, and will be followed by a reception at Meadow Hall, the Hazard country place at Cedarhurst.

Mrs. Henry Mason Day and family of 1 West Seventy-fifth Street have gone to their Summer home at Belle Haven, Greenwich, Conn.

Mrs. Theodore F. Wood of 495 West End Avenue has returned from abroad after four months' travel through Palestine and Egypt.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Trevor of 11 East Ninety-first Street have leased a camp at Saranac Lake, where they are spending the Summer.

The marriage of Miss Theodora Winship, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cooper Winship, and Richard Percival Parsons will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Cathedral of the Incarnation at Garden City, L. I., and will be followed by a small reception at Honeysuckle Lodge.

MAE SULLIVAN ON STAGE.

Breach of Promise Plaintiff Finds Means to Pay a Bill.

Although it was not brought out in her breach of promise suit against Arthur I. Hoe that she had ever been a singer or dancer or had ever appeared on the stage in any other capacity Mae Sullivan is to appear at Hammerstein's next week in a singing and dancing sketch.

The young woman has been engaged at a salary of $1,000 a week, this figure being made a matter of court record yesterday by Mirabeau Towns, her attorney. Miss Sullivan appeared in Part Two, Special Term of the City Court before Justice Green in answer to a butcher's claim for $229 due on a meat bill. As supplementary proceedings are scheduled for next Monday Miss Sullivan's appearance was not necessary yesterday and she was excused.

MUSIC NOTES.

The New York Military Band, Edwin Franko Goldman, conductor, will play Saturday afternoon at the closing exercises of the Festival and Pageant of Nations, which began Monday night. The exercises will be held at the playground at Eleventh Street and First Avenue.

Mme. Arctowska will give a recital of modern French songs at Brandt Lodge, Hastings-on-Hudson, Sunday afternoon. Miss Florence Irwin will give a talk on the modern French school and Mrs. Frederick William Fisk will be at the piano.

MANAGERS PREPARE TO FIGHT UNIONS

New Protective Association Will Deal with Demands Expected from Stage Hands.

IN HARMONY WITH ACTORS

Equity Association Has Made No Demands, and Relies on Managers to Make Reasonable Concessions.

With Klaw & Erlanger, the Shuberts, William A. Brady, and other theatrical concerns all interested the newly formed United Managers Protective Association of the Amusement Interests of the United States and Canada, held its first general meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon behind closed doors. President Marc Klaw was in the chair and the meeting lasted from 2 o'clock until 6. Several hundred theatrical and moving picture managers were present, and it was reported that steps were taken to make a fight upon the demands of the various theatrical unions. No action was taken in regard to the Actors' Equity Association, and it was stated that the managers' association and the actors' society would work in harmony.

President Klaw said that the regulation of the amount of initiation and dues for the individual and for the concerns representing many interests took up most of the time yesterday. He announced the appointment of an Executive Committee by the Board of Governors that will have the practical direction of the affairs of the association. The committee is composed of A. L. Erlanger, William A. Brady, Walter Vincent, B. F. Albee, and Al Hayman.

Mr. Klaw, after the meeting, was asked if the new organization of actors which is making certain demands relative to their contracts was discussed. He said "no," and added that the managers have no grievance with the actors and most of the demands of the players, he said, were embraced in the contracts made with his firm and with the other larger managers. There would probably be a division of sentiment among the actors themselves, Mr. Klaw said, as to whether they would demand whole salaries for the rehearsals in the days and Holy Week and thereby run the risk of having the companies laid off entirely for those weeks. He said while some would prefer to have the entire salaries or not work, others would probably prefer to work for half salaries.

Another contention of the actors is that the period of rehearsal be limited to four weeks for dramatic productions and five weeks for musical comedies and other spectacular work, and that the managers be obligated to give the performers at least two weeks' engagement with full salaries. No compensation is asked during rehearsal. Mr. Klaw said this was not discussed because the actors have made no formal demands of the managers.

Mr. Klaw said, however, that the musicians are distributing some kind of a circular expressing a grievance with the managers, but he said the circular had not yet reached the association and he could not anticipate what they would ask for.

It was learned from another member of the association, however, that the musicians, electricians, and stage carpenters are expected to demand that the men in those trades who have been laid off because of the reduction in the number of road companies be employed as extra men at full wages, and that the managers' association was prepared to deal with that situation.

There are persistent rumors among the people in the theatrical business that the managers will encounter trouble with the mechanical unions at the opening of the season next Fall. While the actors are preparing for any emergency that may arise if they do not agree with the managers upon a uniform contract it is not believed by either the managers or the officers of the newly formed Actors' Equity Association that there will be any difficulty in adjusting any disagreement that may arise between them.

Secretary Kyle of the Actors' Equity Association said he was glad to know that the managers had organized their association. He said no demands had been made of the managers' organization, and he did not believe it would be necessary to make any demands, because he had always found the managers willing to make any reasonable concession at the actors' request.

$1,417 LOOSE IN HER BAG

A young woman, who was found acting strangely at the Grand Central Station last night, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, and when her handbag was opened it was found to be stuffed with bills of all denominations. The money totaled $1,417. The woman said she was Miss Ellen Bushnell of Great Barrington, Mass., and she gave her nearest relative as her brother, Walter Bushnell of Hillsdale, N. Y. A communication was sept to him and she was placed in the psychopathic ward.

Miss Bushnell, who was neatly dressed and refined, was seen at the station by Miss Helen Michaelson, an agent of the Travelers' Aid Society. She was accompanied by a Scotch collie which barked excitedly as she mumbled to herself.

Miss Michaelson asked the woman, who had apparently just alighted from a train, where she was going. Miss Bushnell said she had come to New York to visit the big ships. She also said she was going to be the Captain of the Aquitania and the Titanic. Miss Michaelson coaxed her onto a car and took her to a hospital. The Scotch collie got a home in the stable at the hospital for the time being.

Judge Hornblower Worse.

LITCHFIELD, Conn., June 5.—The condition of Judge William B. Hornblower of New York, who is seriously ill of heart trouble, was less favorable today, according to a report from the Hornblower Summer home here. He was slightly worse, it was said.

State Music Teachers' Convention.

The New York State Music Teachers' Association will hold its twenty-sixth annual convention at Saratoga Springs on June 17, 18, and 19. Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra will appear in a musical programme, the soloists for which include Evan Williams, tenor, and Millo Picco, baritone. John C. Freund, editor of a musical magazine, will make an address.

Gershon Rusling.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 5.— Gershon Rusling, 82 years of age, one of the oldest residents of this city, and a former well-known business man of New York City, died today at Greystone Park, the Passaic County Insane Asylum, where he had been an inmate fifteen years. In 1883 Rusling polled the largest Democratic vote in Passaic County when he was a candidate for Mayor of this city against Gen. Bird W. Spencer. He was a member of the old City Council, a member of the old Excise Commission, and had lived here for forty-three years. He made large sums of money in real estate transactions. Mr. Rusling left three daughters and a brother, Gen. Rusling of Trenton.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 5.—Mrs. Richard T. Wilson of Newport and New York received word today of the sudden death of her father, Dr. Amos Lawrence Mason of Boston, who died in Albany from heart disease. Mrs. Wilson left for Boston with Mr. and Mrs. E. Rollins Morse, her relatives, who have been staying at the La Forge cottage. Dr. Mason had been comng to this city for many years, and was known to many of the Summer colony.

Dr. Amos Lawrence Mason was 72 years old, was born in Salem, Mass., the son of the Rev. Charles and Susannah Lawrence Mason. He was graduated from Harvard with the degree of A. B. in 1863, and received the degree of M. D. in 1872. He studied medicine in Vienna, Paris, and London, and in 1871-72 was an interne in the Massachusetts General Hospital. He then became physician to the Carney Hospital from 1878 until 1903, when he was appointed senior physician, and was consulting physician at the time of his death of the Boston City Hospital. Dr. Mason was formerly associate professor of clinical medicine of Harvard University. He was a member of the Association of American Physicians, the Massachusetts Medical Society, and the Society of Colonial Wars.

Robert J. Redding.

Robert J. Redding, 78 years old, a widely known authority on agriculture, died in Griffin, Ga., on Thursday. He was born in Monroe County, Ga., and was graduated from Brownwood Institute, practiced law from 1857 to 1859, and was Judge of the Inferior Court of Schley County during 1860 and 1861. He was Captain of the Forty-sixth Georgia Infantry of the Confederate Army during the civil war. From 1875 until 1889 he was Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture for Georgia, and a Director of the Georgia Agricultural Experimental Station from 1889 until 1906. Mr. Redding was editor of The Southern World for two years, and for the last eighteen years in charge of the farm department of The Atlanta Constitution.

Mrs. Wolf Silverstone.

Mrs. Wolf Silverstone of 24 Lenox Avenue, who had been a large contributor to Jewish charities since the death of her husband twenty-four years ago, died yesterday at her home. With her husband, Mrs. Silverstone came to this country from Russia fifty-six years ago. Mr. Silverstone bought a large piece of land in Park Row, and until his retirement from business was engaged in the clothing and the real estate business. The property in Park Row and other property was left to Mrs. Silverstone, and she is said to have devoted practically the entire income to charity. Among the institutions to which she was a regular contributor were the uptown Talmud Torah, the Home for the Aged, at Montgomery Street and East Broadway, conducted by the Daughters of Jacob, and the Malbish Aronan School for Poor Boys, in Harlem. She was one of the oldest seat holders in the combined Chrystie and Henry Street Synagogue. A son, Louis, and three daughters, Mrs. Fanny Epstein, Mrs. Minnie Gordon, and Mrs. Nettie Morris survive.

Major Edward J. Flack.

Major Edward J. Flack of the First Battalion of the Seventy-first Regiment, N. G. N. Y., died on Thursday at his home, 718 West 180th Street. He was 42 years old, and was born in Toronto, Canada, and educated at the Upper Canadian College in that city. Major Flack entered the Seventy-first several years before the Spanish-American war, and when the regiment went to the front as the Seventy-first United States Volunteers, he was Captain of Company B. He was conspicuous in the battle of Santiago, and was made a Major before the close of the war. Major Flack was a member of the Cayuga Club and Eureka Lodge, No. 243, F. and A. M. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hilda Flack.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. JULIA HALSEY BROWN, 71 years old, wife of Wilbur F. Brown, President of the Universal Savings Bank of New York, died yesterday at her home, 23 West 118th Street. She was for many years President of the Missionary Society of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, of which she was a member. She belonged to several other church societies. Mrs. Brown was a descendant of the Rev. Francis Higginson, the first Puritan clergyman to come to this country, and of John Ogden and Robert Treat, on whose property in New Jersey the cities of Newark and Elizabeth were built. Mrs. Brown was born in New York City and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Halsey. Mr. Halsey was one of the founders of the Broadway Tabernacle Church. Besides her husband, Mrs. Brown is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Eloise Brown McCrillis, and two sons, Franklin Irving and Wilbur Fisk Brown, Jr., Treasurer of the Universal Savings Bank.

Dr. CHARLES H. D. SCHMIDT, son of the late Dr. J. C. Schmidt, who was at one time a well-known surgeon of this city, died yesterday at his home in Brooklyn. Although Dr. Schmidt held a medical degree, he never engaged in active practice. He is survived by two sisters and his nephew, J. W. Schmidt, of 817 New York Avenue, Brooklyn.

LEOPOLD WEIL, 65 years old, senior member of the firm of Weil & Sons of 178 Water Street, died on Thursday at his home in Lawrence, L. I. Mr. Weil was born in Germany and came to this country when 16 years old. He entered the tobacco business, specializing in packing leaf tobacco, and later founded the firm of Weil & Sons. He was a member of the old Progress Club, now out of existence, and a former member of the Freundschaft Club. Mr. Weil is survived by his widow and four sons, Richard L., Emanuel J., Arthur C., and Stanley L. Weil.

Gen. JOHN P. HARBISON, for nearly fifty years President of the Hartford City Gas Light Company, died in Hartford, Conn., yesterday.

Col. JAIRUS H. WINDSOR, a pioneer in the development of the Pennsylvania oilfield, died in Pressonia, N. Y., yesterday. He was born in Mayville, N. Y., 84 years ago.

F. ALBERT HAHN, Superintendent of the Tretz Brewing Company, died yesterday at his home, 568 South Twelfth Street, Newark, N. J. He was born in Schw-Gmuend, Germany, 73 years ago.

Dr. SAMUEL FLAGG, one of the oldest two graduates of Dartmouth College, died yesterday at his home in Worcester, Mass. He was graduated from Dartmouth in 1841, and the only other member of the class left is Judge David Cross of Manchester, N. H., who is now the oldest Dartmouth graduate living. Dr. Flagg was born in Worcester, July 16, 1821, and served through the civil war.

THEODORE FREDERICK CLOWES, paying teller of the Bowery Savings Bank, died suddenly on Thursday from heart disease at his Summer residence, in Bridgehampton, L. I. Mr. Clowes was the oldest employe of the bank, having entered it as a clerk in 1861. He was born in this city 75 years ago and served during the civil war with the Seventh Regiment of New York. He lived at 1,285 Baltic Street, Brooklyn, and left two sons, Frederick V., Assistant Secretary of the Columbia Trust Company, and Ernest Clowes.

ANTHONY MILLER, the inventor of a planing machine for sounding boards in pianos, died in the Ann May Memorial Hospital, Spring Lake, N. J., Thursday night of hardening of the arteries at the age of 90 years. He retired from the lumber business about forty years ago, and engaged in the real estate business in New York City and Brooklyn.

STEPHEN HENRY DAVENPORT, 84 years old, a member of the produce commission firm of W. J. & S. H. Davenport of 84 Park Place, New York, died last night from the effects of old age at his Summer home, 23 Fairview Place, New Rochelle. He is survived by a daughter.

EARL OF LUCAN DEAD AT 84.

LONDON, June 5.—The Earl of Lucan died today at the age of 84. He was Aide de Camp to his father, the third Earl of Lucan, when he was in command of the British cavalry during the Crimean War, and was largely responsible for the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava. The estates consist of 83,000 acres in Ireland, and the heir to the title is his eldest son, Lord Bingham, who was born in 1860.

The Earl of Lucan was the son of the third Earl of Lucan and Mary, daughter of the sixth Earl of Cardigan, and succeeded his father to the title in 1888. He was educated at Rugby, and became A. D. C. to his father during the Crimean War in 1854. In 1859 he married Lady Cecilia Catherine Gordon-Lennox, who died in 1910, the youngest daughter of the fifth Duke of Richmond. He was Lieutenant Colonel of the Coldstream Guards from 1859 to 1860, and then resigned. He was a member of Parliament from Mayo, Ireland, from 1865 until 1874. Vice Admiral for Connaught in 1889, and his Majesty's Lieutenant and Custos Rectulorum for County Mayo in 1901. He was created a Knight of the Order of the Medjidieh of the Fifth Class in 1857.

Lord Bingham, the new Earl of Lucan, is 54 years old, and has been Colonel of the First London Infantry Brigade since 1912.

GIANTS ROUTED IN HOMECOMING GAME

Miller Huggins and his made-over St. Louey Cardinals made their local début at the Polo Grounds yesterday. The team has been thoroughly repaired until there is hardly a leak in it. By way of gaining a foothold in Manhattan they beat the Giants by a score of 8 to 3. The Giants are still suffering from too much Philadelphia.

The Cards gathered hits off Rube Marquard in two innings and got plenty of runs. When the Giants began this same progress of bunching hits, the Tom Thumb manager yanked out "Polly" Perritt and sent in "Lefty" Robinson, the former Pirate southpaw, who took the hitting idea right out of the Giants' heads.

The Giants' fielding was so loose yesterday that it rattled. The team is somewhat warped because of the absence of Fletcher at short and Merkle at first. Eddie Grant, the Cambridge scholar, is cavorting around short, while Snodgrass is plowing up Merkle's territory. Grant's mind yesterday was on his batting rather than his fielding, and he planked out three two-baggers, and teased numerous grounders which came bounding at him until the said grounders hurried away from him in disappointment. They seemed perfectly willing to nestle in Eddie's hands, but Grant gave them no encouragement.

Plenty of people were present to encourage the position the Giants have taken at the head of the League. In the upper stands were 400 ruddy-cheeked boys and girls from Public School 7, Manhattan, who were the guest of President Hempstead. They don't think it's right to be invited to the game on a day when the Giants get the worst of it.

Zinn Beck of Waco, Texas, led in the afternoon's greetings to Marquard with four hits, one of them a triple over Bob Bescher's thatch. Jock Miller, who was also called in some time ago to help repair the Cardinals, got three hits and drove in four runs for his club. Jim Thorpe was on view at the bat in the ninth as pinch hitter, but he was extinguished without a struggle.

The Cardinals became active promptly in the first inning. With one down, Magee singled and Dolan was safe on Grant's error. Dolan always was lucky. "Doc" Miller jammed a double to left, scoring Magee and Dolan. Miller went to third on Myers's passed ball and scored when Doyle made a fumble on Butler's grasser.

The Giants got one in the third, when Bescher doubled to right, stole third and scored on a sacrifice fly to centre by Burns. Grant then got a double, but it went to seed. In the fifth the Giants tied the score. With two gone Grant doubled to right and Doyle walked, both pitchers scoring on "Red" Murray's three-base drive to right centre.

The Cardinals helped themselves to the game in the eighth. Beck singled and so did Robinson. Huggins splashed a grounder to the infield and Stock threw it home to get Beck, but the runner ducked under the toss. At this time and for some time afterward the bases seemed to be loaded. Magee forced Robinson at the plate. Marquard uncorked a wild pitch and Huggins counted. Dolan got on with an infield roller and up came Jock Miller and with a smash to left scored Magee and Dolan. In the ninth, with one out, Beck singled, took second on Robinson's out and scored on Huggins's single. The score:

Phillies Bump Pirates Hard.

PHILADELPHIA, June 5. — Philadelphia hit the ball hard, took advantage of the wildness of Pittsburgh's twirlers and the visitors' errors, and won to-day's game by 13 to 3. McQuillan and O'Toole were knocked off the rubber in three innings each and Mamaux pitched the last two innings. Mayer did excellent work for the home team and prevented Honus Wagner from getting a safety. Devore hurt his ankle running to first base in the sixth inning and Becker took his place. The score:

Ames's Control Poor, Reds Lose.

BOSTON, June 5.—Ames's control of the ball was poor today and this, with fielding errors and Boston's heavy hitting, produced a 7 to 2 victory over Cincinnati. Evers's hits were directly responsible for three of the home team runs, while Gowdy sent a long drive into the right field bleachers for a circuit of the bases. Perdue was effective in all except the fourth and sixth innings. In both these innings he hit the first man at bat and a run resulted each time. The score:

ZIMMERMAN SPOILS DODGERS' CHANCES

Third Baseman's Heavy Hitting Earns Easy Victory for O'Day's Cubs.

The Dodgers were defeated by Hank O'Day's Cubs yesterday, but Shannon's Band is to play at today's encounter between the same teams, so the cloud is not without its silver lining. The defeat was a humiliating one, the score being 9 to 5, and was made possible principally through the home run of Heine Zimmerman, who was supposed to be almost a hopeless cripple, but managed to conceal his condition very cleverly, and the wonderful performance of Pitcher "Hassen" Pfeffer, whom Manager Robinson of Brooklyn sent in to pitch when he pulled out Frank Allen to make way for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning. The defeat was a disastrous one, spoiling the Dodgers' chances of getting into the first division for some time to come.

Zimmerman, who was recently benched by Manager O'Day, looked to be in very bad shape. He seems to be getting old and decrepit. Outside of his home run, he only got a couple of singles which scored several runs and was only able to hobble around third base just fast enough to nail everything that came in his general direction. Zimmerman's home run in the third inning came with two men on bases and gave the Cubs a lead which they held to the end of the game. The Dodgers looked dangerous in the eighth inning, when they made two runs and brought the score up to 5 to 4; but Pfeffer did his comedy act in the next inning and handed the Cubs four more runs, which was a quietus to the Dodgers' chances.

Jim Vaughn, the former Yankee, who pitched for the Cubs, let the Dodgers down with eight hits. The score:

The Buffalo Federals beat the Tip Tops at Washington Park yesterday by the score of 6 to 2. Principally to the masterly box work of Krapp, who for six innings was invincible, and in the entire nine innings was hit only four times, and to the heavy hitting of Delahanty, Young, and Downey was the defeat of the Brookfeds brought about. Errors also were decidedly in evidence, and both teams were guilty.

Of the entire Brooklyn team, Gagnier was the only player to successfully gauge Krapp's twirling, and he twice landed on the sphere for two bases. The others simply could not connect. In the eighth inning Finneran succeeded Seaton in the box, and only two hits, singles by Young and Downey, were made by the Bisons, but the game was at that time virtually in a bag. In the eighth, when Shaw, the first man up, hit for a base, went to second on Myers's base on balls, and scored on Hofman's clean single, after Evans and Murphy had been retired, but the effort ended there. Harry Lord Cannot Get Release.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Harry Lord, former Captain of the Chicago American League baseball team, who deserted his club suddenly during its recent Eastern trip, asserted here today that he never would return to the team. Lord was refused his unconditional release by Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the Chicago club. He said that he wanted his freedom because he was about to purchase an interest in a minor league club.

Further Plea in Killifer Case.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 5.—A further plea in behalf of the "cleanliness of the hands" of the owners of the Chicago Federal League Club is made in a second brief filed in the United States Court of Appeals here today on the appeal of the injunction proceedings brought by the Chicago Federal League Club in the case of Catcher William H. Killifer. This second brief is filed by the Federal League Club in answer to the brief recently filed by attorneys for Killifer and the Philadelphia National League Club. The appeal on the injunction proceedings brought originally before United States District Judge Sessions of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be argued before the higher court probably next Wednesday.

Red Sox Release Two Recruits.

BOSTON, Mass., June 5.—William Garlow, former Carlisle Indian School athlete, and more recently a pitching recruit of the Boston Americans, was released to the Lewiston team of the New England League today. Swanson, an infielder, was released to Utica of the New York State League.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

DETROIT, June 5.—Detroit and St. Louis split an exciting doubleheader today. The first game, a ten-inning contest filled with exciting moments and loose playing, was won by the visitors, 6 to 5. The second game, which Detroit won, 3 to 0, was called at the end of the fifth inning to allow the Browns to catch a train for St. Louis.

Detroit threw the first game away by poor fielding and battery mistakes. Hamilton was hit hard and James, who supplanted him in the eighth, was unsteady. Detroit found the two pitchers for four runs, which tied the score. Shotten scored the winning run on McKee's wild throw to third.

Third Baseman Howard of the Browns twisted his ankle in the fourth inning and had to be carried off the field. He probably will be out of the game a week or more.

Cobb, who had been out of the game for some time with a fractured rib, returned to the game by running for Veach in the eighth. He stole third base, but a moment later was caught off third and retired.

Detroit's timely hitting won the second game. St. Louis could not hit Main with men on bases. The scores:

KIRKBY AND RISLEY IN JERSEY FINAL

Opposing sections of the State will fight it out for the New Jersey Golf Association title at the Morris County Golf Club today, the survivors for the decisive test being Oswald Kirkby of Englewood and Maurice Risley of Atlantic City. This makes the first time that an Atlantic City golfer has ever been a finalist in the Jersey tournament.

In the morning Kirkby went so fast against Devereux Lord of Haworth that the match ended on the thirteenth green. Kirkby went out in 36 and stood 5 up at the turn. The bye holes were not played, but at the rate the metropolitan champion was going he had a 72 in sight.

Later Kirkby found himself opposed to D. B. Douglas, of Princeton. By starting with 3's at the first two holes Kirkby got the jump on the young collegian, but the Englewood man only returned for home 2 up, the card to the half-way point reading 38 to 40 in Kirkby's favor. Coming back, Kirkby had trouble with his mashie, and the mistakes made with that club nearly cost him the match. As it was, Douglas cut the other's lead to a single hole at the sixteenth, but as the last two were halved Kirkby managed to scratch out a winner by the narrow margin of 1 up. He made the round in 78, to 79 for Douglas.

On the other side, Risley began the day auspiciously by defeating Charles E. Van Vleck, Jr., of Baltusrol. The latter was not in the same fine form that won him the medal on Thursday, whereas Risley reeled off a 77 and won by 4 up and 2 to play. In the afternoon the Atlantic City man had to play three extra holes to defeat W. D. Vanderpool, of the home club. The summary:

Championship Division, Second Round.—Wynant D. Vanderpool, Morris County beat F. W. L. Fullerton, Baltusrol, 4 and 3; Maurice E. Risley, Atlantic City, beat Charles E. Van Vleck, Jr., Baltusrol, 4 and 2; D. B. Douglas, Princeton, beat A. D. Swords, Morris County, 2 and 1; Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, beat Devereux Lord, Haworth, 4 and 3.

Beaten Eight, First Sixteen, First Round.—A. J. Feuchtwanger, Cranoo Brook, beat W. P. Letchford, Montclair, Essex County, 1 up; Max H. Behr, Baltusrol, beat Wallace N. Sinclair, Baltusrol, 5 and 3; Edwin M. Wild, Glen Ridge, beat Roy D. Webb, Englewood, 2 and 1; Maxwell S. Marcuse, Baltusrol, beat W. E. Shackelford, Atlantic City, 5 and 3.

Semi-final Round.—Behr beat Feuchtwanger, 4 and 2; Wild beat Marston, 1 up, (19 holes.)

Second Sixteen, Second Round.—Morgan K. Smith, Morris County, beat T. P. Endicott, Atlantic City, 4 and 3; Percy R. Pyne, 2d., Morris County, beat J. N. Stearns, 3d, Somerville, 4 and 3; Edwin A. Baldwin, Montclair, beat Roy A. Gussman, Forest Hill, 4 and 2; A. W. Maine, Jr., Hackensack, beat William Watson, Baltusrol, 5 and 4.

Beaten Eight, Second Sixteen, First Round.—E. Mortimer Barnes, Englewood, beat J. B. Bradshaw, Morris County, 2 and 1; J. T. Gillespie, Morris County, beat E. P. Holden, Jr., Madison, 4 and 2; G. F. Kohler, Ridgewood, beat Alfred Morrell, Hackensack, by default; F. B. Richardson, Morris County, beat Frederick H. Thomas, Morris County, 7 and 6.

Semi-Final Round.—Barnes beat Gillespie, 5 and 4; Richardson beat Kohler, 6 and 5.

Third Sixteen, First Round.—Dr. D. W. Grasberry, Baltusrol, beat M. T. Adams, Morris County, 5 and 3; H. W. Ford, Morris County, beat R. H. Williams, Morris County, 5 and 2; H. L. Holmes, Essex County, beat Eric Townsend, Baltusrol, 2 and 1; A. C. Pratt, Montclair, beat J. J. Radel, Forest Hill, by default; J. I. Simmons, Montclair, beat J. E. Taylor, Essex County, 2 up; W. F. Moore, Canoe Brook, beat H. McDonald, Essex County, by default; Dr. A. W. Westney, Atlantic City, beat A. Le Massena, Glen Ridge, 2 up; P. H. B. Frelinghuysen, Morris County, beat Dana Johnson, Montclair, by default.

Second Round.—Granberry beat Ford, 1 up; Pratt beat Holmes, 1 up; Moore beat Simmons, 7 and 6; Westney beat Frelinghuysen, 3 and 2.

Fourth Sixteen: First Round.—C. B. Wilcox, Westfield, beat R. S. Rowland, Plainfield, 2 and 1; Edward Shippen, Morris County, beat R. D. Graham, Morris County, 7 and 6; C. Dubelman, Morris County, beat C. F. Watson, Baltusrol, 5 and 4; J. B. Griswold, Morris County, beat C. W. O'Connor, Essex County, by default; Ellis Adams, Essex County, beat Theodore F. Kerr, Baltusrol, 4 and 3; C. C. Schwinn, Glen Ridge, beat Paul E. Heller, Forest Hill, by default; J. P. Kellogg, Rumson, beat John G. Bates, Morris County, by default; C. L. Dubelman, Morris County, beat R. L. Servoss, Madison, 4 and 2.

Second Round.—Shippen beat Wilcox, 5 and 4; McSweeney beat Griswold, 4 and 3; Adams beat Schwinn, 3 and 2; Kellogg beat Dubelman, 6 and 5.

PHILADELPHIA GOLF VICTORY

Metropolitan Women Defeated for Clement A. Griscom Cup.

By twelve matches to nine the Philadelphia women golfers defeated those of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association in the third and final tri-city contests for the Clement A. Griscom Cup yesterday over the links of the Greenwich Country Club. This is the second time in three years that Philadelphia has won the trophy. The Quaker City delegation took nine out of fifteen contests in the singles, while in the foursomes three matches went to each team.

In the individual event the outstanding struggle was that which involved Miss Lillian B. Hyde and Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, the metropolitan and Philadelphia champions respectively. Miss Hyde administered one of the most decisive defeats of the day, with 7 up and 6 to play. Mrs. Barlow did not win a hole. The summary:

Fordham's Football Schedule.

Football Manager Paul Lannin made known Fordham's football schedule yesterday for 1914. Ten games, the largest number in Fordham's history, are to be played. Georgetown, Fordham's greatest football rival, will be Fordham's opponent in the opening game of the season at Washington on Sept. 26. It will be the first time a Maroon eleven has invaded the South. Gallaudet, Rochester, Middlebury, and the Navy are to be played for the first time. The schedule:

Sept. 26, Georgetown, at Washington; Oct. 3, Gallaudet; 10, University of Rochester; 17, Middlebury College; 24, Rhode Island State College; Nov. 14, Mount St. Mary's; 7, Navy at Annapolis; 14, Vermont; 21, Boston College; 26, Villanova.

JOHNSON-LANGFORD BOUT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 5.—Charles B. Cochran, having received intimation from the Home Office that no objection would be made against Jack Johnson fighting in London with a man of his own color, is now trying to fix up a contest between Johnson and Sam Langford to take place at the Olympia in October next.

Johnson when first approached did not regard the matter seriously, as he did not believe he would be allowed to box in London in view of the Home Office's recent ban on mixed fighting between colored and white men, but now that he finds no obstacle in the way of two blacks meeting, it is understood he is willing to discuss terms.

LONDON, June 5.—Six thousand sovereigns, representing approximately $30,000, the largest stack of gold ever deposited to insure a glove fight, were lodged in the offices of the Sportsman this afternoon in connection with an approaching contest between "Jack" Johnson and "Sam" Langford, the colored heavyweights. The cash was handed over by Gerrard Austin, representing a syndicate promoting the bout. He was accompanied by a bodyguard of commissionaires in uniform, who closely guarded six bags, each containing 1,000 sovereigns. The money represents Johnson's share whether he wins, loses or draws.

Austin, it was announced, had been assured that the fight would take place as he had received Johnson's guarantee to sign articles as soon as the money was forthcoming.

September or October next was mentioned as the probable date of the fight, which, it is thought, will take place in London.

English Club Posts Forfeit, Guaranteeing Lightweight Battle.

Definite arrangements were made last night for a bout for the lightweight championship between Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh, the English champion, in England on July 4, and $5,200 was deposited with Billy Gibson as a guarantee that the bout will come off. The bout was arranged at a conference last night between Mr. Gibson, Harry Pollock, manager of Welsh, and Bob Vernon, representative of the English club that will stage the event. By long-distance telephone from Chicago Willie Ritchie's manager agreed to put up a forfeit of $2,500 to guarantee his appearance in the ring.

Ritchie will leave Chicago on Sunday and come to New York. He plans, if there is no hitch in the arrangements for the fight with Welsh, to sail for the other side on Wednesday. There will be another conference between the principals and promoters at Donaldine's on Monday, at which formal articles will be signed.

Eugene Corri cabled last night to Mr. Vernon that he would act as referee of the bout.

Green Knocks Out Lee.

Silas Green of Texas knocked out Bob Lee of this city in the ninth round of an exciting boxing contest at the New Polo Club last night. They are both colored. Green scaled at 170 pounds and Lee at 212. Green is clever, evasive, quick as a flash, a hard puncher and a perfect judge of distance.

NO "DIGOUT" FOR JUMP.

American Rule Voted Down by International Committee.

LYONS, France, June 5.—A decision of considerable importance to American athletics was reached today by the International Amateur Athletic Federation Committee on Rules, Regulations, and Records. By five votes to one the committeemen rejected the American contention that there should be no digout at the takeoff in the broad jump. During the discussion James E. Sullivan, President of the committee, pointed out that the American method was a guarantee against injury to the athlete and had produced the world's finest broad jumpers. The foreign delegates, however, while admitting the facts, declared the digout to be essential and were disinclined to change the methods to which they were accustomed.

A few other differences of opinion occurred at the meeting, but the committee brought its work to a close to a conclusion, passing all the athletic rules suggested by Mr. Sullivan with a few alterations. For instance in the rule on uprights it was decided that they shall not be moved at all. In that on throwing events and the pole jump the rule is made to read that if the implement breaks it shall be counted no trial. As to the Marathon rule no attendants or coaches are to be allowed during the race, while on account of differences in the various grounds steeplechase specifications are omitted from the rule and are to be decided upon by the committee before each competition.

The next task of the committee is to fix the specifications of a standard set of athletic instruments after inspecting models shipped to Lyons for examination by the congress and also to investigate and draw up a list of world's records to be recognized by the International Federation.

After an inspection of various athletic implements the Rules and Records Committee adopted those used in the United States, and henceforth implements identical with the model set inspected must be used at all international contests throughout the world.

The change in the Marathon rule, forbidding a competitor to be accompanied by attendants so as to receive refreshments, was made, the committee explained, owing to the desire to make the modern race the same as that of the original runner. A competitor in a Marathon may, however, carry refreshments with him, including a bottle of water, a lemon, or even an ice box, it was said by the committee.

Fast Workout at Brighton.

Workout day at the Brighton Beach Motordrome yesterday brought out several surprises. Marty Kessler, riding the new racing machine which he will use tonight, covered five miles in the phenomenal average time of 0:30 1-5 to the mile. At that rate he figures to establish a new mark in the 5-mile motorcycle race tonight, in which he will start from scratch. In the five-mile open race Paul Ohne will make his first appearance against Kessler, Costello, and St. Yves. This event will be run in three heats under the French point system. The five-mile amateur bicycle race with McDougal, Kaiser, and Wahrab starting from scratch promises to be an interesting affair. Nearly nine riders have been entered for this race, and they will be strung out for more than 500 yards. There will also be a twko-third mile open which will be run in five heats, and a final and a two-third mile scramble for boys who have yet to win a race. Clarence Carmen, Bobby Walthour, Leon Didier, and Elmer Collins will be the starters in the Jimmy Michaels Bikes for motor pace followers, to be run in two heats, ten and fifteen miles.

Dawson's Back Is Broken.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 5.—An X-ray examination of Joe Dawson, race driver injured in an accident when driving in the 500-mile race at the Speedway May 30, shows that he has five broken vertebrae, but this is not considered his most serious injury, according to his physicians, who today declared that internal injuries are more to be feared than the broken back. Physicians say that if Dawson survives the shock he has a chance to recover. His condition at the present time is considered very serious.

Allen Retains Pool Title.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 5.—Bennie Allen of Kansas City retained his title as world's champion pocket billiard player tonight by winning the third straight block of his match with Roy Pratt of San Francisco. The score was 200 to 66, and the total for the three blocks 600 to 148. Allen's high run tonight was 48. It was announced that Allen and Alfred De Oro, former champion, whom he defeated last October, will meet in a championship match here in September.

Dent to Lead Union Track Team.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 5.—At a meeting of the track team of Union College Thomas A. Dent, class of 1915, was unanimously elected Captain for the coming year. Mr. Dent has done creditable work on the team as a middle-distance runner, his strong points being the quarter and the half mile. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and a resident of New York City.

TEST AUTO LIGHTS WITHOUT GLARE

Safety First Society Has Demonstration of Head Lamps —Other Motor News.

Much interest was shown last night by men whose official connections in State and city bring them into contact with automobile driving in a demonstration, under the auspices of the Safety First Society, to try various devices intended to do away with the glare of motor car headlights. Ten different makers of headlights showed the qualities of their lamps in eliminating the glare, which is both banned by law and dangerous to road users and pedestrians in Van Cortlandt Park. Plans for the demonstration, which was not intended as a competitive affair but rather as an educational object lesson in available glareless lights, were drawn by the automobile technical subcommittee of the society, of which A. B. Cumner is Chairman and David Beecroft, Joseph Tracy, Arthur J. Slade, and George H. Robertson are members. Among the officials to witness the demonstration were Mitchell May, Secretary of State of New York; Albert Phillips, who holds the same office in Connecticut; Job H. Lippincott, Motor Vehicle Commissioner of New Jersey; J. W. McClintock, First Deputy Police Commissioner of this city, and Chief Magistrate William McAdoo. Companies entering the test included the Corning Glass Works, Gray & Davis, Federal Equipment Company, Johns Manville Company, Legalight Manufacturing Company, C. & A. Matisse, Roffy-Grace Corporation, Ward Leonard Electric Company, and Vesta Company.

As an evidence of the advance in motor car construction and design which has marked the most recent developments of the industry, an automobile carrying two persons and costing but $395 started from this city Thursday on a trip to San Francisco with a schedule which called for the making of the run of 3,389 miles in thirty days. It is not far back in motor car history when the crossing of the continent was considered something of a feat for the largest and most powerful machines. Of course, the country has been crossed many times recently both in competition and for a pleasure tour, but no small automobile of the size or type of the little Saxon, which is now on its way, had attempted the journey heretofore. The car driven by M. J. Croker, with Fred Wilkens as assistant, will follow the Lincoln Highway route, and part of its purpose is to demonstrate the feasibility of that proposed transcontinental course for automobiles of any kind. The start was started by Elmer Thompson, Secretary of the A. C. A. The car most nearly approaching the little vehicle in type and price to cross the continent previously was a Ford, which made the journey from Seattle to New York in twenty-two days in 1909.

Charles Clifton was re-elected President at the annual meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at the headquarters in New York on Thursday with the biggest gathering of automobile officials that has ever been held since motor car building became an industry. There were seventy-four companies represented at the meeting and in attendance at the annual luncheon held at the Hotel Biltmore. More than ordinary interest in the patent situation recently developed in the automobile industry, together with the various other co-operative matters handled by the chamber, accounted for the record large attendance. There were reports from committees on traffic, legislation, good roads, electric vehicles, commercial vehicles, patents and shows. The officials elected follow: President, Charles Clifton; First President, Wilfred C. Leland; Second Vice President, Hugh Chalmers; Third Vice President, Windsor T. White, Fourth Vice President H. H. Rice; Secretary, R. D. Chapin; Treasurer, George Pope, and General Manager, Alfred Reeves. The Board of Directors consists of the Officers and the following: S. T. Davis, Jr., C. C. Hanch, Alvan Macauley, W. E. Metzger, H. O. Smith, Albert L. Pope, L. H. Kittredge, John N. Willys and E. R. Benson.

DEFIANCE TO SAIL SUNDAY.

Cup Defender Expects Time Allowance from Vanitie.

Finishing touches on the remodeled spars of the cup defense candidate Defiance, owned by the Tri-City Syndicate, were completed late yesterday at City Island, and George M. Pynchon, managing owner, who seems in the best of humor at the prospects of his boat under a changed tophamper, announced that the Defiance, which has been on the marine railways for a week, will be launched today at 9 o'clock and the mainmast stepped within an hour.

It is expected by Mr. Pynchon to give the Defiance her first trial under reduced rig tomorrow in Long Island Sound. He would not go into figures on rating comparisons between the Defiance and the other boats of the class, but let it be known that he expected to gain advantage in this respect over at least one of his two rivals.

"I can assure you," he said, "that we will take time from the Vanitie, Alexander S. Cochran's sloop."

From a trustworthy source it was learned at City Island that the Defiance will have to allow the Resolute, the flag officer's sloop, only 40 seconds over a thirty-mile course, consequent upon the shorter mainmast on the Bath yacht.

The hollow wooden mainmast, built for the Defiance at Bath, will be stepped this morning, her steel spar to lie in disuse on the pier at City Island. The reason given for the shift from steel to wood is that the wooden mainmast is 1,760 pounds lighter. Seven feet was taken off the step end of the wooden spar, while its circumference was reduced also by taking off 2¼ inches from the surface. The Defiance has been newly painted and varnished for the trial races.

The cup candidate yacht Vanitie, owned by Alexander S. Cochran, spent the greater portion of the day at anchor at City Island Harbor, trimming up for the race to be held today off Larchmont. The sails were in part recut, the sheets and cleats were inspected by Capt. William Dennis, and several minor changes made. Late yesterday the tender City of Hartford went to City Island and towed the Vanitie down toward Throgs Neck to have the yacht's compasses adjusted. The Vanitie returned to City Island anchorage under her jib.

A new bowsprit, two feet shorter than the old one, is ready to be fitted on the Vanitie. Booms and gaffs are the same length as originally designed.

The America's Cup defense yachts Vanitie and Resolute will resume hostilities in a special race on the Sound today under the auspices of the Larchmont Yacht Club. It will be the first of a series of three matches for a valuable cup offered by Vice Commodore Frederick C. Fletcher of the Larchmont Club. The others are to be sailed on June 9 and July 4, and by that time the third aspirant for cup defense honors, Defiance, will be a contender.

The Regatta Committee, consisting of Horace L. Boucher, Chairman; Errol Kerr, and Henry La Maxwell, has established a starting and finish line off Parsonage Point, and the cup sloops will be sent away promptly at 1 o'clock, weather permitting.

The race will be over a triangular course and the distance will be within a fraction of thirty miles. The method of starting adopted by the New York Yacht Club's committee will be followed, a fifteen-minute preliminary signal with a two-minute period after the starting whistle.

In the races thus far Resolute has won two and Vanitie one, according to the Regatta Committee's decision. The two sailors who went overboard from the Cochran yacht and were rescued with difficulty were reported to be in good shape yesterday, and they will be ready to join their mates today.

Silk Shirts Selling Well.

An unusually good demand for silk shirts is reported this season by one of the leading houses making them. All grades of these goods are in demand, lines running in price as high as $72 a dozen, wholesale, meeting a ready call. Both plain and pleated bosoms are offered, the pleats being of moderate size. Striped effects lead the design demand, and a number of unusual color combinations are being shown. French cuffs predominate.

Few Norway Sardines Caught.

Importers in this city of Norwegian sardines are disturbed by cabled reports received the past few days to the effect that, while fishing should be in full swing in the waters adjacent to Norway, comparatively little fishing is being done. The reason for this is not divulged in the advices received here. The few fish being caught are held at high prices, and unless there is a decided improvement in the fishing, very high prices are predicted.

White Wings for Hats.

Flower and feather manufacturers have seen some sudden shifts in the demand this season. Flowers promised very well at the start, and fair business was done on them for a time. Just at present, however, the demand for white wings overshadows everything else in the market. A fair business is being done on the stove polish effects, but white wings have the call, with very little merchandise on hand to supply customers' needs.

Printcloth Trading Better.

The aggregate business booked on printcloths in the local gray goods market yesterday was of much more ample proportions than that taken on Thursday. There was a very good movement of 38½-inch 60-48s, 6.25, at 4 7-16 cents, while 80 square, four yards, were held firmly at 7⅛ cents; 39-inch 68-72s, 4.75, were strong at 5⅞ cents. A good business was booked on twills and sateens for delivery in June and July, and there was also a nice call for sheetings, which were very firm at recent prices. Several good orders for 37-inch drills, 3.95, were taken at 5⅞ cents. There was very little doing in the fancy goods end of the market, the only feature there being some small sales of 40-inch lawns. The market, as a whole, was very firm.

Clothing Trade Conditions.

Conditions in the clothing trade are quiet, with no immediate prospect of improvement. With the return of the road men, who express for the most part great dissatisfaction with the results of their trips, the tone of the market has declined. Weather conditions and the uncertainty regarding the business outlook are given as the chief reasons why orders were not up to normal. The desire on the part of retailers to see just what will develop in the matter of style has had a tendency to restrict operations. The overcoat situation remains in the same unsatisfactory state as when the season began, but later on it is expected that, with styles decided upon, some business will be done in this branch.

Back After Wash Goods.

Several buyers from local and nearby territory who had bought merchandise in a liberal way on the opening day of the sale of wash and white goods being carried on by the H. B. Claflin Company this week, came back yesterday after more. In view of the slowness with which business on these lines opened this season throughout the market, the return of these buyers was looked on as an encouraging sign for the near future. It at least showed that stocks of these goods in the hands of the retailers are small, as on the earlier days of the sale, the demand was more for printed wash goods than for woven or piece-dyed merchandise. Black and white stripe effects and neat floral designs were most in demand, a notable feature of the later offerings being that in many of the newer lines there was a tendency toward larger patterns. The sale will end today.

A New Way to Clean Textiles.

A new machine for cleaning fabrics and clothing will shortly be put on the market by a local concern. It is operated by electricity. A motor-driven tool agitates the fabric at the rate of 6,000 eccentric motions to the minute when the machine is in operation. Fine needles of air are forced through the fabric by means of a turbine air engine, which instantly carries away all foreign matter and at the same time removes from the garment all substances the minute solids that are contained in spots or stains. Grease spots and paint are easily removed from fabrics or clothing by the device. It is said to be of special value to woolen mills for cleaning up spots made by oil dropping on the work in the loom. It can also be used on silks and sheer cotton fabrics. Clothing manufacturers can use it, too, it is said, for removing spots which get on clothing while going through the workrooms. It is claimed that when used on garments that have been worn, the machine drives out every bit of dust, raises the nap, restores the texture, removes gloss, and renews them generally.

Imports of a Week.

Imports of general merchandise, including dry goods here in the week ended May 30, were valued at $19,012,750, compared with $22,343,277 the week before and $16,662,109 the week before that. Included in these imports are $329,528 worth of jewelry, precious stones and watches. Imports of leather, hides, &c., were $1,784,732, compared with $1,950,858 the week before. There were entered 77,347 bags of coffee, appraised at $1,134,139, while the entries the previous week aggregated $1,344,226. India rubber, substitutes, manufactures, waste, &c., had a value of $1,372,428, compared with $2,920,131 the week before. Imports of wool were appraised at $510,128, compared with $488,724 the week before. Cotton dry goods invoiced $2,179,238, while silk goods entries had an appraised foreign market value of $843,828. The week before the imports were respectively $2,392,796 and $688,027. Withdrawals of dry goods of all kinds from bonded warehouses last week were $498,294, while those entered for warehouse had a value of $844,096. Statistics of the previous week were respectively $805,698 and $796,423.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Aaron Michael of the Spero-Michael Company, Incorporated, of this city, will sail for Europe on the Berlin on Thursday next, to remain abroad for four months. The employes of the firm have accompanied their good wishes for the trip with a loving cup bearing this inscription: "Presented to Mr. Aaron Michael in Grateful Recognition of Good Fellowship from the Employes of Spero-Michael Company, Incorporated, June, 1914."

The staff employes of Beadleston & Woers, brewers, of this city, will today present to E. G. W. Woers a piece of bronze statuary by A. Lavesseur in honor of his eighty-sixth birthday and his fifty-fourth year in the brewery business. They have also passed resolutions in appreciation of him as an employer.

SALES AT AUCTION.

Satisfactory prices were obtained yesterday at a sale of the stock of the Globe Department Store, conducted by D. Hartmann of 8 Greene Street. The sale was well attended, and silks, cotton goods, and corsets are in active demand, judging by the bids received.

An average of between 65 and 70 cents on the dollar was obtained on a stock of men's furnishings sold at auction yesterday by Van Praag & Co., 15 and 17 Greene Street. The merchandise was staple, a number of local and out-of-town buyers attended.

BANKRUPTS GO TO PRISON.

Gradinger Brothers Plead Guilty to Concealing Assets.

Borah Gradinger, Morris Gradinger, and Harry Gradinger, three bankrupts, were arraigned yesteday in the Federal District Court before Judge Mayer and were expected top lead guilty to concealing the assets of the petticoat firm, of which Borah Gradinger was the head, and the silk firm, in which his two brothers were partners.

When it came to making the pleas Borah Gradinger found it was not certain that a suspended sentence would follow an admission of guilt, so the Court bade him consult with his counsel. This caused the other two brothers to weaken, and they joined the conference. Henry J. Goldsmith, their attorney, convinced them that there was nothing to be gained by fighting the case, so they plead guilty.

Judge Mayer said the defendants' acts tended to bring the Bankruptcy act into disrepute, and sentenced Borah Gradinger to two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary and to pay $10,000 fine, and Morris Gradinger to one year and $1,000 fine. As Henry Gradinger is ill, sentence was suspended until Oct. 1, and he was released under $3,000 bail.

ASK NATION TO AID LABOR.

Sociologists Seek Legislation to Solve the Unemployed Problem.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A delegation of sociological workers appearing before the House Labor Committee today favored national legislation to deal with the problem of unemployed labor. The delegation supported the Murdock bill for a national employment agency and the McDonald bill to create employment agencies at Post Offices throughout the country. It is expected that the committee will report legislation along this line at this session and will press it in the House next Winter.

Dr. John B. Andrews of the American Association for Labor Legislation asserted that the Government was the only agency which could deal with the problem in a broad way, bringing the mass of unemployed congregated in the cities, or in one part of the country, in touch with opportunities for employment in country districts or in remote parts of the country.

Manuel F. Behar of the National Liberal Immigration League of New York City urged the publication of a daily Federal labor bulletin showing labor conditions and conditions of unemployment in the various sections of the country.

PAID ONE CENT INCOME TAX

DETROIT, Mich., June 5.—A Detroit citizen yesterday paid into the local internal revenue office a Federal income tax of one cent.

If the income of the taxpayer had been but $1 less in the ten months since the law became operative he would not have had to pay no tax at all. His income for the ten months was $2,500.51. Of this sum $2,500 was exempt from tax. Nothing less than $1 is taxed, but where the amount exceeds 50 cents it is counted as $1. This man's net income exceeded the turning point by one cent, so he was taxed 1 per cent. of a dollar. He wrote his check for one cent and received the Government's receipt.

A deputy figured that it cost the department about $1.50 to collect the tax.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

LOUIS I. GORDON.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Louis I. Gordon, a shoe dealer at 333 Madison Street, by these creditors: Rubinsky, Lande & Co., $188; A. J. Bates & Co., $404, and J. E. Bates & Co., $195. It was alleged that while insolvent he removed, concealed, and secreted shoes to the value of $500.

DR. HENRY ROSENSTEIN of 112 East Tenth Street has filed a petition, with liabilities of $3,830 and no assets. The debts are for printing, advertising, gas, and on a lease.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Extremely Dull--Bankers Arrange Large Gold Exports--Some Trade Improvement.

The prospect of further large shipments of gold to Europe next week, in addition to another $2,000,000 engaged yesterday, was a more interesting development than anything which happened on the Stock Exchange yesterday. There trading fell back into dullness almost as great as that which descended on the market ten days ago, the total for the session being less than half of that of the previous day. On relatively inactive issues there were some changes of substantial importance but the net change in the general level of the more active stocks was negligible. The change, such as it was, fell on the side of declines, but so small a movement could hardly be regarded as having any significance, particularly as it followed two days of recovery.

Yesterday's gold engagement and the preparations which were started for still larger additions to the gold export movement next week were brought about by another rise in foreign exchange rates which carried demand sterling to a figure which overtopped the high point of the movement that culminated ten days ago. The gold now being taken is to go to Paris, and as matters now stand a further rise in exchange would be necessary to bring about any free movement of gold to London, but shipments to that point are still regarded by bankers as very likely. The Bank of France is not now under any necessity to offer inducements to attract gold, for it is moving thither as a natural result of the very high prevailing exchange rates. The Bank of England has proceeded under the necessity of shortly strengthening its gold reserve against which large drafts have been made during recent months, but that institution does not appear inclined to offer the inducement of a higher bid for American coin. Some of our bankers interpret this as an indication that the Bank of England feels confident of gaining gold before long and prefers to get it without raising its standing bid for the metal. Cable transfers have again been brought to cover previous short sales of demand exchange, and this fact was contributing yesterday to the great strength which the foreign exchange market displayed.

The current supply of bills against exports is light, but a large amount of grain bills have already been sold for delivery during July and in later months. Some bankers are inclined to look for an easier exchange position after the turn of the half year and this, of course, affects the price which is being bid for these bills now being sold for future delivery, but at the same time grain exporters who are selling bills against anticipated shipments are realizing unusually good prices because of the extraordinarily high level at which exchange now stands. They are the highest in nearly a dozen years and until a substantial change in the exchange position is brought about through an ending of the European gold demand, or through the appearance of a heavy supply of export bills, New York bankers are prepared to see a continuation of the gold outflow, the forces lately counted on to bring about a cessation of the gold export movement not having proved effective. It was being estimated yesterday that at least $5,000,000 in coin would be shipped out by Tuesday's steamer.

The placing of several fairly large orders for railroad equipment, and the prospect of a large rail order from the Pennsylvania Railroad were made the subject of a good deal of favorable comment. The orders now being placed are much below normal but their appearance gives legitimate ground for encouragement. A hopeful note is struck in the weekly trade reviews, which report improvement in sentiment as well as some expansion in the actual volume of trading.

Wall Street Sidewalk Cleared.

The handsome new building now in course of erection for J. P. Morgan & Co. at Wall and Broad Streets has been finished so far as the exterior is concerned, and it will be possible today to get a good idea of how it will look when it is completed. The dark tunnel built around the two street sides of the building to protect persons from falling stone was being removed last night, and today an unsightly structure which most persons preferred to walk around rather than through will be eliminated.

Some Indifferent Noteholders.

Most of the holders of Missouri Pacific notes of 1914 took an interest in them as their maturity drew near, but it is evident that some of the owners never let the matter interfere with their peace of mind. Of the holders of about $4,750,000 worth of notes who could not be persuaded to accept an extended note a majority were on hand to get their cash, the morning after plans had been made to buy up the outstanding securities. On the other hand, owners of $1,000,000 worth of the notes which are no longer drawing interest have not presented them for payment or offered them under the extended time for deposits, which ended yesterday. From time to time these notes will drift in to be cashed. There are many persons who are so prosperous they cannot recall what investments they have, and yet they do not employ secretaries.

Rock Island Agreement Coming.

Although it seemed at one time as though the stockholders and bondholders interested in the reorganization plans of the Rock Island were working at cross purposes, there is now an excellent prospect for an early agreement between the two protective committees on the terms governing the provision of new capital. The committees held a joint conference yesterday, at which it is understood the original plan submitted by the Phelps, Dodge interests was amended in some respects to suit the bondholders. Other changes asked were taken under advisement. It will not be surprising if the differences still existing on the matter of assessment are settled in a week.

Aid for Producer and Consumer.

The decision of the Adams Express Company to act as agent between the producer and consumer of food products would seem to indicate that the movement inaugurated more than a year ago has met with sufficient success to make it worth imitating. Wells Fargo & Co. entered the field first and the other companies intimated at the time that they would hold off until they saw what happened. Although a second company has taken up the work, express men say that a great deal of experimenting must be done before it can be said that results are entirely satisfactory. There is no difficulty about placing orders among buyers. Wells Fargo & Co. have been forced to proceed with much caution lest they should be swamped with requests for produce that they could not handle. The trouble lies with the producer, chiefly because there is no standard which the average farmer lives up to in preparing his goods for market. An order for a barrel of large apples has frequently brought a barrel of assorted sizes, to put it mildly. But the express agents in agricultural districts have been stimulated in the work of bringing the producing and consuming public closer together, and efforts along educational lines have brought many improvements in the preparation of foodstuffs for the city.

Some Selling by London.

Arbitrage brokers were fairly busy in the first half hour of business yesterday handling selling orders from abroad. Paris was reported as a seller of securities in London on a large scale before our market opened, and unsettlement induced by this distribution appeared to be reflected in London orders here. Transactions for foreign account involved about 10,000 shares, nearly all on the selling side.

More Copper Than Last Year.

An influence in causing certain copper mining concerns to put a check on production in the last few weeks is displayed in figures showing aggregate output of the major companies of the country in April. The records of thirty-five producers, as prepared by Dow, Jones & Co., show an increase in the outturn of copper to the extent of 11,425,725 pounds for the month over the same period last year, while in March the excess was still greater. These companies produced 448,423,784 pounds in the first four months of the year, a total of 38,059,890 pounds more than in the opening quarter of 1913.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Sales took place on the Consolidated Stock Exchange of the following stocks which failed to be dealt in elsewhere in the Wall Street district. These were Erie, New York, Ontario & Western, National Lead, and Rock Island common at 2%, very fair proportion of the business handled in the financial district was done on the Consolidated floor. Of United States Steel, the most active stock, 4,480 shares changed hands, or more than one-third of Wall Street's total turnover of that issue. Prices reflected a check to the latest upward movement in the market. They moved off a little from Thursday's closing levels.

GROUP 2 BANKERS ARE IN OPEN REVOLT

60 BANKS REPRESENTED

UTICA, June 5.—Two Directors for the Federal Reserve Bank were nominated on an insurgent ticket today by bankers of Group 2, who were dissatisfied with the nominations made in New York recently. The insurgent nominees are J. C. Leggett of Cuba, Allegany County, for banker Director, and William B. Thompson of Yonkers for lay Director.

The regulars at their meeting last week put in nomination as representatives of Group 2, Robert H. Treman of Ithaca, William Brewster of New York, and F. F. Peabody of Troy.

The insurgents made much of the fact that the regular nominees came from large cities, while most of the banks of Group 2, which have capital and surplus between $70,000 and $190,000, are in small towns.

Seven banks joined in the call for the meeting today. There were present thirty-five bankers, but they represented sixty banks, as several of them had proxies for institutions besides their own. C. E. Hurlbert of Walton, who presided, said that there were bankers in the group who believed that the group should be represented by members of the group, not by members of another group.

Stuart G. Gibboney of New York, counsel of the Reserve Organization Committee, was asked to explain the law. He said that the committee was not personally interested in the personnel of the candidates for Directorships and would not take sides. "It is the duty of the committee," he said, "to see that an honest and fair election is held, free from intimidation of any kind and in accordance with the letter and spirit of the Reserve act. Each member bank, large or small, has the right to cast its vote free from the advice, direction, or restraint of any other bank or association of banks."

Mr. Gibboney went on to say that the new act would free the small banker and enable him to rediscount his paper at the regional bank as a matter of right, not of favor, and make him independent of any other bank or group of banks.

George F. Secor of Ossining said that Group 2 should be represented by Group 2 members. F. C. Saunders of Cuba, Delmer Runkle of Hoosic Falls, Edward Alley of Cortland, William J. Hamilton of Verona, all of whom attended the New York meeting, protested their honesty of intention and expressed their belief that the men nominated in New York would represent Group 2 fairly.

The action of the Group 2 insurgents, whose declared purpose was to prevent domination by Wall Street through the selection of such men as William Brewster, the carriage manufacturer, and F. F. Peabody, the collar manufacturer of Troy, caused some quiet smiles in the financial district yesterday.

William B. Thompson, the insurgent candidate against these two, lives in Yonkers, but is the head of the Stock Exchange firm of Thompson, Towle & Co., of 14 Wall Street. Some of Mr. Thompson's banking friends in Westchester County urged his selection upon the nominating committee appointed at the meeting of Group 2 banks in this city, but he was passed over in favor of Messrs. Brewster and Peabody.

J. C. Leggett, of Cuba, N. Y., was an active candidate for selection by the Nominating Committee and was warmly championed by H. C. Morgan, President of the First National Bank of Cuba, who was a member of the Nominating Committee. Mr. Morgan was unable to gain any support for him as against Mr. Treman. Mr. Leggett had made known his claims for two weeks before the conference of Group 2 banks was held here. Letters had been sent all over the State, asking for support, and Mr. Leggett was very much in evidence at the Clearing House during the conferences.

Some of the Westchester County banks that had urged Mr. Thompson and those in the interior that favored Mr. Leggett were leaders in calling the meeting held in Utica yesterday.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

Advices from the leading commercial and industrial centres are more optimistic and the improved sentiment is reflected in some expansion in the volume of trade. Recent favorable weather has afforded retailers an opportunity to reduce accumulated stocks of merchandise, and both jobbing and wholesale departments have consequently benefited. Particularly favorable dispatches are received from New England, where mills and factories are more actively employed. Of late, there has been a marked increase in the number of orders placed with manufacturers, and there is much less idle machinery than a month ago. In leather, conditions display some improvement, although concessions in prices are still noted. Distribution of footwear at retail shows an increase, owing to the prevailing higher temperatures. There is a healthier tone to the dry goods market, and business in various departments is quite large.

Bank exchanges this week at the leading cities in the United States made a much more satisfactory exhibit than for several weeks, the total amounting to $2,877,881,723, an increase of 1.9 per cent. as compared with the $2,825,880,729 of the same week last year, and while there is a loss of 13.8 per cent. as contrasted with the $3,337,478,718 of the corresponding week in 1912, it is mainly due to the fact that the comparison is distorted by the week this year and last including a holiday, New York City reports a gain over last year of 2.4 per cent., which is a marked improvement over recent returns.

Bradstreet's says:

Sentimentally and fundamentally, trade conditions are better, even though irregularity is still in evidence. Jobbing trade at many points outside of the Southeast, and particularly in the Northwest, has broadened; interest in Fall and Winter goods is gradually developing, with cotton goods leading in activity, especially at New York; there is more doing in retail lines; some improvement has appeared in connection with collections; larger sales of Southern pig iron are noted; wool is active at strong prices; textile mills are fairly well employed; crop conditions have improved, although corn needs rain; railway traffic is heavier, while the outlook favors a record tonnage in the Winter wheat sections.

$2,000,000 in Gold for Paris.

The National City Bank engaged at the Sub-Treasury $2,000,000 in gold coin yesterday for Paris. The consignment will be shipped on next Tuesday. On the present movement $20,500,000 has been supplied by the Sub-Treasury and Assay Office for transfer to Europe.

EXTRA DAYS IN BUFFALO.

Plaza Guest Finds May 32 on Iroquois Hotel Stamp.

Joseph Thoss of Amsterdam, Holland, who has been making a tour of the United States, is puzzled over the way time is reckoned in some localities in this country. He approached the desk at the Plaza yesterday morning, and held out a letter which on the back bore the office stamp of the Hotel Iroquois in Buffalo.

"Do my eyes deceive me, or have you some new method of dividing the months over here?" he inquired.

The clerk read on the envelope: "Hotel Iroquois, May 32."

"I wonder," remarked the traveler, after he had thanked the room clerk, "how many days they have in May in Buffalo."

DRY GOODS TRADE OUTLOOK

CHICAGO, June 5.—Marshall Field & Co., in the weekly report on the dry goods trade, says:

"While retailers generally have withheld purchases in anticipation of the preinventory sale next week, the weather has been so favorable to retail distribution and their stocks are in such good shape that they have been compelled to order merchandise in considerable quantities. The condition thus revealed makes the sale next week an important one for merchants, and our salesmen throughout the country advise us that many buyers are contemplating a trip to market for this occasion. Wash dress fabrics have figured prominently in the sales of the week, and will also be an important feature of the sale next week, as this is the month of heavy retail sales of this class of goods.

"Ribbons and silks also continue as strong selling items in the dry goods trade, although the Government cotton crop report issued during the week, showing the condition much below the ten-year average, has tended to strengthen the cotton goods market."

BRAZILIAN TRACTION REPORT

Company in Operation 18 Months Has $11,198,493 for Dividends.

The Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Company, Ltd., has issued its first complete report, covering the period from incorporation in July, 1912, to Dec. 31, 1913. The company represents a consolidation of the Rio de Janeiro Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light and Power Company, Limited, and the Sao Paulo Electric Company, Limited.

For the eighteen months' period covered by the report the gross earnings were $11,522,837; expenses, $324,343, leaving a surplus available for dividends of $11,198,493. Disbursements amounting to $450,000 were made on the preferred stock, and $7,785,495 on the common stock, a total of $8,185,495, leaving a surplus carried to profit and loss of $3,012,998.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1913, showed cash in bank of $665,350, and total assets of $118,486,180. The total share capital on that date was $114,177,200, divided into 1,041,772 common shares and 100,000 6 per cent. cumulative preferred shares, with a par value of $100 each.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

The day was mostly given up to professional operations in wheat and fluctuations were narrow, the market closing about steady at a partial ¼c net decline.

In the local market No. 2 hard Winter was quoted at $1.02¾, cost, insurance, and freight, New York; new No. 2 red, 94½c, July shipment, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.05¾, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.06¾, free on board, afloat.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

A deal in the upper part of the Times Square section added about the only touch of active interest to the realty market yesterday. The four-story business building at 219 and 221 West Forty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Eighth Avenue, was purchased by Leo Feist from the John T. Brook Company. It covers a plot 51.3 by 100.5, and is leased on a long term to the music publishing firm of Jerome H. Remick Company. The new owner took title to the property yesterday, subject to a mortgage of $110,000.

N. Y. Central Enlarges Holdings.

The New York Central Railroad has increased its holdings in the block bounded by Tenth and Eleventh Avenues, Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets, by purchasing the two three-story tenements at 502 and 504 West Thirty-third Street, a plot 35 by 74. They were bought from the Anonymous Company. Frederick Fox & Co. were the brokers. The railroad company now owns the entire block, except two small parcels.

Private Dwellings Sold.

Dr. Joseph Levy has bought for occupancy from Joseph L. Graf 28 West Eighty-ninth Street, a four-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 100.8. Benjamin Bernstein was the broker in the transaction.

Goodale, Perry & Dwight have sold for Harriet E. Rummell 213 West Twenty-second Street, a three-story brownstone dwelling, on lot 17 by 90.

A Recent Buyer.

Bronx Sales.

A builder has purchased from Ira H. Parker a plot of four lots, with a frontage of 100 feet on the east side of Jerome Avenue, 190 feet south of 175th Street. E. Osborne Smith and Joseph P. Day were the brokers.

Goodale, Perry & Dwight have sold for Mrs. Kate Upton of Chicago the five-story apartment at 1,993 Bathgate Avenue. Mrs. Upton recently acquired the property in exchange for Chicago lots.

The B. V. Construction Company sold to Louise J. Reckendorfer, 892 Fox Street, a five-story flat, on plot 52 by 105.1, between Tiffany and Barretto Streets. The buyer gave in exchange a three-story dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 100.8, at 178 East Ninety-fifth Street, between Lexington and Third Avenues. Alexander Selkin was the broker.

The Rollins Estate has leased the corner store in the building in course of construction at the southeast corner of Jerome Avenue and Fordham Road to Patrick J. Farrell for a term of years at an aggregate rental of about $18,000. Leases have also been made to Hanscom & Co., bakers, taking four stores. Hefse Bros. have leased two stores for a general market.

Samuel Harris has sold the four-story whitestone apartment house, 37.6 by 90 by 115, at 404 Third Street, to an investor, taking in part payment the five-story single apartment house, 20 by 100, at 171 West Eightieth Street, New York. The deal involved about $70,000.

Brooklyn.

Frank A. Seaver sold the two-story and basement two-family brownstone house 451 Seventy-seventh Street for Fannie F. Quinn to an investor.

The Jerome Property Corporation sold 315 Sterling Place, between Vanderbilt and Underhill Avenues, a three-story and basement high-class private residence, for Margaret Reid to Robert H. Deery; also, 315 Seventh Avenue, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, a four-story business property, for J. H. Renken for investment.

Wood Harmon & Co. sold at Kensington Park one lot on Gravesend Avenue, near Eighteenth Avenue, to R. E. Dismukes; one lot on East Second Street, near Avenue P, to W. C. Neill, and one lot on East Third Street, near Avenue F, to W. A. Mohrman.

Want "Phone" Rates Reduced.

Upper Manhattan Taxpeyers' Association and other property owners, agents, and brokers held a meeting yesterday afternoon in the rooms of the Real Estate Board of New York with the view of organizing to protest against excessive rentals charged for telephones, when the Public Service Commission resumes its hearings of that matter.

M. H. Winkler, it was announced, has been retained as counsel to secure for them a reduction of message rates from 3 to 2 cents, to eliminate charges for equipment, and to have installed wherever possible slot machine telephones. Another provision the taxpayers are going to ask the Public Service Commission for is that the telephone company be made to collect whatever money is due it from the tenants direct.

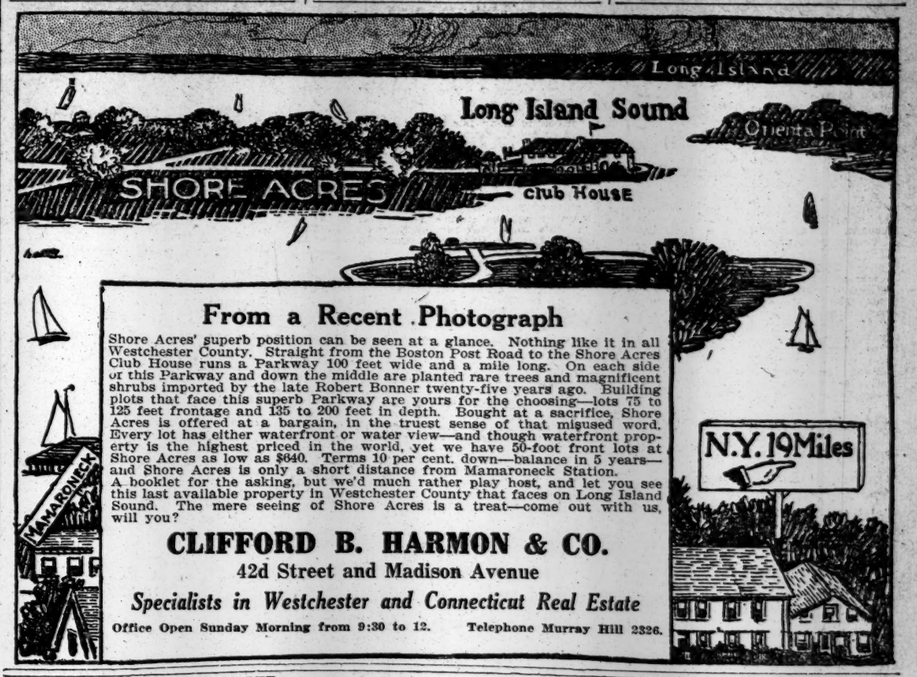
WESTCHESTER—SALE OR TO LET.



From a Recent Photograph
Shore Acres' superb position can be seen at a glance. Nothing like it in all Westchester County. Straight from the Boston Post Road to the Shore Acres Club House runs a Parkway 100 feet wide and a mile long. On each side of this Parkway and down the middle are planted rare trees and magnificent shrubs imported by the late Robert Bonner twenty-five years ago. Building plots that face this superb Parkway are yours for the choosing—lots 75 to 125 feet frontage and 135 to 200 feet in depth. Bought at a sacrifice, Shore Acres is offered at a bargain, in the truest sense of that misused word. Every lot has either waterfront or water view—and though waterfront property is the highest priced in the world, yet we have 50-foot front lots at Shore Acres as low as $640. Terms 10 per cent. down—balance in 5 years—and Shore Acres is only a short distance from Mamaroneck Station.
A booklet for the asking, but we'd much rather play host, and let you see this last available property in Westchester County that faces on Long Island Sound. The mere seeing of Shore Acres is a treat—come out with us, will you?

AQUITANIA PUT INTO DOCK IN 20 MINUTES

SEVENTEEN TUGS GIVE AID

The newest Cunarder, the Aquitania, biggest of British ships, and longest ship save one that has ever entered this port, was docked yesterday by her commander, Capt. W. T. Turner, R. N. R., in twenty minutes after she had arrived here for the first time.

Everything was ready at the pier to warp the big liner into her berth on the northern side of Pier 54, foot of West Thirteenth Street, when the bridge of the Aquitania was abreast of the pierhead at 9:15 A. M.

Capt. David J. Roberts, Marine Superintendent for the Cunard Line, had seventeen tugs engaged, as there was a strong ebb tide running and a stiff northwest wind blowing. Fourteen tugs were ready to push her stern around, and the other three were waiting by the bow in case anything gave way on the new extension of the pier, which had not been tested previously with a strain of 60,000 tons weight at the end of a line.

Capt. Turner had four head lines out on the starboard bow, and as they took the strain one after another the big liner swung slowly around and ran alongside the pier almost automatically, while her stern was pushed around by the tugboats.

At 9:35 the gangways were out.

Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, who apparently has assumed the responsibilities of harbor master in addition to his other duties, escorted the Aquitania up the bay from Quarantine in the police boat Patrol, and saw that the fairway was kept clear.

Gen. Robert K. Evans, Acting Commander of the Department of the East, U. S. A., came with his staff on the launch Wat-a-wah from Governors Island to the pier to see the docking.

After the Aquitania was made fast Gen. Evans went on board and met Col. William M. Black, President of the New York Harbor Board of United States Army Engineers, to congratulate Capt. Turner on his masterly handling of the ship. Dock Commissioner Smith, Dudley Field Malone, Collector of the Port; Gen. Nelson Henry, Surveyor of the Port, and P. A. S. Franklin, First Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine Company, were among those who watched the berthing of the liner and congratulated her commander.

From the time she left Quarantine at 7.45, with the Post Office mail boats on both sides, the Aquitania was saluted by river craft and ferryboats laden with commuters until she reached her pier. When the tugs were told to let go, that she was made fast, they gave three shrill blasts in unison to accompany the four buglers standing on the boat deck sounding the call for passengers to go ashore.

Bo'sun Coffee, the veteran of the Cunard fleet, after he came off the fo'csle head, when asked what he thought of the sea with which the ship came in, replied: "If our old man don't know how to dock a ship, there's no one who does."

Capt. Roberts, on the pier, said it was the finest piece of work he had ever seen. The extension which has been built from Pier 54, increasing its length to 924 feet 6 inches, stood the strain easily, he said, and not a rope yarn or a plank was started.

The Aquitania has the graceful lines of the Lusitania and does not suggest her great bulk when seen from the water. Her bow is very sharp and gradually opens out to her great beam at the main deck and the superstructure above. At the afterend, for 70 feet from the stern, the ship is cut away to give a clear run of water to the wing propellers, which gives her the appearance of a huge yacht looking aft along the water line.

A number of passengers, headed by Lord Eversley, drew up a cablegram congratulating the Cunard Line upon the steadiness of the new liner and the absolute absence of vibration, and sent it to Alfred Booth, Chairman of the company at Liverpool.

Capt. Turner, in his usual laconic way, said the Aquitania steered like a yacht,and could be manoeuvred even easier than the Mauretania or the Lusitania, both of which he had handled in turn.

"The average of the run was reduced," said the Captain, "by having to practically stop for five hours on Tuesday night on accoutn of fog and the vicinity of icebergs, but apart from that the weather was grand, and no ship could want a beter chance to show what she could do. I do not think the Aquitania will ever get better weather than she had this time."

John Curry, Superintendent engineer of the Cunard Line, who was on the Aquitania for the trip, said the four great turbines had worked like clockwork under the direction of Chief Engineer Archibald Bryce and had given full satisfaction. The coal consumption was much less than that of the Mauretania or Luistania, and the liner had made 24.24 knots for two days, during which time she only developed 56,000-ton power of her 60,000.

The Aquitania is 901 feet long over all, 97 feet beam, 92 feet depth of hold, and 47,000 tons gross. She is 49 feet shorter and 6,500 tons lighter than the Vaterland, one foot longer and 3,000 tons lighter than the Imperator, and 19 feet longer and 2,000 tons heavier than the Olympic. So far she has made the best day's run, 602 knots, of any boat in what is now termed the "big ship" class.

She brought over 1,055 passengers and a crew of more than 1,000. She made the voyage from Liverpool to the Ambrose Channel Lightship, a course of 3,181 miles, in 5 days 17 hours and 43 minutes, an average speed of 23.19 knots. Capt. Turner went sixty miles south of the usual route, down to 40 degrees, to avoid ice.

The interior decorations of the new Cunarder are of a more artistic and simpler style than any other recently constructed liner. There is a touch of the Tudor period in some rooms, but the periods most shown in the ship are those which lie between the restoration of Charles II. and the middle of the reign of George III. The saloons and private suites are decorated with works of great artists on reproductions of them. On the grand staircase there is a painting of Roman ruins by Giovanni Antonio Pannini and portraits of Lely and Kneller.

The restaurant is 150 feet by 100 feet, and will seat 800 persons comfortably. There is a gallery running around the restaurant on the deck, 19 feet above, where coffee may be taken, but there are no dining tables there. Passengers walk into the restaurant at any time and order meals. Seats are only booked for dinner, so that one may tip his steward after each meal as he would in a restaurant and sit at another table at night when seats are booked for dinner.

Adjoining the dining room is a grill room where passengers may order any dish from two electric grills at any hour without charge. The drawing room is on the "A" deck. The principal feature is an oval dome with lunettes, treated with lead moldings and ornaments which hold the glass. The general idea of the first class smoking room has been to retain a ship effect with architectural proportions. It is an adaptation from Greenwich Hospital in the period of Charles II. The floor is of oak, with oak carvings on the walls and a fine portrait of James I. over the mantelpiece.

The long gallery and ballroom on the "A" deck are very fine and spacious, but the chief attraction for passengers was the garden lounge, which extends 150 feet on each side of the lounge, where persons may sit in the open in big wicker chairs and look out over the water.

The promenade deck has glass inclosed sides for bad weather and a raised deck at the sides amidships for the chairs, so that there is always plenty of room for energetic passengers to take exercise.

The first-class decks are all covered with a gray rubber composition and are easy to keep clean. The staterooms are spacious, simple, and free from hangings that might harbor dust. There is a fine swimming pool and gymnasium on the "D" deck.

The second cabin and third-class accommodations are fitted with the latest appliances for comfort, the former having a veranda café and a gymnasium.

The Aquitania has an entire inner skin, fore and aft, fitted with longitudinal and transverse bulkheads; wireless apparatus, submarine signal apparatus, searchlights, two large motor lifeboats with wireless apparatus of 100 miles range, and eighty lifeboats, which practically cover her boat deck fore and aft. If one bulkhead should be pierced in a collision there is a pump ready to handle 15,000 tons of water an hour. Everything that ingenuity can suggest, to make a ship unsinkable, it was said, has been made a part of her.

ALL FIND THE SHIP STEADY.

Frederick W. Whitridge Slept as Well as Upon Land.

F. W. Whitridge, President of the Third Avenue Railway, who returned yesterday on the Aquitania, said he had gone to Europe every year since 1884 and this was the most comfortable trip he had ever made. "On former occasions," he said, "I invariably awoke when there was any change in the motion of the ship, but this time I slept as comfortably as if ashore."

When asked what he thought of the testimony given by Charles Mellen in the New Haven investigation, Mr. Whitridge condemned it in strong terms, because he said Mr. Mellen had spoken ill of two men who were dead, J. P. Morgan and Charles Hayes.

Lord Eversley of Winchester, who is 82 years old, was another passenger. This is his third trip to New York, he said, having made the first in 1852 on the old sidewheeler Niagara of the Cunard Line and the second on the Cuba of the same company in 1867, when he came across in twelve days. In spite of his years, Lord Eversley is very active and intends to get about and see the alterations in New York since his last visit forty-seven years ago.

He said this trip had drought many sad recollections because his old friends, Emerson, Longfellow, Dana, Lowell, Henry Thoreau, and many others had passed away. He will return on the Aquitania on Wednesday.

Kate Douglas Wiggin, the writer, said she had enjoyed her trip immensely. "From the moment the Aquitania left Liverpool until she was tied up at her pier there was never a hitch, a jerk, a tremor, or a hint of unsteadiness."

W. N. McMillan, the big game hunter, on whose farm in British East Africa Theodore Roosevelt hunted while on his expedition, was a passenger. He said he exchanged greetings by wireless with Col. Roosevelt when they passed the Olympic. The farm alluded to by Mr. McMillan is nearly about the size of Rhode Island, and is considered the finest big game preserve in the world. He came over to visit his mother and other relatives in Massachusetts and will be here several weeks.

GANGSTERS' BOMB THREAT.

Police Charge Five of "Dopey Benny's" Band with Extortion.

Two detectives from the Greenwich Street Police Station, disguised as immigrants, yesterday afternoon arrested a man who gave his name Harry Lowe, and said he was a waiter and lived at the Rivington Baths, on Rivington Street, near the Bowery. Later they arrested four other men, all suspected of being members of the "Dopey Benny" gang. They are charged with extortion. Lowe, the detectives say, confessed that he was a lieutenant in the "Dopey Benny" gang. Lowe was arrested in the office of Joseph Feldman and Max Freud, steamship ticket agents, at 109 Greenwich Street. The detectives say they fund $25 in marked bills on his person which he had secured from Feldman under threat of "blowing the place up with a bomb."

Freud and Feldman said Lowe had been demanding money from them at frequent intervals since last November, saying that he had been sent by "Dopey Benny" Fein. He was always accompanied by rough companions, they said, and exhibited a revolver. They said they had paid him sums varying from $5 to $50, and that Feldman was so frightened by the threats to dynamite the building that he had made out a will to which he added the statement that, if he were killed with a bomb, Lowe, who had told him his name was Gordon, would be the murderer. The members of the firm complained to the police in March.

The gangmen's first visit since that time was last Tuesday, when they said that the building would be blown up unless they were paid $100 yesterday. The detectives waited in the office and told Feldman to hand Love marked bills. Edward Swersky, 20 years old, a Russian, of 431 Avenue C, Bayonne, N. J., and Robert Napelbaum, 21 years old, of 126 West Sixteenth Street, Bayonne, who had been hanging around the place, ran in when Love received the money. They were arrested on suspicion.

Lowe then acknowledged, it is alleged, that John Petorore, alias Peterson, 20 years old, a printer, of 153 East Houston Street, and Frederick Zimpleman, 21 years old, of 236 East Fifty-sixth Street, two other members of the gang, were waiting for a share of the expected spoils at Centre and White Streets, and they were arrested.

COW HOLDS UP THE ERIE.

A Jersey cow wandered onto the tracks of the Erie Railroad near Newark yesterday afternoon, and when presently overtaken by a train refused to get off. The warnings of bell and whistle were of no avail, and the efforts of the trainmen to throw her off were not successful. The cow went on into Newark, and upon reaching the bridge over the Passaic River left the tracks and marched across on the footpath, in spite of the attempts of the bridge tenders to stop her.

Then she returned to the tracks and went on to the bridge over Passaic Avenue, in East Newark, where there was no footpath. Here her legs slipped down through the gaps between the ties, and she stayed there helpless until workmen with noisting apparatus brought her out. At present the cow is held by officials of the town of Kearny pending the result of inquiries to discover her owner.

LACE IMPORTER SENTENCED.

Ladenburger Sent to Blackwell's Island for Smuggling.

Julius Ladenburger, a lace importer of 111 Fifth Avenue, was sentenced by Judge Mayer in the Federal District Court yesterday to thirty days on Blackwell's Island and to pay a fine of $500 for the undervaluation of laces imported from Belgium.

Assistant United States District Attorney Carstaphen told the court that the frauds had been carried on for years. He suggested that as the only way to put a stop to such practices a jail sentence should be imposed.

JUNE SNOW IN NEVADA.

Reno Has Freezing Weather—Heavy Snow In Mountains.

RENO, Nev., June 5.—Snowstorms accompanied by low temperature were reported from several points in Nevada today. In Reno snow flurries continued until noon. The temperature was 27 degrees. Heavier snowfalls were reported in the mountain districts and at Winnemucca and Carlin.

Reports were received from points on the Nevada, California & Oregon Railroad that the storm extended as far north as Lakeview, Oregon, three inches of snow covering the ground at that place. Practically no damage has been done to crops in this region.

Bruere and Chapin in Phi Delta Phi.

Henry Bruere, City Chamberlain, and H. Gerald Chapin, lately resigned from the Faculty of the New York University Law School, were initiated last night at the Yale Club into the Phi Delta Phi.

FIXED POST GUARD IN TEKULSKY CAFE

ECHO OF GILLEN CHARGES

Restaurateur May Seek Court Writ to Remove Guard—Has Cost the City $1,050.

Morris Tekulsky, who was President of the Liquor Dealers' Association in that year when Theodore Roosevelt as head of the Police Board of New York made New York "dry" on a Summer Sunday, has become the unwilling owner of a fixed post. Since March 10 a $1,400 a year uniformed policeman has been stationed in the rathskeller of his café at Twenty-fourth Street and Sixth Avenue, twenty-four hours each day. Three patrolmen attached to Lieut. Dan Costigan's guerrilla squad have alternated in eight-hour shifts for nearly three months now. Their salaries for that period cost the city $1,050.

In his efforts to rid himself of the obnoxious fixed post, Tekulsky has complained at Police Headquarters that the men do not help business and that it annoys him to have to leave his place open after 1 A. M. and from midnight of Saturday till early Monday morning in order that the detailed policemen may march in and out on their shifts of duty. The Commissioner's secretary told him that "these things take time" after Deputy Commissioner Godley, Lieut. Costigan, and the Inspector of the district had informed Tekulsky that the fixed post had been established by Mr. Woods himself and therefore was a fixture until abolished by a general order.

Police politics and the trial of Inspector Gillen are said to be responsible for saddling Tekulsky with the perpetual police guard and the taxpayers with the salaries of three able-bodied men who have done nothing for three months. When it was decided to push charges against Gillen a series of arrests were made, designed to show the existence of disorderly resorts in the Inspector's district. Among those places picked out was Tekulsky's, which is the old "Corner Place," founded by Koster & Bial and famous when their music hall on Twenty-third Street was in its heyday. Two of Costigan's men arrested a deaf waiter in the rathskeller and charged that in his hearing they had made assignations with two women eating supper at a table next to theirs. The policemen swore that this was at 1:20 o'clock, twenty minutes after the legal closing time.

The arrest was made on March 10 and the two cases against Tekulsky's place, known as the "excise case" and the "disorderly case," were tried in Special Sessions a week ago yesterday and thrown out of court. The place had been closed at 1 A. M. as usual, Tekulsky proved, and the waiter, who was described in the complaint as manager of the place, hadn't overheard the conversation between the men and women at the adjoining tables.

Among the witnesses who testified for Tekulsky was a police matron who has been in a west side station for the last fifteen years. She said she had eaten in the rathskeller more than a dozen times and had never seen any evidence that it was not an entirely orderly place.

Tekulsky said last night that he probably would have to go to the courts for a writ to remove the police guard. His son, Sol Tekulsky, who occupies law offices with Congressman Jacob A. Cantor at 25 Broad Street, says "that this is a case of both trespass and oppression."

10,000 STRIKE IN PITTSBURGH

Westinghouse Employes from Three Plants Quit Work.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, June 5.—It is estimated that more than 9,000 men and about 900 girls employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, the Westinghouse Machine Company, and the Pittsburgh Meter Works, all of East Pittsburgh, had gone out on strike by 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The strikers marched about the streets of East Pittsburgh during the lunch hour headed by a band. From 6 o'clock last night until this morning 1,000 new members were taken into the Allegheny Congenial Industrial Union. More members were taken in today.

A mass meeting of the strikers at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the East Pittsburgh baseball grounds, was attended by 4,000 men and women, but there was no disorder. The walkout, it is asserted, came about because the officials of the company refused to recognize the union.

A statement was issued by the Westinghouse Company this morning which says, among other things:

"The officers of the three companies affected by this strike state that, owing to the falling off of business, which began to affect them last November, it was necessary either to make a reduction in the working forces or in the working hours and in order to give employment to as many as possible the working hours were shortened from fifty-four to forty-five hours a week.

"Since a large proportion of the workers are not in a position to realize how serious this falling off of orders has been, some dissatisfaction has arisen."

LOST MONEY IN MEXICO.

Cothren, Who Died of Morphine, Had Unprofitable Investments.

Friends of Frank H. Cothren, a lawyer, who was found dead last Friday night from an overdose of morphine in the bathroom of his home at 173 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, were much disturbed yesterday by a report that part of his aunt's fortune and some money of his own had been swept away through the failure of investments made by him in Mexico. Mrs. Alice Cothren, his aunt, lives in Red Bank, N. J., and she often asked his advice when she desired to make an investment.

Cothren for a long time maintained an office at 2 Rector Street. It was said there yesterday that since his death his wife, Mrs. Catherine Cothren, who has been prominent in movements for women here, had taken charge of her husband's affairs. At the Cothren home yesterday it was said that Mrs. Cothren had gone to the country. A member of the household said that Mr. Cothren had looked after his aunt's investments, and that whatever investments he had made for her in Mexico had been in legitimate securities, but that on account of the Mexican situation many fortunes had suffered.

LOST RING, WON FIANCE.

Miss Cannold, Loser, Engaged to M. S. Harris, Theatre Manager.

The loss of a diamond ring last Christmas marked the beginning of a romance which has culminated in an engagement between Miss Harriet Priscilla Cannold of Brooklyn and Milton S. Harris, assistant manager of the Adolf Philipp Theatre in East Fifty-seventh Street.

Miss Cannold lost her ring while attending a performance at the theatre, and first met Mr. Harris when he volunteered to search for the ring, which was unsuccessful. They continued their acquaintanceship, and it was not many days ago when Mr. Harris replaced the missing article with an engagement ring.

DEATH HINT IN HOLMAN SUIT

HARTFORD, Conn., June 5.—Two sensational depositions by the plaintiff's aged mother and her former nurse were read today in the $50,000 suit which Mrs. Elizabeth A. C. Holman of Waterville, Me., is pressing against her former husband, the Rev. Cranston Brenton of Yonkers, N. Y., and two Hartford physicians, Dr. Paul Waterman and Dr. Oliver C. Smith. She charges them with having conspired to kidnap and confine her in a Vermont madhouse.

The mother, Mrs. Susan B. Curtis of Sierra Madre, Cal., swore that Brenton concealed from her letters from the Brattleboro Asylum, particularly one from Supt. Lawton, who wrote that her daughter was not insane, and to come and remove her.

"I'm afraid my poor little girl will commit suicide," she told Mr. Brenton one day at Trinity College in this city, and she said he replied: "We must be prepared for everything. Perhaps that would be the best way out of it."

Miss Elizabeth M. Schubmehl swore that she had been a nurse in the Curtis home and that she visited the Brattleboro Insane Asylum, where she found Mrs. Holman in a cold, dreary, unlighted cell with bars on the windows. Outside were shrieking lunatics, who threw the furniture around the corridor. Mrs. Schubmehl said she asked Mr. Brenton why he did not allow his wife to get a divorce, and he answered: "How can I, a minister of the Gospel, give her a divorce? I shall do so only on the ground of infidelity."

Mrs. Holman's contention is that she signed a confession of infidelity to gain her release from the asylum. Mrs. Holman successfully withstood a cross-examination by three lawyers for the defendants.
